TWEED MAN FOUND DROWNED IN MOIRA RIVER EARLY TODAY

ANDREE AND MATES SLEPT TO DEATH IN NORTHERN WASTES

Copyright Story Tells of End of Heroic Polar Expedition — Andree and Companions Found in Natural Graves of Ice.

(Copyrights all reserved in North and South America and Japan by the Associated Press.)

Aboard the steamship Braatvag, Skjaer, White Island, Norway—Solomon August Andree, Swedish explorer and his two companions in the 1897 attempt to fly across the north pole had from exhaustion slept themselves to death. Dr. Gunnar Horn, head of the expedition which found their remains on White Island, east of Spitzbergen, believed after a torturous and gruelling march and ride in a frail boat across 180 miles of ice and ice water from where they came down. They lived on White Island only a few months he believed, by killing birds and bear for food. They died one by one and at last the bodies of two found frozen in a sort of semi-permanency.

Those bodies remained in their natural graves of ice and snow until August 44th, when men of the Horn Expedition, seeking water to drink on the Bleak Island found a boat hook which once belonged to the Andree expedition. They began an investigation which ended in the discovery of the bodies or clothed skeletons.

FRANK MERAW IS FOUND DEAD IN MOIRA RIVER

Victim of Drowning Is Discovered by School-Boys

INQUEST ORDERED

Had Been in Poor Health For Some Time Say Friends

Frank Meraw, aged 65 years and a resident of Tweed for the past number of years, was found drowned in the River Moira today about eight-thirty o'clock. The body was discovered floating in the river opposite his home on the river road by Joe McIlroy, Thomas Mahoney and Torrence Rashotte, three school boys, who were proceeding across the river in a boat to attend the opening of school. The body was hauled into the boat and brought to shore by the school children and Wallace Moon, county constable, was called, later to be joined by Provincial Constable Hill of Madoc. Dr. Eagleson of Madoc, coroner for the county, was also summoned and the facts being explained to him ordered an inquest and also advised a post-mortem. The body was taken to his home nearby the scene of the drowning.

Retired From Farm

Mr. Meraw, retired from farming a number of years ago and has since made his home in Tweed. For the past while he has been suffering from high blood pressure and poor health, it is understood. That Mr. Meraw was about the house early today and was not missed until the children found the body with the cap, which he was wearing, sticking out of the water. The river at this point is normally about 10 feet deep but on account of the continued dry weather was much below that level.

Jury Sworn In

Provincial Constable Hill with County Constable Wallace Moon, who have charge of the case informing the press today that the jury had been empanelled and after taking preliminary evidence before Dr. Eagleson the inquest hearing was adjourned until two o'clock on Thursday afternoon. The Jury is composed of Charles Kerr, foreman, Charles Clarke, Mitchell LeGage, Ray Quinn, Levi Courneyea, Harley Trumpour, Paul Courneyea, James Trudeau and George Nelson.

TWO CRASHES AT STREET CORNER

Cars Damaged But No One Was Injured in Mix-Up

Two accidents within two hours of each other took place at the corner of Bridge street west and James street yesterday afternoon The first was more serious than the second but in neither case was anyone injured. Miss Grace Paul, resident of Newburg and a school teacher at Milford, was traveling west on Bridge street west intending to turn south on James street. Her car was followed by another car driven by Mor-Callaghan and a little further back was a car driven by Hope St. Clair Johnston, 45 West Mohawk St., Buffalo When Miss Paul put out her hand to show the direction she was taking Mr. Callaghan slowed up but Johnston pass ed on the left hand side and a collision took place. The car driven by Miss Paul ran up on the boulevard on Bridge west, while the Johnston car went on to the lawn of Fred Meagher. The right side of the Johnston car and the left side of the Paul car were stripped Constable Isaac investigated, tested the brakes of each car and found them perfect. The parties were both insured and they settled the damages between themselves. No charges were laid.

Later in the afternoon a truck owned by Mr. Samuels was struck exactly in the same way on the same corner but hardly any damage was done.

This corner is very dangerous especially when the traffic is as heavy as it was over the holiday. The through traffic on Bridge street west will not stop or even give a driver a chance to get out of James St or Cedar street on the opposite side. A great deal of "cutting out" is noticed when west bound traffic is trying to make either a left or right hand turn into James or Cedar street.

MANY NEW FACES SEEN AT SCHOOL

Total Attendance Today Is Up to Total at Close of Term

It was a happy gathering of pupils at the collegiate auditorium this morning as the opening of the school term after some weeks holidays. The spacious auditorium was filled to capacity with the staff and a few members of the Board of Education occupying seats upon the platform. Principal P. C. McLaurin presided and in a few well chosen remarks welcomed the pupils as did also Messrs. A. Jones, chairman of the school board, H. F. Ketcheson and E. Geen, who wished the pupils every success in their studies

The registration this term will be in excess of the last year's term when seven hundred and fifty-five were registered. This year there will be at least eight hundred registered. At the conclusion of the proceedings in the auditorium the pupils were assigned to their various class rooms. Classes this afternoon were suspended in order to allow pupils to procure the necessary school supplies.

When the four public schools of this city reopened this morning after the summer vacation there was a large attendance of pupils, the various rooms being well filled. In the various schools the pupils gathered in the assembly room and after being addressed by the principals were assigned to their respective class rooms. There were no classes this afternoon. The registration in the schools was as follows:

Queen Mary, 453, of whom 35 were new scholars. There were 40 absentees.

King George, 380, which number was about the same as when the school closed for vacation.

Queen Victoria School showed a registration of 520 being within one or two before vacation commenced.

At Queen Alexandra School, 400 pupils registered of whom 54 were beginners.

The total registration for the four schools was 1753.

Belleville Breeders Clean Up Prizes at Toronto and Ottawa Exhibitions

Mr. Charles Saunders, Baldwin Street, made a clean sweep at the Canadian National Exhibition by winning all firsts and seconds in both young and old light brahma stock and also the silver cup for the best collection of light brahmas as well as the special for the best male bird in the show. He has won the cup for the third time, and this now becomes his permanent property.

Only two weeks ago R. J. Messerver, 6 Read Street, won firsts and seconds with his buff orpingtons at the Ottawa exhibition. The facts go to show that Belleville has boast of good poultry breeders and that there is quality in Belleville.

LEADER OF 'LE GRIFFON' SEARCH PARTY PAYS VISIT TO THE CITY

Captain Fleming Says He Has Reason to Believe Ship La Salle's

TELLS OF FIND

Is the wreck of an ancient ship, found near Manitoulin Island, the gallant galleon in which the Sieur De La Salle, romantic French nobleman, sailed to Canada in 1678 and which was lost to sight of the human ken? Captain Roy Fleming, enthusiastic head of an expedition to the Mississaugi Straits, Lake Superior, where the boat is alleged to have sunk with a load of furs, would like to believe so, but is not yet positively sure.

Mr. Fleming was a brief visitor in Belleville on Saturday. On his way back to Ottawa, where he is a professor in a normal school in the capital city, he stopped off in this city long enough to visit his cousin, Mr. Clarence Reed, Ann Street. When a reporter arrived at the house, Mr. Fleming was just getting ready to start out by motor but he is so enthusiastic about the whole project that he delayed his start long enough to tell a goodly portion of his adventures.

Fascinating.

PROBE DEATHS IN DICKEY LAKE

Jury Find Accidental Drowning in Case of Two Men

The inquest to enquire into the deaths of Rev. Fred Mayhew, pastor of the Standard Church and Samuel Osborne, drowned in Dickey Lake the week before last, was held at the home of the Otter Creek Lumber Company at Dickey Lake on Saturday last. S. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney attended with Dr. Lumb of Bancroft presiding as Coroner. The evidence was not of a lengthy nature and the jury had little difficulty in arriving at a verdict of accidental death in both cases after the evidence had been adduced. Dr. Donnan stated to the Ontario Intelligencer that William Thompson in charge of the boat did everything possible to save the lives of his passenger rescuing at least five of the number. Questioned as to the carrying capacity of the boat, evidence was shown said Mr. Donnan that the boat would carry a much larger load than was in it at the time of the fatality.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS

Fire Caused When Young Man Lights Match at Filling Station

Labor Day traffic and the week-end that preceded the holiday, was the heaviest on record for the summer according to the traffic officers who were riding the highways. A number of minor accidents were reported also by the Traffic Officers and the city police, but none were serious although two or three persons were slightly injured. The traffic started to flow east in an endless stream early Saturday afternoon and late on Labor Day, the same traffic started to move westward. Both Traffic Officer Byles and Frink were constantly on duty and their presence on the road probably prevented more accidents and kept the motorists within bounds as regards speeding and "cutting in."

On Saturday night Harry A. Bernie of Chicago, with his wife and family were travelling west near the Trenton Airport and came to a stop and asked go

"LAUGHING BILL" HERE

"Laughing Bill" Lanrigan, of Toronto, stunt aviator, sea rlea navigator and ace of the sporting world in general, was one of the "Big Shots" to visit Belleville Fair, but as Bill came not as an entertainer but rather as an educator his visit was not as well known as it otherwise would have been. Those who know Bill Lanrigan remember the daredevil stunts he used to pull off as an aviator, hanging by his toes from a wing strut and other hair-raising stunts. One day he was performing one of his difficult stunts in the air with the plane flying upside down when a stream of gasoline struck him and unfortunately became ignited, causing serious damage to his anatomy but not breaking his iron nerve. Despite severe pain he brought his plane out of the spin and landed safely. Recently he has been identified with the sport of "Sea Fox" racing and is one of the topnotchers of this dangerous sport. His visit to the Belleville Fair was in connection with the travelling exhibit of Crane Limited, Montreal, a large and handsome motorized salesroom showing the latest in modern bathrooms, kitchen sinks, water systems and water softeners. Thousands admired this exhibit and were especially taken with the luxurious bath tubs, movable water taps for kitchen sinks etc. The display was given in the interests of the plumbing trade of Belleville and as an eyeopener in showing the rapid strides made recently in modern plumbing for beauty, comfort and convenience. Since the Fair the motorized Crane showroom has been making headquarters in Belleville and visiting nearby places, where thousands have inspected the display, Mr. W. Quinlon is in charge of the display.

PETERBORO, Sept. 2.—Point Anne tied the series with Peterboro C.G.E. in the first round of the O.R.A.A. intermediate, by blanking the Electrics here, Saturday afternoon 6 to 0. On Wednesday the Point Anne club had suffered a 7 to 5 defeat at home. The homesters showed a complete reversal of form over their brilliant display in the first game. Point Anne nabbed three runs in the first inning when they showered Crary from the hill top. Frost was sent in as a relief and he pitched a fine game, errors paving the way for the other two Point Anne counters.

JAMES WHITE IS WINNER IN SWIM

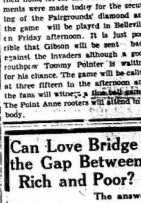
Belleville Boy Defeats List of Athletes at Deseronto

"A big time" was the way Deseronto enthusiasts described the regatta held in that town yesterday, Labour Day. Outboard motor races, inboard motor races, canoe races and swimming races all went to make up a perfect day. James White, of Belleville, won premier honours in the one-mile open swimming race, defeating a celebrated list of athletes. J. Brennan, of Deseronto, was just five minutes behind White in finishing.

No other local athletes or sailors were successful in winning honours in the various events, Mayor George A. Reid, of this city, Mayor Jackie Simpson, of Napanee, and Mayor Boyce, of Deseronto, acted as judges in the events, while Joe Marsh, of Napanee, was official starter. The events ran all afternoon.

POINT ANNE'S GREAT VICTORY

No Mean Achievement to Beat Peterboro At Home



Stepping into the Lift Lock City and defeating the first C.G.E. nine was no small feat and the Point Anne baseball team have been showered with congratulations since their arrival home.

Hoot Gibson was the choice of Jack Marcile, the manager for hurling duties and the confidence was not misplaced for the star right hander turned in a six-hit performance and his team mates fielded sensationally behind him.

After the game Point Anne won the ton for the deciding game and chose their home lot for the contest. Arrangements were made today for the securing of the Fairgrounds' diamond and the game will be played in Belleville on Friday afternoon. It is just possible that Gibson will be sent back against the invaders although a good southpaw Tommy Pointer is waiting for his chance. The game will be called at three fifteen in the afternoon and the fans will witness a first-class game. The Point Anne rooters will attend in a body.

MANN—McLAUGHLIN

OSHAWA, Sept. 2—One of the most interesting of the autumn weddings took place on Saturday at Parkwood, Oshawa, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Samuel McLaughlin, when their daughter, Miss Eleanor Victoria McLaughlin, was married to Lieut. C. Churchill Mann of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, son of Mr. C. Clarence Mann, Orkin Gardens, Toronto. The ceremony took place in the living room against a background of palms, ferns and tall standards of yellow chrysanthemums and pink gladioli. On the mantel were masses of orchids and roses were used in profusion. The wedding music was played on the big pipe organ and the bride came down the curving iron stairway, which was festooned with greenery. With her father she came down an aisle of white satin ribbons to the altar.

Rev. F. J. Maxwell of St. Andrew's Church, Oshawa, assisted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, of Belleville, who officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents, performed the ceremony. Mrs. W. G. Kent of Toronto, presided at the organ and during the signing of the register Mrs. Russell Marshall, Toronto, sang "A Song of Love," composed by Miss Bertha Tambiln of Toronto, an old friends of the bride's family. Dr. Wilson proposed the health of the bride at the post nuptial dinner.

Why PATCH?
A long-lived JM Roof will stop this vicious circle of endless bills
PATCHING a roof that has begun to leak only traps you into an extravagant cycle of repair expenses. In the end you will have spent money to no effect, for you will finally have to buy a complete new roof.
You'll end roofing expense and trouble and gain roof protection and beauty at the lowest cost per year if you go to your nearest building material or lumber dealer and select a roof of Johns-Manville Shingles for your home.
For years Johns-Manville has been a roofing authority. This famous trade-mark on your shingles means full value for every dollar you spend.
On Asbestos Shingles the name Johns-Manville is a guarantee of lifelong service. These J-M Asbestos Shingles are everlasting. Exposure only hardens them. For as long as your house stands this type of J-M Roof will protect it against weather and fire.
At a lower initial cost Johns-Manville offers you long years of freedom from roof trouble and perfect fire protection in J-M Asphalt Shingles. From the day you roof with J-M Asphalt Shingles you will be freed from roofing costs. Think what that means in terms of roof cost per year.
A Colour Harmony to Suit Your Home
In both types of roof you get far more than these practical values of permanence and protection. They make available to you roofs of unusual and striking modern beauty.
Colour specialists created this beauty. Men with a background of long experience in arranging and harmonizing colours in pleasing, decorative effects were retained by Johns-Manville to study roof beauty. The product of their study is the wide range of blends and shades in which you may obtain a durable, fireproof J-M Roof.
Ask your nearest building material or lumber dealer to show you these J-M Roofs and to give you figures to prove to you that a J-M Roof is a paying investment in protection and increased property value.
PLEASED WITH HIS J-M ROOF
Confidence in the Johns-Manville name and in Johns-Manville products was a big factor in influencing Mr. Gordon Miles' choice of roofing materials for his home at 23 Temple Avenue, Toronto. Mr. Miles selected Rigid Asbestos Shingles in mottled grey colour. "I am thoroughly pleased with the appearance of this roof," Mr. Miles told us this year—three years after the roof was put on. In this considered approval there is evidence that the unusual colour harmonies of J-M Roofs give effects that go on giving pleasure year after year.
For built-up roofs on industrial and commercial buildings, apartment houses, etc., specify Johns-Manville Bonded Built-up Roofs. Buying a J-M Roof is buying protection from fire, leaks, care and expense.
Johns-Manville make a specific type of brake-lining for every kind of car. The right lining means longer wearing, surer stopping. Ask your garage man to give a J-M Brake Service look over your brakes.

LATE DR. BURR

Rev. Dr. W. K. Burr who died last week made a contribution to the history of Prince Edward County which cannot be obliterated by time. He rescued many of the early burying places from forgetfulness and abandonment where they had overgrown with weeds and brush, removing almost all the vestiges of the graves of the Loyalists and their pioneering descendants, Cairns and restored graveyards, tell of his work and influence.

His knowledge of the early settlement was tremendously wide and accurate. This county will not soon have a regarder, or antiquarian historian like unto Dr. Burr. He has brought the present to see in their proper relationship to the times the men and women who first "made" this part of Ontario. Under his pen the men and the women of the former age live again.

Such lifeworks as these together with his attractive personality make the fame of Dr. Burr assured because he thought not of himself but of others.

SHOUTS OF CHILDREN

Today school lots which have been silent for months except to the hum of a lawn mower rang with the shouts of the children at play. Thousands of lads and lasses returned today to their classes in various parts of the city to enliven the halls, use up some of their stored up energy, and begin again under instruction the training of their impressionable minds for their lifework which so far is a mere blur to many of them. The future they do not know but they like wise beings take the present for enjoyment and for the instruction which will stand them in the place for which they are best fitted.

If children do not like to go to school they do not show it. Nowhere is there so much gaiety as on the schoolgrounds where the chums who have been separated since June are met again and the future appears bright as the day an opened book. A whole new world swims into their ken as they step on the threshold of another term and are initiated under teachers' instruction into their new worlds.

PARTAKES OF BOTH

This is the midway month. It partakes of both summer and autumn. September is one of the finest of the months of the year and often almost deceives with its warmth. One poet speaks of the bees as thinking "warm days will never cease because summer has o'erbrimmed their clammy cells." Many a late September day is extremely warm and for that people are glad. But this is also the month of the first frosts and there are signs that the weather is going to change for frost is not far off at nights and the leaves soon after fall.

PRICES

There is a feeling that the price of flour and bread should come down and an investigation has been asked for in Toronto. Prices of wheat are lower than they have been for many years but flour is still high and bread appears still high in price. Many feel that the drop in commodity prices ought soon to reach the consumer.

FROM THE RESORTS

Much of the life has gone out of summer resorts for the year with the withdrawal of August 1930 into the never returning abyss of time. Brief life is the portion of resorts but this year it seemed a little more prolonged than ever. There hace undoubtedly been more long spells of warm weather this year than in many summers past.

BEWARE, MOTORISTS!.

Motorists must drive with a greater sense of care now for their conduct on the road may mean cancellation of driving permit or may lead to such a high rate of insurance protection in the event of accidents as will force the drivers off the road because they are unable to secure protection.

Some protection had to be had against the reckless man who did not insure his car because he was too poor to do so or because he did not care. Now if an uninsured driver is assessed damages in court following action his driving right is withheld until he guarantees to the courts that he is capable of meeting any obligation which the use of a car may impose upon him. If a man is reckless the insurance rates take cognizance of that tendency.

Insurance and careful driving are the only wise things now.

DYNAMITERS' CLUB

The Dynamiters' Club of General Motors, Oshawa, formed to "blast" away and dispel the business depression which is felt to be in a large measure psychological are meeting with success. The original two thousand buttons have run out and daily more have to be ordered as the battalion of gloom chasers organize. Other companies are joining the club and swelling the movement which is beginning to have an interest far beyond that originally intended.

The very name "dynamite" signifies determination and the dealing of a deathblow to what it attacks. The club members have smashed their way into prominence, have started improvement in business in the home town, and have begun to blast away the attitude of mind existing with regard to the future of business. The Dynamiters believe that times are what organizations and public feeling make them. With Dynamiters in control there is no doubt which would come, good times or bad. Of course they would be good.

He who sows the seed of fear and doubt is not a dynamiter. The former just tears down while the dynamiter blasts his way to a goal which is always one which marks progress.

General Motors in starting this scheme originally planned this club for their own salesmen but the story got out at a Rotary meeting and it was world news thereafter. No one in the present state of business can scarcely imagine what may not be the results of this happy thought reaching outside the General Motors organization into the round world.

It is no wonder that other clubs have followed.

SIDELIGHTS

SAID THE LITTLE BLACK HEN

Said the little Red Rooster, "Gosh all hemlock! Things are tough.
Seems that worms are getting scarcer, and I cannot find enough.
What's become of all those fat ones is a mystery to me;
There were thousands thru that rainy spell, but now where can they be?"

The Old Black Hen who heard him didn't grumble or complain;
She had gone thru lots of dry spells, she had lived thru floods of rain.
So she flew up on the grindstone, and gave her claws a whet,
As she said, "I've never seen the time there weren't worms to get."

She picked a new and undug spot; the earth was hard and firm.
The little rooster jeered, "New ground! That's no place for a worm."
The Old Black Hen just spread her feet, she dug both fast and free.
"I must go to the worms," she said: "the worms won't come to me."

The rooster vainly spent his day, thru habit, by the ways
Where fat round worms had passed in squads back in rainy days.
When nightfall found him supperless, he growled in accents rough.
"I'm hungry as a fowl can be. Conditions sure are tough."

He turned then to the Old Black Hen and said, "It's worse with you,
For you're not only hungry, but must be tired I reckon."

I rested while I watched for worms, so I feel fairly perk;
But how are you? Without worms too? And all that hard work?"

The Old Black Hen hopped to her perch and dropped her eyes to sleep,
And murmured in a drowsy tone, "Young man, hear this and weep:
I'm full of worms and happy. For I've dined both long and well.
The worms are there as always—but, I had to Dig Like Hell.!"

CANADA WILL HAVE a new seaport in the spring when Churchill, Canada's youngest metropolis, will spring full limbed, robust and eager into the life of the nation. Churchill will be different from most mushroom towns of boom times which have sprung up as the result of gold, silver or oil being found close by. The real estate speculator will not know Churchill and that picturesque feature of boom town life will be very much missing, with corner lots whittled down to the lowest possible dimension selling at hit the sky prices. No! Churchill begins decently and in order and with all the decorum of the dedication of a new church in Pompkins Corners. Corner lots in Churchill will not be for sale, the government having laid out the town site will lease all property for long terms and no one will be permitted to locate in Churchill who has not a clean bill of health from other communities and a financial background which will guarantee permanence. Churchill is a model community, carefully planned with a hand-picked population, it will be interesting to see just how it works out. Being an unbeliever the writer will be very much astonished if it works out at all, restrictions have a habit of preventing healthy growth.

ONE HUNDRED AND ONE YEARS OLD, and never rode in an automobile, until never was married, Ann Wilson Stout, Flemington, New Jersey, was gathered to her fathers last week. She was born February 28, 1829, and taught school in New Jersey before the Civil War in the United States. Up to the time of her death she could read without glasses and was apparently in good health to the last. She approved the modern girl and maintained that rouge and lipstick were permissable if artistically applied, insisted on eight hours sleep regularly and plenty of exercise.

landlubbers and Mr. Fleming is no exception to the rule. He has that far-away gleam in his eye that denotes constant searching of heaving waters for a spar that is peeping above the waves, when he talks of his project he betrays that almost fanatic-ism which must be an integral part of the make-up of the leader of such an expedition as set out to find "Le Griffon". Le Salle's ship.

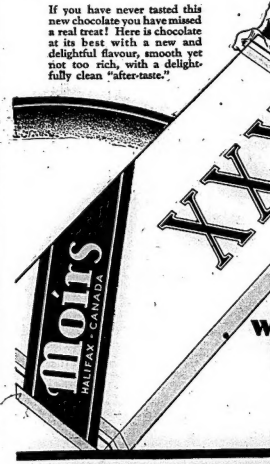
Roy Fleming has been on two expeditions. The first one set out from the United States and was composed with the exception of Mr. Fleming, of Americans. The expedition, Mr. Fleming stated, started from Wyandotte, Michigan, and picked him up at Southampton. After cruising about for four or five days, the party landed on Manitoulin Island. But there was one difficulty. The sunken ship, being in Canadian waters, the salvage of such belongs to the Canadian Government, and although the American party was perfectly welcome to look around to its heart's content, no salvage was to be taken.

Canadian Search

So another expedition was formed—a Canadian expedition, under the authority of the Provincial Works, Department of Ontario. This expedition was headed by Mr. Fleming and Thomas Batman and O. H. Agnew formed the other members of the party. The searchers are just back after two weeks of inquiry. I was at the wreck for two or three days and while there picked up a good many relics. "We have found no definite means of identity," Mr. Fleming stated to The Ontario Intelligencer on Saturday, "but from native construction and Indian, local and marine tradition the expedition has reason to believe that the wreck is that of "Le Griffon."

Huge Jaw Bone

There should have been six skeletons found, the remains of the crew of the gallant "Griffon". Only two bones turned up, but a massive jaw bone, which only a page man like Captain Luc, of "Le Griffon" could possess, was found. This jaw bone was fitted around the jaw of the largest resident Manitoulin Island, and he was a veritable giant. Mr. Fleming would have us know. The jaw bone fitted nicely and left plenty of room besides. As well six large bolts were unearthed. Mr. Fleming had one of those in his possession on Saturday.



Look For Coins

It is hoped that some French coins or some of the remains of the cargo of furs may be uncovered in the near future, when the expedition returns. If these are found, it will practically prove for certain that the wreck is the ancient "Le Griffon" and that will be a feather in Mr. Fleming's cap for he is the moving spirit of the expedition.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

Mr. Allan got right to the point.

"How brave do you feel?" he asked her abruptly. He looked fat and dyspeptic and finished with life.

Cathie paled a little. "I feel very brave," she said steadily. But her heart was crying . . . Oh, now something's happened ..... now when he's back, and I was feeling happy .... If it only could have come before, when I wasn't caring .. ..

TALKS TOO MUCH

"I don't mind telling you that you are in a fine hole," he said. "This boy friend of yours coming on the scene, and you all smiles and blushes won't help ONE BIT. She killed the old one, for she, young one' ——do you see? I foresaw that. Tried to build up a history of abuse for you, tried to give you a decent motive . But you've ruined all that. Only this morning in your interview with the press you told how good Farnsworth was to you. Bah! What sympathy will they have for you? You've got to stop talking. I won't allow any more interviews, but the damage is all done."

She looked at him, not quite comprehending. She was still so happy.

"Well, I didn't do it , and there's all there is to it. My word is as good as Chester's isn't it?"

He looked at her glumly. "My dear young lady. They've got a witness downstairs. They're going to bring you down to be identified in a few minutes. Now come clean with me. Tell me the truth, or I'll have to drop the case. Confess and I'll save your freedom and my reputation. Hold out on me, and sure as I'm Jesse Partington Allan, the best you can hope for is life!"

CHAPTER 42

"LIFE ..... the best you can hope for is life!" Mr. Allan said that. It kept echoing in Cathie's ears while they were on their way downstairs. It seemed funny, leaving the little familiar cell and riding downstairs in an elevator. A policeman with red hair and a big nose operated the elevator. Cathie shrank back, close to Mr. Allan. She felt shy and nervous. Hoped there wouldn't be any people in the halls... "Life"—she. Cathie Farnsworth, who used to be Cathie Page, to be shut up in jail all her life? For something she didn't do! It was crazy. Didn't Gordon say he'd have her out by tomorrow?

Cathie stole another look at Mr. Allan. Mr. Jesse Partington Allan, who was supposed to be such a big lawyer. Everybody said he was wonderful. He didn't look very wonderful. Just a gross fat man with a bald head, and a big stomach..... Talking about her getting life for nothing!

"THAT'S HER"

The elevator came to a stop and Cathie tossed her hair back impatiently. Maybe she'd better get another lawyer. She'd speak to Gordon about it tomorrow .

"This way, Mrs. Farnsworth, please!" the cop from they took her to was filled with men.

"Yes, that's her!"

Cathie jumped. A funny looking little man with walrus whiskers and a high squeaky voice like a woman's, was pointing at her excitedly. "That's her!" he cried again. "I couldn't see her face good ,but that was about the build, and her hair. I'd know her hair, the way it looked in the moonlight!"

Cathie looked at the inspectors, and at Mr. Allan. Nobody said anything. They just walked her right through the room and out again into the corridor. The elevator door opened and the policeman with the red hair and the big nose took them upstairs again, to the women's quarters.

"Mr. Allan!"

"Yes, Mrs. Farnsworth."

"Mr. Allan, do you mean to tell me that that man I never saw before in my life identified me and they're going to take his word for it!"

LAWYER REBUKED

"Oh, no. We don't take anyone's word for anything. Still it will all help to corroborate Chester Farnsworth's story. As I told you before, I don't like lies—"

"Don't like it. It's the silliest thing I ever heard in my life! I never SAW the man before. Why didn't they give me a chance to talk! I'd have told him——"

Mr. Allan smiled. "That's the spirit! Get as mad as you like. Get same fight in you. Then we—"

"Why don't YOU get some fight?" Cathie flared. "Why didn't you tell him? Oh, this is——law—law— It makes me sick. Why, I'll be an old woman before they let me get up and say what really happened! Why can't I tell them . . .oh, what's the use! A perfectly strange man walking in and saying he saw me ....saw me doing what? Shooting my husband!"

Allan shook his head, but he didn't smile. "The man is an elevator operator in an apartment house out there in the Presidio Terrace district. He was walking down to the car line when he passed your house and heard the shot. He says he saw a woman stick her head out of the window—"

IN OWN ROOM

"Wait! Wait—I think I did. I mean I'm sure I did. I heard the shot, and I thought it was probably a tire blowing out, so I got up after a minute and went to the window—"

"Yes, but weren't you in your own room at the time?"

"Of course! And I looked out—diagonally you know, to street, but there were no cars, and I didn't even see the man!"

"Sure you were in your room—on the side? You weren't on your husband's room?"

"No. Why, if I'd been in there..... Mr. Allan, DON'T you believe what I'm telling you? Because if you don't there isn't any use of my trying—"

Mr. Allan wiped his bald head. "My dear girl, I'm only trying to help you. Try to trust me—please."

"Yes, but that man couldn't have seen me in the front room because I wasn't there. And if he saw me in my room it helps us—my story I mean. Doesn't it?"

"It would. But unfortunately that isn't his story. He says he saw you in the FRONT room....so you see that's what we're up against. But don't worry I'll take care of it. In the proper time and place....There.... don't worry .. If we never have anything worse than this to combat we'll be all right."

FATE REALIZED

Suddenly he got up and lumbered away, but the next day he was back again, and the next and the next.

For Gordon hadn't obtained Cathie's release, and the attorneys persuaded Cathie it would be best for her not to see him, for the present at least. They were bringing pressure to bear to keep his name out of the newspaper stories, Cathie must co-operate by not asking for him now.

Says Mrs. M. W. Kaley After Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills

New Brunswick lady is enthusiastic about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, N.B., Sept. 1 (Special)—Of the many persons paying their tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is noticeable that the great majority are women. The reason given for this being that nearly all of women's ills come from the kidneys.

The following statement comes from Mrs. M. W. Kaley, R.R. No. 2, Woodstock, N.B.:

"When I was a young girl I had a lame back. It used to hurt me to stand up to any work. I took quite a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and have never had a lame back since. I have also given them to my boy for involuntary urination and found them good. My husband has also taken them."

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co. Limited, Toronto.

DUST IS BLAMED FOR BAD CRASH

Mrs. Howard Thompson is Cut About Face and Neck

An accident, which might have proved fatal to Mrs. Howard Thompson of Thomasburg, took place two miles south of Tweed on Saturday night, shortly before midnight. Mrs. Thompson was severely cut about the face and neck with flying glass, when the car in which she was riding, driven by her husband, was struck head on by a car driven by Clarence Ervine, of Tweed, with William Quinn, of Tweed, and the Misses Restrick, of Lost Channel, as occupants. Mrs. Thompson was taken to Tweed hospital by Dr. M. G. Dales, of Tweed, after visiting the scene, and it required fifteen stitches to close the wounds on her neck and face. She will be a patient of the hospital for some days but is expected to recover. One cut on the neck was perilously near to the jugular vein and had it been a little deeper, her life would have been despatched of. Quinn, the driver of the other car, was cut about the face and other members of the party shaken up but medical attention only was required at the surgery of Dr. Dales and they were able to return to their own homes. The cars implicated were complete wrecks.

The accident occurred at a small cement bridge two miles south of Tweed on the Belleville highway and was caused, it is understood, from flying dust. Mr. Thompson with his wife and two other passengers whose names were not ascertained, were returning home to Thomasburg after shopping in Tweed, while the car driven by Quinn was going north. There is a slight curve coming up to the bridge but not sufficient for drivers not seeing each other as they approach the bridge. Apparently a car had passed some time before and the dust had not settled and the cars met head on practically on the bridge which is wide enough for two cars to pass. The cars became a twisted mass of steel and the occupants of both were thrown about. Each party helped the others to extricate the passengers from the wreckage and Dr. Dales was soon in attendance. Mrs. Thompson, the most seriously injured suffered considerably from loss of blood, before being removed to the Tweed hospital. The Provincial police investigated the accident.

BELL TELEPHONE SQUAD REGISTER 11 TO 4 WIN AT EXPENSE OF LOCALS IN FIRST GAME OF O.B.A.A. SERIES

Cheap Home Run Drives Mount Score Against Nationals. Breaks Were Against Locals With Hurling Not Good. Batstone, Jennings and A. Scott of Opposition, Purnell Horsehide Out at Park. Nationals Guilty of Costly Mistakes in Judgment.

BY C. D. T.

Had "Vern" Weir used his team mates to complete double plays, had "Dusty" Flagler caught a line drive after reaching the horse hide and had the drive that Alex Weir knocked off Cayley not hit a chimney on the house in centre field, Bellevilla Nationals would have had a chance to defeat the Hello Boys of the Bell Telephone in the first game of the Senior O.B.A.A. playdowns contested at Conboy Park in Toronto on Saturday last. As it was these breaks cost the team the game by a score of 11-4 with the return game to be played in this city tomorrow and what a game it should be, remembering the contest these teams furnished last year with Alex Weir in the stellar role.

Conboy Park a Joke

Mostly has been said of the asking of outside teams to come into Toronto and play in a chicken coop, when they are used to having a diamond that answers all requirements in the matter of dimensions. Probably it will be argued that it as fair for one team as another, that being true in so far as it goes. Outside teams are not used to being limited to close quarters and their play is materially effected, while Toronto team, especially the Bell Telephone squad is right at home. Followers of amateur ball in Toronto will tell one that the Hello Boys are practically unbeatable at Conboy Park and they are just another team when playing off that lot. The result of the game on Saturday would prove the contention as they made no mistake and capped their cheap home runs with the Belleville team standing by watching the horsehide drift idly over the fence, Two of the fines would have been easy outs in the Belleville park, while the third cleared the fence in left field on the first bounce. As our supporter from Belleville remarked, "It was the first time a home run was called on the first baseman and he was going to look into it." "Peeney" Mills stated after the game he could not do better as he had hopped up in a hurry and felt hemmed in. The Belleville team made a good showing in the first game and there is no reason it may receive a fair pitching a third game should not be necessary.

Off Day For Alex

Certainly it was not Alex Weir's day as the southpaw was relieved early from labor in the fifth frame. The second guessers could have had a good deal of fun at the game. Fast "Moose" Darrah pitched fair ball in his sojourn on the hurling peak and the result might have been different had he started. Alex had an stuff to fool the heavy hitters of the Telephone team and his curve ball was completely out of control. Again Alex was put in several bad holes by his team mates but he did not lose courage until he was taken out. Darrah's curve ball, when breaking properly, had the opposition baffled but he lost that in the last frames and they rode his offerings hard. Alex walked three and his two batters also only struck out three, which in the final analysis was not good pitching on his part. Darrah walked five, two and struck out the same number. All of the opposition's hits came in the pinches and when batters were occupying the runners. Alex Belleville's blows, only two less than secured by the Bells, were scattered excepting in one frame.

Second Frame Disastrous

The second frame was disastrous from a National standpoint and probably gave the Telephone team enough confidence to go on and win. Two glaring errors were made in the frame one by George Scott on an attempted double steal, he throwing wide to the plate to get the runner and the other by Vern Weir, when he messed up a grounder with an easy double play in sight. The tough break of the afternoon came in the Nationals fourth and had the break been with them, the game would have been tied up and a different complexion put on the pastime. Harry Mills had been hit and Cayley advanced him a base with a single. Alex Weir caught one of Cayley's shoots on the nose and bounced it on the roof in centre field. The ball, instead of dropping out of the park, hit a chimney and rolled back into the diamond and he was held to a single. In the Belleville park it was good for the circuit easily.

Cayley was Good

The Nationals faced a southpaw for the first time this season and contrary to expectations, Cayley went the route. The Bells are about handed with regards to pitching talent as "Norm" Moffat is the only reliable hurler on the staff. This boy has pitched 48 innings in the past eight days previous to the game on Saturday and he refused to work the pastime. They gambled with Cayley and won and in passing, he pitched a smart game. His control was good, his curve was breaking, and the change of pace had the locals baffled. He was reached for only two doubles during the game, all the rest of the hits were scattered and Cayley had the most success against his offerings, when he registered a perfect day with three hits and a walk in four trips. Cayley's team mates took him over several rough spots by perfect fielding. "Pinky" Clarke at short and Bill Sinderman at second being prominent. Red Batstone, a former Central League player, played a smart game on the first sack as well as directing the team excellently on the field. His hit to right over the fence was a clean drive, while the blow of Alex Scott's was the hardest hit ball of the afternoon, although it had no licence to be labelled for the circuit.

Many former residents of Belleville and interested in the ball team were at the game on Saturday at Conboy Park and rooted hard for the locals. Percy Cole, a former scribe on The Ontario-Intelligencer and now of the Telegram staff did not fall in his allegiance to his home town and sat on the National bench during the game. Stan. Burgoyne, who will be prominent in hockey circles this winter as coach of the local teams, was on hand and stated he would be in Belleville early to line up the programme for the winter season. The Toronto contingent received a good natured panning from the Belleville supporters over the layout of Conboy Park and ask of the fathe to come down to Belleville and inspect a first-class diamond.

X—X—X

Point Anne ball team is to be congratulated in stepping into the Lift Lock City on Saturday and taking a game from the C. H. E. to even the series. Hoot Gibson was the hero in the battle hurling a three-hit game to make the former Central Ontario League stars eat out of his hand as he has done on many former occasions. Josh Mandrie, manager of the Cementmen is to be commended in having faith enough in his starry right hander to send him back with only three days rest. Gibson should have won his game at home on Wednesday last with any kind of support. Point Anne won the toss for the third game and chose their home for the fray. This game will be played on Wednesday and will interfere with many of the fans who wish to see both games. It would be well for Point Anne to play on Thursday or Friday. Josh Mandrie states he will start Tommy Pointer against the Electricians at home and this boy should come through with any kind of support.

X—X—X

Given fine weather tomorrow the fairgrounds should contain a large crowd to see the second game between Bell Telephone and Nationals. These teams have met three times in the playoff series with each winning once and this year is the rubber series. All will remember the first game pitched by Alex. Weir against the Bells last year and with the long rest and the workout he had on Saturday should be in the pink. If Alex is right he can take the measure of the Bells for speed pitching with a good curve will take them. Bellas are none too confident the series is over and will bring down practically the same team as used on Saturday. Norm. Moffat the only hurler on the staff will get the call for pitching duties. Nationals will play better in their home lot with the home crowd cheering them on. The game with the Bells will differ from even any fan should be in the stands. The umpires will likely be up and another batter from the district.

Nationals not Fielding

The Nationals did not field as in their stride with Vern Weir having a tough day at second. The star second sacker is usually sound in his fielding but his errors of commission were costly to the team. He ran back into short right and prevented Cretney from making a catch and on two separate hits to his territory failed to throw to Scott at second with easy outs made in sight. Weir tried to tag the runner coming down and then make the play at first and both of them were slower. George Scott made a fine play on the double steal, which accounted for a run and "Dusty" Flagler dropped a ball lined into his hands, which let a run coming afterwards to score the both runners. There was only one feature play of the day, turned in by the Bells, when Pinky Clarke combined to make a double play after the first National top had singled. The bottom half of the Telephone lineup was poison to the Nationals all the afternoon. The Nationals were not disgraced in the game and will be back tomorrow to offer sterner competition.

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the baby is troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the finest delicate baby, and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-worn infant.

Per Capita Basis For School Grant

TORONTO, Sept. 2—Redistribution of the present general school grants by the province on a per capita and mean expend ture basis and establishment of a new Government staff office to supervise positions for semi-employable war veterans who are not receiving adequate pensions were announced by Premier Ferguson at the Exhibition directors' luncheon.

Both changes in governmental policy were greeted with hearty applause by the large Labor Day audience at the luncheon, bearing little doubt as to Labor's appreciation of those amendments.

The change in the method of distributing school grants, the Premier stated would not come into effect for another year, as this year's local school rates have already been set.

However, the appointment of Col. William Rhodes, military veteran with 25 years of distinguished service, who will assume the duties of the new office in the interests of inadequately pensioned veterans, will be made shortly.

TRAFFIC UPON HIGHWAY WAS HEAVIEST YET

the south side of the highway facing east. As they approached the parked car, Russell J. Bailey of Hanover pulled out from behind the parked car and collided with the Bernier car, both cars being considerably damaged but none injured. The car was damaged but of the passengers in either car being injured. Traffic Officer Ryles investigated and arrested Bailey, taking him to Trenton for an emergency court hearing. He was charged with reckless driving and pleading guilty was fined $10.00 and costs and paid the damages to Bernier's car amounting to $20.00.

On Sunday near the same place as the previous accident, Leo Haulahan of Lindsay, driving a Ford coach, applied his brakes too quickly in trying to avoid striking another car travelling in the same direction, the car turning out of the way on its side in the middle of the highway. The car was damaged but Haulahan escaped uninjured.

Near Bide-a-Wee camp, Mrs. John L. Heiss of Rochester received a bad shaking up, when the car which her husband was driving collided with another car attempting to make a left turn on the highway. Michael Mahoney of Steenburg, Ont., was travelling west, following a car to which a trailer was attached. Mahoney tried to make a left turn behind the trailer and when the turn had been partly completed, Heiss have in sight and a collision followed. Mrs. Heiss was thrown against the front of the car and complained of a back injury, when Traffic Officer Ryles arrived on the scene to investigate. After the circumstances of the accident were explained, the traffic officer did not hold Mahoney on a breach of the traffic act but Mahoney took responsibility for the accident and paid the damages caused to Heiss' car.

Several minor accidents were reported to the local police over the holiday. Joe Schannerhorn, driver for the Rawson Bus Line, reported to the police that his truck was sideswiped on Saturday afternoon near Campbell and Front Street, but the driver did not stop to give his name and address. The car, that caused the accident, was trying to pass another car and sideswiped the bus by being too close. Mr. Schannerhorn was fortunate in securing the number of the car and gave same to the police, who will investigate.

A young man who did not wish his name used, nearly lost his car by fire at the service station at the corner of Bridge and Front Street, Saturday night. He drove into the station to fill up with gas, Mr. Albert Holway being the attendant. Apparently the car had no gas gage on and the young man lit a match near the rear of the car. The fumes took fire and spread along the rear of the car. Mr. Holway threw some water on the flames but this did not check them and the fire extinguisher was called into use before the blaze was put out.

Henry Cook, aged 72 years, resident at 113½ Cannifton Road, was thrown against the bumper of a car and then to the roadway on Saturday afternoon near Boyce's Garage. He was shaken up and slightly cut on the left hand but otherwise uninjured. John P. McCabe of Marysville, was the driver of the car at the time and according to the police, who investigated, Mr. McCabe was travelling at a slow rate of speed, when the man was struck. Mr. Cook was taken home by the driver of the car.

The police received a call to the home of Samuel Carson, 106 Cannifton Road, on Saturday night, where a fight was in progress between Mr. Carson and Arthur Pechette, a roomer in the house. It is alleged that Mr. Carson was assaulting his wife when Pechette took a hand in the proceedings. The men fought out in the centre of the road, Pechette sustaining a sprained thumb, while the clothes on both the men were torn. Mrs. Carson, it is further alleged, after she broke away from her husband, ran to the home of John LaBarge at 108 Cannifton Road, her husband following her and shortly after the fight began in the centre of the road. The police have laid no charges as yet.

Reception last night was bad throughout the whole evening, but we will admit it did improve a little bit about ten o'clock or there-bouts then it turned right around and began getting noisy again. It was so rough in the earlier part of the evening we had to listen in to Amos 'n' Andy at their late session.

Bee by the Tely where they were in recent conversation with the famous blackface pair Amos 'n' Andy, telephone conversation that is. It seems that President Aylesworth of the NBC was a visitor to the Royal York studio recently and a telephone connection was made to Hollywood where the boys are making a picture. From all reports the idea was quite a success and Amos' voice came in very distinctly.

Tuesday night and that means Troika Bells from WEAF at 7 EST with Cenia Fonariova, soprano, and the Balalaika orchestra. At 7.30 the Fleischeim Frolic, heard over WEAF of course and somehow that name sounds mighty familiar. Didn't we have that program checked up on our list last winter as one of our favourites?

Happy Wonder Bakers at 8.30 EST and heard over WEAF remember this means the Singing Violins under the direction of Frank Black, quite an attraction too because everyone got to know and like the violins during the Seiberling presentation last winter.

Still with WEAF at 9.15 EST to hear Cuddles and Monty and right after that the RKO hour. Following that Vincent Lopez and his hotel St. Regis boys will entertain us until it is time for the two Bell hops are on the air to-night and it is mighty funny. The time is 7.45 EST.

WJZ presents the Pure Oil orchestra tonight at 7 EST and at 7.30 EST the program of the Two Troupers who are none other than Helene Hadin and Marcella Shields. Hoppin' Bells the story of the two Bell hops are on the air to-night and it is mighty funny. The time is 7.45 EST.

Westinghouse Salute to-night from WJZ at 8 EST with a male quartet and the Little Symphony orchestra with several well known vocal artists taking part.

TOURIST DOCTOR GAVE ROAD AID

School Girl Was Struck By Fender of Car As She Stepped on Highway

Aleta Stapley, resident on the 2nd concession of Sidney was struck and knocked down by a car driven by George Drury, 1100 Susquehanna Avenue, Pitston Penn, when she was proceeding to Avondale school on the King's highway, one mile west of the city today. The girl was only bruised about the shoulder. Mr. Drury, the driver of the car took the girl to her home, later going for her mother, who was in the city. The driver then reported the accident to Traffic Off cer Byles and with the mother took the child to the hospital to ascertain the extent of the injury. Dr. Connors examined the child and found her to be suffering from a bruised shoulder. Mr. Drury told all medical charges and did every thing to prevent an accident. No charge was laid by Provincial Police officer. According to Mr. Drury the children were walking along the highway towards the Avondale school and when about to pass Miss Stapley stepped up on the highway and was struck by the fender and knocked down. Another tourist car following contained a medical man from the United States and he gave first aid and a superficial examination before the child was taken to her home and at that time he believed the injury to be not serious.

Dissatisfaction in Area of Marmora Over Reimbursement

MANY DISCUSSIONS

Two Officers in Marmora and Madoc Area Will Watch Progress

Dissatisfaction expressed by farmers in the district of Madoc and Marmora, where a high tension line is being run by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission has been brought to the attention of the Provincial Police according to information received by The Ontario Intelligencer and Provincial Constable Orsy of Marmora with Provincial Constable Hill of Madoc, have been detailed to keep the situation in hand.

The farmers are dissatisfied it is said, over the reimbursement received for the property used for the placing of the steel poles which carry the high tension wires, some look upon these poles as a nuisance and as one farmer is reported to have expressed himself, he would rather pay $500.00 cash hard the poles taken off his property although only three poles will be placed thereon.

It is understood the linemen and the farmers have had many discussions and to assist the linemen in their occupation the Provincial Police were notified to look into the matter with the above action.

Foxboro, Roslin and Fuller Charge Invites Rev. Harold Reid to Become New Pastor

Rev. Harold Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Reid, 179 Dundas street east, will in the near future receive a call through the presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Church in Canada to take over the charge of Foxboro, Roslin, and Fuller to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. Mr. Montgomery some months ago. The decision was reached at a meeting of the officials of that charge in Foxboro last night. The call was unanimous and will be sent on to the presbytery for their decision. The charge is hoping for the acceptance of the call by Mr. Reid.

Speaking to Rev. Reid today the Ontario Intelligencer learned that he attended Queen's University in Kingston securing his Bachelor of Arts degree, after which he attended Toronto University securing his Master's degree. Mr. Reid then entered Knox College in Theology and later was ordained to the ministry of the church, which he held for some time. For the past year Rev. Reid has been in Germany and France taking post graduate work.

It may be that Mr. Reid served as instructor in signalling and later in the radio branch of the navy. Asked by the Reporter if he wished to make a statement as to whether he would accept the call when tendered, Rev. Mr. Reid stated he did not feel inclined to make a statement at this time as the decision of the charge had not yet reached the presbytery.

CHINESE BISHOP TO VISIT CITY

Rt. Rev. P. Lindel Tsen Will Speak At Christ Church Hall

Belleville will be favored with a visit of Rt. Rev. P. Lindel Tsen, Assistant Bishop in the Anglican Diocese of Monan and the first Chinese Bishop in the Canadian Church missionary field. On Tuesday night next the missionary will be held for the members of the Church Parish Hall, where a banquet will be held for the members of the Anglican's Young People and a few invited guests to hear the distinguished visitor. He is returning from the Lambeth conference and will give a number of addresses in Canada before leaving for his homeland. Bishop Tsen believes that the present unrest in China is but the pang of a re-birth of that country and within it not very distant period tranquility will prevail. There is confus'on in China because of various factions of the Chinese, with different motives, seeking their own ambitions and the Common's influences strong in some sections. He believes that eventually the present Government would gain full control. Regarding the two women missionaries held captive by bandits, he believes that while they were held primarily for ransom they were bring found of such value to their captors in nursing and tending the wounded that the bandits were treating them well and were eager to retain their services.

CHILD STRUCK BY MOTOR CAR

Mack-Royal Sustained Cut on Side of Head

Mack Royal, aged four years, was struck and knocked down on Herbert avenue, yesterday afternoon, but not seriously injured by a car driven by William Clair, 52 Baldwin street. The youngster sustained a bad cut on the side of the head but not sufficient to require medical attention. City Traffic Officer Bert Prink investigated and did not hold the driver as the facts showed the affair was accidental. Brakes on Mr. Clair's car were tested by the officer and found to be excellent.

Mr. Clair was driving north on Bleecker Avenue and was forced to stop at the railway tracks for a child on the tracks. The car was still in second gear, when Mack Royal answering his sister's call ran across the street from the east to the west side. It was impossible to avoid striking the child and the slowness at which the car was proceeding probably save the child from serious injury. Mr. Clair rendered every assistance.

WOMAN INJURED AS CAR DITCHES

Mrs. William B. Thompson Sustains Laceration of Scalp

While the driver apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car about two o'clock on Tuesday morning, September 2nd., an automobile driven by Alec Gibson, of Brantford, working for the McGregor Construction Company of Napanee, hurtled into the ditch just west of Trenton and Mrs. William B. Motorists and New Law as to Liability Some Drivers Have Put on Protection

The indoining of the new act regarding motor accidents and civil liability has had one effect already, a local insurance man told the reporter of The Ontario Intelligencer today. It has made a number of people place liability insurance on their cars, "but not as many as we would like".

"A great many people are talking about the new act and we expect that most of these who do not carry indemnity and public liability insurance will put it on when they come to realize the effect of the act," he said.

Under the new law if after an action judgment is given in any amount against a motorist, he will not be permitted to drive his car again until such time as he can show that he has satisfied the court by the payment of the judgment and also that he is financially able or that he carries insurance to protect the public against damage by him. Insurance premiums are graded, so that a driver who proves himself responsible for an accident will pay a higher premium.

PAYMENT BY FAT CONTENT CALLED ACTUAL BENEFIT

Dairyman Indicates How New Regulations Help Farmer

CONSUMER HELPED

Farmer Paid in Proportion to Amount of Butter Fat in Milk

Of benefit both to the farmer and to the ultimate consumer are the new regulations that provide additional health safeguards in dairy production set standards and determine the grade of milk used for the products, according to their tested quality. These regulations will be put into effect immediately, Howard Clarke, manager of the Citizens Dairy here, stated to the press today. In other words, milk will be bought from the farmer and paid for according to its butterfat contents, thus the farmer will have a chance to get more money for superior milk, and it will encourage the development of betters herds in this territory.

It was the practice of dairies before to buy their milk by the weight. The new regulations will improve the quality from a butterfat standpoint and the farmer will be paid in proper proportion for his product. The new act states:—All milk received at a milk and cream distributing plant which is sold or distributed in liquid form for human consumption shall be purchased on a uniform standard of 3.4 per cent butter fat. For milk testing from 3.4 per cent to 4.5 per cent. fat, the purchaser shall add four cents per hundred pounds of milk for each one-tenth of one per cent fat above the standard, and for milk testing below 3.4 per cent fat the purchaser shall deduct four cents per hundred pounds of milk for each one-tenth of one per cent below the standard.

"It will be seen from this that a difference of one per cent in the milk and cream a difference of forty cents in the purchase price of a hundred pounds of milk. Milk testing above 4.5 per cent fat will be purchased as may be purchased on any basis."

"A premium of one cent per pound will be paid for milk of the first grade cream over first grade cream, and a premium of three cents per pound will be paid for first grade cream over second grade cream."

LITTLE IS SENT UP FOR TRIAL AFTER HEARING

Preliminaries in Case Of Alleged Attempted Jail Breaker

GOVERNOR'S STORY

Two Other Prisoners Will Appear in Court Tomorrow

David Little, charged with attempting to break jail and assaulting the turnkey of the County Jail Robert McCulling appeared in police court today before Magistrate Mikel for preliminary hearing. B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney conducting the prosecution and R. E. Arnott was present for the accused. Only the evidence of Will Ketcheson the governor of the jail was taken and Magistrate Mikel found on the evidence sufficient to commit the accused for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction. The press was informed by the defense counsel that he would apply for a speedy trial before His Honor the County Judge instead of waiting for the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court.

The accused was brought into court securely handcuffed by Warden Tom Ketcheson and the "bracelets" were not removed during the hearing. Little remand was not up until tomorrow morning and therefore there were no spectators in the court while the hearing took place.

Tom Ketcheson gave a concise account of the alleged attempted jail break and the assault and Mr. Magistrate was not hesitant in committing the man for trial. Asked before the commitment if he had anything to say, Little stated "not at this time". Warden Ketcheson stated the affair took place on Sunday night at seven o'clock in the evening. Mr. Colling and himself were locking up the prisoners in the north corridor after locking up the prisoners in the lower corridor and locking the door. Little was sleeping in the cell off the kitchen and was to be taken down after the corridor was locked. At the time the assault started Little was standing by the cell door evidently waiting to be taken to the kitchen cell, when a noise was heard and as Mr. Ketcheson stepped to ascertain the cause he was hit from behind by Little. Ketcheson called Clerence McDonald according to the evidence and about that time Colling was on his back and Ketcheson was fighting Little. "McDonald came and went to Colling's assistance and I had to get a billy," said the witness, "and at this time Ken Colling walked to go to assist his father. Later Governor Ketcheson received a cut on the head of the stairs."

Donnan—What instruments if any were used to hit you with?"

"I did not see any but later a piece of gas pipe, a lead for the cell keys was found.

"What was Colling's condition?"

"He was in bed for some days and complained of a sore back."

"What was Ken Colling's condition?"

"Had cuts about the head and was dazed."

To Parents of School Children

I believe the following message just recently delivered over Station WLW, Cincinnati, by Dr. Ralph D. Heinel, President of Penn State University will be deserving of attention, stressing as it does the value of vision to school students.

"We are all students; it is the inherent desire of present day Americans to absorb as much knowledge as possible in order that our lives might be finer and better and that we may reap the benefits of the real joy of living. Our everyday learning comes to us through our eyes and ears, and most of it admittedly is gained through the eyes. Scientific developments of almost automatic frequency are brought to us as valuable additions to our stores of knowledge, and it is impossible for even nature's science automatically to maintain perfect vision in the almost constant strain necessary in the pursuit of learning. The sound mind must have a sound body, and if the eye is defective, a considerable source of the mind's supply of new information is cut off. We, therefore, deem it highly important that all Penn State students undergo a rigid physical examination and receive professional advice and assistance in the proper care of their bodies, including the important care of the eyes. We are all students, but to make progress the human machine must function perfectly in all its parts."

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. B. Martin

Midiron Club Becoming Obsolete One shot, almost forgotten today

on the lings, is not without its merits despite the fact that it has been discarded by many experts. In the days when the irons were not numbered and there were fewer of them, the midiron was the star club of the kit. It could be used for all distances where a brassie or a cleek was not pressed into service and it could be used sometimes with more certainty than a mashie for short shots.

The runup with a midiron was always considered safe and usually sure as there was little chance for errors. It was particularly a fine shot in the wind and still could be used to great advantage where there are no imposing traps. Golfers who have played and know the run up mourn its passing.

Eclectric Oil will take the fire out of Fur Burns and Scalds—Dr. Thomas' a burn or scald. It should be at hand in every kitchen so that it may be available at any time. There is no prep aration required. Just apply the oil to the burn or scald and the pain will abate and in a short time cease altogether.

AN APPEAL!

to the Younger Generation!

We ask you for a square deal, Younger Generation! You know you pride yourselves on being good sports—on giving the other fellow a break. Well, give us a break right now!

Starting (Thursday), Cyril Maude, the distinguished actor, makes his first in (Belleville) at the Belle Theatre in "Grumpy," Paramount's all talking dramatization of Mr. Maude's own great comedy stage success. But younger generation, you'll probably be a bit skeptical about this picture's title. And you'll wonder Who is Cyril Maude, anyway?

Well, "Grumpy" is the fond nick-name given a lovable grouchy old tyrant by his grand-children. Just think a bit, and you will recall a similar person in your own family—or perhaps the family next door. A fussy, grumbling old soul, with a heart of gold.

Cyril Maude is the great English actor who has been playing the role of "Grumpy" for years—in every English speaking country; and at command performances before British royalty!

"GRUMPY" has a love story—the kind all you young romantics dream about and wish your own.

"GRUMPY" has an exciting plot which makes the newest murder mystery dull by comparison!

In short, Younger Generation, "GRUMPY" was made for you! We know you'll like it! Now—give us a break! Come see "GRUMPY". If you don't like it—money back!

We believe—"Grumpy" will prove the funniest and most unusual picture of the year. It is side-splitting comedy-thrilling mystery and tender romance all blended into perfect entertainment by the genius of Cyril Maude.

Do we get a break or not?

CORRUPTION!

By Roger B. Priestman

Indignant protest is voiced against the use of the "Stein Song" in the public schools of Toronto.

Vide press report.

Willie heard the "Stein Song" and his tiny pulses beat;
He took his little pewter mug and bied him down the street.
"A pint of 'dinder ale'" he cried, and drank it to the dregs;
Then shouting till the rafters rang; marched home on tottering legs.

Thus started on the downward path, his public school career,
Was absolutely ruined by his thirst for ginger beer.
His homework was neglected whilst he quaffed the foaming stein;
He'd a "coca-cola" craving at the early age of nine.

At high school and at technical, the habit grew apace;
The local soda fountain was his chief abiding place.
His record for an afternoon was fourteen lemon sours,
And twenty orange crushes, all consumed within two hours.

He never drank like normal lads, by suction through a straw;
He was a soft drink sipper, and he used to take it raw.
And so he went from bad to worse, fulfilling gravest fears;
At five and forty he became a connoisseur of beers.

The habit grew upon him, till at last it was too late,
He died a hopeless drunkard at the age of ninety-eight.
And all because he learned at school the words of a refrain,
Sung by the undergraduates at college down in Maine!

PUBLICITY given to recent royal birth suggests that royalty lives in a glass house where even the most intimate things are revealed to an interested world—and this line of throught brings into view the amazing impudence, if such it is, of a section of the New York City press in anticipating "Blessed Events" of which only the family circle was supposed to be aware. New York has writers of the new school who predict in print just when prominent people are "going to ankle down the aisle," even though secretly, and when twain hearts that beat as wain are going to stop beating double, and all that kind of thing don't you know, reflecting the hectic life of Broadway where the night population seems to consist of suckers and gold diggers, a glorified Barbary Gold Coast. Back to beautiful and peaceful Belleville for ours.

SCHOOL DAYS, School Days, good old Golden Rule Days, Readin' and Ritin' and 'Arithmetic, taught to the rule of a hickory stick—them was the happy days, eh what? Do you remember your first day at school? No? Yes?? You certainly remember plenty of days following that radical change in your life's history, from the placid stream of playtime to the more or less stormy waves of school life with its scraps, jealousys, loves and likings, and whatever flotsam of knowledge picked up during the voyage. Faster and faster flows the current of life, and now with school days far behind and our own children going to school, or graduating, most of the fairy visions of unknown happiness in store fade from the horizon and leave only stern realities—among which the question of how to keep the coal bin from yawning this winter is uppermost.

STONES WITHOUT MORTAR

The heavy loss of life during earthquakes in Italy is in part caused by great numbers of stone buildings. Even the walls, floors and roof are made up of uneven layers of stones, often of varying shapes and sizes. The least tremor throws the wall out of plumb. The roof and walls come tottering down on the helpless inhabitants.

Throughout certain parts of Italy, particularly in the south, the countryside is covered with stones. The peasant must remove them before the soil can be tilled. But they are materials with which to build his hut. In some parts of Southern Italy an architecture all their own has been created by the peasants, who have created what are known as "trulli." These little huts of stone have conecshape roofs, one for each room, and at a glance the traveler knows the number of rooms that make up the dwelling. But what is so quaint in charm is fatal when the earth heaves.

As devastated areas have been rebuilt within recent years, concrete has been used in the endeavor to protect the lives of the people when earthquakes rock the land. But many of the old dwellings are still in use.

School re-opened on Tuesday morning and once again the streets echoed with school children's shouts and laughter. The first day's sessions were shorter than usual.

REAL ESTATE DEAL

Rumour has it that Picton is to have a fine new gasoline station on the corner of Main and Bower streets. It is said that the large brick building and other shops on the corner are to be demolished. The interested parties have not yet made any definite announcement, though P. A. Vanderwater, owner of the site, reports the real estate sale, understands that it is to be used as a service station.

RUTH CHATTERTON AND CLIVE BROOK

"Anybody's Woman" at The Belle Theatre pleased a large audience last night, in fact the play was a distinct surprise to most, being entirely out of the ordinary, with a plot, novel and pleasing, well worked out and well acted. Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook take the leading characters and so well do they portray them that the rest of the cast are more or less meeting shadows and background. "Anybody's Woman" is well worth seeing, presenting two distinct phases of life and digging down deep into the wells of human emotion in a most interesting manner. Ruth Chatterton portrays a pretty girl whose outlook upon life from the back row of a Broadway chorus is not inspiring or promising, "showing her cheap legs in a cheap sho who cheap people" as she expresses it. Early in her show career she has been arrested for being too scantily clad upon the stage and gains freedom through the cleverness of her lawyer who refuses to take her last fifteen dollars or exact any other payment. All she wants is a chance to make good—the big chance comes through an alcoholic base, how she improves it is the story which the screen reveals. See it, "Anybody's Woman" is worth while.

Some of the members of the executive staff of the big American commercial undertaking are said to receive $1,000,000 a year in salary.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

"Whatever you say, Mr. Allan," she said docilely.

She was acutely conscious of all that was happening now. She knew at least, that she was going to be on trial for her life.

Allan Gumbler settled down to hard work. They questioned Cathie about Chester. Had she ever heard that he was sent away from home for a time because of a too great interest in the girl Marguerite? — No. Cathie never had, but it seems that Mr. Allan found witnesses, old servants to testify to the fact that Chester was sent away to school when he was 19 and Marguerite about 25 and the who's household was upset.

TELLS OF THREAT

"Poor Marguerite," Cathie sighed. "But it's funny to think of her ever having cared for Chester. She hated him so toward the end. Why, she was even trying to blackmail him on account of these old stories about her mother, though she knew there was no truth in them."

"How do you know that?" Allan asked quickly.

"Why, he told me—Chester. It was funny, too. It was when he and Enid first came from abroad. Marguerite was sick with a cold. She kept to her bed and when I went up to talk to her Chester was in the room and she was asking him for money. He explained to me later, and told me what she meant."

Mr. Allan looked at his nicely polish ed shoes for several seconds.

"Thanks, Mrs. Farnsworth, that may be valuable. Did she ever tell you any thing more, about her past life?"

"No, except that—that—that—" It seemed rather cruel to tell them what Marguerite had told about a child.... still....

"She told me she had a little baby once, that died."

"My God! Do you know when?"

KNOWS TOO MUCH

"No," Cathie said. Then she remembered that long ago Mr. Farnsworth told her that Marguerite went away for a while. That must have been the time .... "Unless it was four or five years ago....."

"Is there anything else you can think of?"

Something made Cathie think of the perfume .. ..that heavy, musky scent that Chester's wife and Marguerite both used. L'Ocean Vert, it was called .. ..

"Thank God for that," Mr. Allan groaned.

Cathie thought of something else. "There was a beautiful silk nightgown she give me that.... that night. It had real lace on it. .. .. .

But this didn't impress Mr. Allan favorably at all. It brought to mind that other nightgown the bloodstained one that Cathie hid.

"Oh, damn your Marguerite," he sighed. "She could testify that she hid it, all right, but she could also testify that she did it to shield you. After all, it's just as well they haven't really got her. I know that they never find her. She knows too much."

"But I'm innocent," Cathie reminded him gently.

"Well, I hope we can prove it," he said gloomily.

There were only four days left to prepare the case for trial.

The day was warm, May. The flowers would be blooming on the hills now..... Ma's garden would be in bloom ..... stocks, daffodils, bridal wreath.....

Cathie sat on her cot thinking about it. She thought about the afternoons that she used to wander around town, trying to kill time. She tried to think how Grant avenue would look on a busy Saturday afternoon..... the smartly dressed women milling by the windows.... Flower-stands on the street corners.... that one-armed man that made the nice bouquets with lots of maidenhair ....was he still there? Of course..... he must be..... It was really such a little while that she had been here, in jail .. ..

THOUGHTS OF PAST

On afternoons like th's she used to have ice cream sodas, feeling selfish, to think she had them alone. When she felt fine and discovered she used to go and buy new clothes..... Whatever became of that last dress she bought? Blue. Cornflower blue like her eyes, Gordon said. She'd like to see it again..... too bad they hadn't sent it to her. but of course she couldn't wear it. .... She was in mourning....and it would be out of style by this time next year..... M..... if she lived.....

Cathie thought about dying. Tried to think about it. It was very possible that she'd never see another May. Mr. Allan thought they'd give her life if they didn't acquit her, but they did not always. Twenty-six women had been hanged....or that other thing.. electric chair, in the United States. Mr. Allan told her that himself.... Wonder what they were like, those women.... Were they all guilty? Or were some of them like her....innocent ....paying for something they didn't do.....

FAMILY'S AFFAIRS

Well, it wouldn't be so terrible to die. Everyone had to do it some time. It would be hard on the family though .....But not so much worse than having her here.....Thank goodness Eddie was too far away to know much about it, and Jean in the East.... they were keeping it from them. .. ..

Wonder whether Ruth would be married before....or after? It would have been nice to see Ruth's wedding. She'd never seen a wedding, except her own, and that wasn't really like a wedding .. ..

Poor Ruth ..... she minded so much..... being disgraced by a sister in jail..... Maybe it was hard on Mr. Browning, too. .. ..

Well, she couldn't help it. Some day they'd discover how it happened, and then she would be cleared.....The family would like that.

Of course she'd like it, too. But not so much as she would have once. She had been here too long now. She did not care so much. Her feelings were getting blunted if she could go on staying here and didn't have to go to trial she'd like it better. It wasn't so bad here.....Gordon could come to see her.

Gordon..... Cathie was sorry for Gordon. If he didn't love her so well he'd wish he had never seen her. She had brought him nothing but unhappiness. She hadn't brought much happiness to anyone. She had tried hard enough, but it hadn't worked. She had tried to give the family some happiness..... It had seemed to her that they would be happy if they had more money, but it hadn't happened that way. .. Nobody had been really happy afterwards..... Nothing went right..

THOUGHT GUILTY

Mr. Farnsworth, too. Poor Alfred.. He had wanted her to marry him, and he had said that she made him happy. He'd like her sitting with him in the long evenings.... the evenings when he nodded over his book and woke up red patted her hand, and went to sleep again..... but what real happiness had she ever given him? Their marriage was only a farce..... it had brought trouble with it's only son.... had resulted in his death.. .. .. ..

Cathie sat very silent in the small whitewashed room, listening to her insistent, scratching thoughts, thinking of the thousand and one little things that she might have done for her husband....thinking of them, now when it was too late. .. .. ..

"It won't be long now, dearie," Mrs. Evans, the matron, said.

"I know," Cathie said, "and I'm sorry."

Mrs. Evans gave her a long, knowing look.

"She's guilty all right. Dreads the trial, poor thing," she told Curly Hink the policeman who was on duty in the elevator w hen she went home that night.

"Sure. But will be a damn shame if she won't get off."

She sighed. "Yes, and her so young. I hate to think of her going to San Quentin with all the riffraff. She's such a refined, gentle little thing."

FLIER IS KILLED AT C. N. E. RACES

Capt. Sutton Carried to Death in Lake, Mechanic Escapes

Toronto, Sept. 3—While 50,000 people looked on in horror, one of the Canadian National Exhibition racing aeroplanes, an alleged "boodoo" plane, tipped the water with its left wing on a low-altitude bank, somersaulted in the air, then crashed nose first into the blue-grey water, a mile off shore, carrying to his death Captain Charles Sutton, 2867 Yonge Street, pilot, and catapulting Claude Mills, aged 29, 12 Guest Avenue, mechanic, out of the wreckage into the water, from which he was miraculously rescued by Life-Saving Superintendent Richard Kang in his speedboat.

Travelling at between 120 and 130 miles per hour as the plane was at the time the wing tipped the water, the impact was terrific. The wing was snapped in two, the pontoons broken off from the sudden whip of the 5,000-pound machine to the left, and the whole mass somersaulted like a paper boat in a gale. The awe-stricken crowds on shore quickly sensed, although in the dim visibility they could not see all the details, the tragedy that was enacted before them. It happened about 5.50 last evening.

Although dragging operations were immediately instituted by Superintendent Kang, Sutton's body had not been recovered at 2 a.m. today. Young Mills was clinging to the seaplane wreckage when Superintendent Kang's speedboat reached him, and he was stunned by his horrifying experience. He did not see Sutton after the crash.

Fingerprint Trail Leads to Prison

If Reginald Senton could have clung of his finger-prints as easily as he changed his name, he might not have had 21 months added here yesterday to the three months he has still to serve in Guelph reformatory.

Senton, alias Jack Madison, was found guilty by Judge L. V. O'Connor at Cobourg yesterday, on charges of breaking and entering a cottage and a warehouse at Brighton last April.

His apprehension was an interesting example of the part played by finger prints in police work. Though Inspector Gurnett of the provincial police suspected Senton of the Brighton offences, he could not find him. For Senton was hiding—and in Guelph reformatory of all places.

Inspector Gurnett mailed Senton's finger-prints to the R.C.M.P. bureau at Ottawa. Back came a reply that the man whose fingerprints were sent was serving a term in Guelph under the name of Jack Madison. Under his name Senton had been convicted of false pretenses in Kingston and sent to Guelph for six months.

Following an interview with the man Inspector Gurnett brought him here from the reformatory. His conviction followed at the trial yesterday.

Grampy's Visit Here an Event

When no less a personage than "grumpy"—and he is a personage just as Alice, John Silver, Little Neil, Oliver Twist and myriad others seem flesh and blood realities by virtue of years of loving association with them—comes to Belleville, it is a social event, an occasion warranting at least one call from every adult in the city. The lovable, irritable, whimsical, canny, testy, tyrannical old fellow will receive at the Belle Theatre To-day and Friday, Matinee Daily—and a word to the wise is sufficient.

Cyril Maude, Grumpy's originator 17 years ago, brings him to the screen thus preserving for posterity yet one more of the outstanding stage characterizations of current history. Just as closely as Arliss is Disraeli—Disraeli, Arliss—so Maude is Grumpy. Others may essay the role—and with a certain amount of success—but there will never be one whose whole spirit and fiber so breathes the very essence of the character as the great Englsan Actor who first presented him to the world.

With the wisdom of the really great, Maude has surrounded himself with a cast of brilliant to the least important character. Catching and reflecting the light from the facets of his exquisitely cut gem of interpretation are such clever stage folk as appealingly beautiful blonde Frances Dade; sensitive, serious Phillips Holmes; suave and fascinating Paul Lucas; polished and clever Paul Cavanaugh; quietly and intelligently satisfying Hallwell Hobbs; as well as a number of other carefully selected actors in minor roles.

Clar Hyrton, the English actor who created the role of Keeble, the valet in the original production is seen in this film version.

The "talkie" misses little of the charm of the stage production, other than the not-to-be-recalled magnetism emanating from a flesh and blood personance. The diction is pure, and Englsh at its best, the photography is excellent, the continuity perfectly held; the settings just what they should be.

Although the story is in itself absorbingly interesting, it is the memory of Grumpy's lovable itascibility that, one brings away from the theatre. Where can be equalled the pure Dickensian delight of the dear old fellow's testy berating of the patient and understanding Ruddick; the inimitable humor of the scene in which he is hustled into his hat and coat "on the wing" so to speak; the "kittens" episode; the quilt, when he sleeps—or seems to sleep; his exasperation at the ever-recurring cushion for his chair; the counting of other little mannerisms that one sits and waits for? One just enjoys—and sighs because there isn't a Grumpy in every home.

The same wardrobe that he wode in 1300 performances on the stage serves Cyril Maude in the talking picture. It was made in London in 1913 and patterned after the garments worn by his grandfather. Cyril Maude, as an Englsh gentleman much like the title role of the play, several high, stiff collars have come and gone and the original black bow tie replaced by another of exactly similar pattern, but the waistcoat of the principal costume is apparently as good as new and the original black velvet jacket shows little sign of the faithful service it has rendered. The clothes were packed away in moth-balls when Maude retired from stage activities four years ago, but were redeemed from storage when he was called to Hollywood to make this contribution for the talking screen.

For all lovers of the really fine, informcrat, a visit to the Belle, Thursday or Friday will be important on the social calendar. C. B.

Calendar Reform What it Means

A large number were present at the Kiwanis luncheon yesterday at, the Queen's Hotel, when Professor Ivan Campbell of Prince Edward County, Professor of mathematics at R. M. C. at Kingston for 32 years gave an interesting address on "Calendar Reform." The speaker was introduced by J. Owen Henry and Kiwanian appreciation of the splendid address was given by the secretary, George Griffin. Jack McIntosh presided over the luncheon in the absence of Joe Imlah with Carl Read as sergeant-at-arms and Roger Bateman as song leader. Leo B. Riggs was on hand and presided at the singing and also accompanied on for James Bankier, who gave a delightful solo. A new member, Harold "Bouncer" Holway was introduced by Russell Wyeten but his initiation into the club will come at a later date. Harold will make a welcome addition to the club.

At the close of the luncheon a meeting was held in connection with the Kiwanis Carnival to be held on Sept. 15 to 20. All the chairmen of the several committees were present at the meeting and expressed the opinion that the Carnival will be bigger and better. The members realize that times are not as good as last year but there has been no reduction in the attractions the club is offering the residents of the city will support a worthy cause.

Professor Martin discussed the question of changing the calendar from a week to a thirteen month year and told how the calendar now used was originated. The speaker explained the age of the present was a scientific one and there must be a unit invariable to regulate business dealings. The matter of changing the calendar has been discussed by the League of Nations and thirty-eight nations have signified their intention of co-operating in the scheme. The new calendar every week will start on Sunday and close on Saturday, every week the same and every year the same. It is impossible to define time, space and matter and these are the fundamentals of all physical problems. The Egyptians discovered the present calendar according to the speaker and was changed somewhat by Julius and Augustus Caesar, with contribution by Moses of Biblical fame.

In the new calendar the thirteenth month will be added and all religious creeds will worship on their anniversaries on the same date and at the same time each year. The difference in paying the men their wages by the new scheme will amount to 100 million pounds sterling each year or at least this amount will be saved for trading in the world. For the superstitious there will always be Friday the 13th in every month.

1931 LICENCE PLATE CONTRACTS

TORONTO, Sept. 3—Contract for the manufacture of Ontario's 1931 license plates was awarded yesterday by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, to Sheet Metal Products of Toronto and Canada Colortype Limited of Hamilton.

The contract will be shared between the two firms, and is for approximately 600,000 markers, at a price of 13 cents each—the same price obtained by the Government for this year's plates.

The markers for 1931 are yellow with black figures. A noticeable change from this year's plates will be the absence of the border line about the figures. They will go on sale about Dec 15 as usual.

Owing to the fall in the cost-of-living figure, only about 35 per cent. of the men employed on British railways 600,000 markers, at a price of 13 cents each—the same price obtained by the will receive any bonus added to their basic weekly wage.

PRESENTED WITH A WRIST WATCH

Occasion of Departure of Member of Community is Sad One

Stockdale, Sept. 3 (By Mail)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chase was the scene of a happy gathering recently when a number of friends and neighbors met to say goodbye to their daughter, previous to her departure for Whitby. After a social time together the meeting was called to order and the following address was read by Miss Laura Simmons and Marguerite was presented with a wrist watch.

Dear Marguerite,

It is with mingled feelings of regret and gladness that we greet you here tonight. Regret that the time has come when you are about to sever your connection with us, and yet glad that you have chosen such a noble calling for your future work. It is needless to say that you will be greatly missed from our little circle. You have been associated with us all your life, a good school pal—a regular attendant at our S. S. and at present an officer in our S. S. We trust however, your leaving us may open up for you greater fields of usefulness wherever your lot may be cast, and that God will grant you vigorous health and long life so that you may be abundantly able to pursue the noble calling which you have chosen. In token of the esteem in which you are held in this community, we ask you to accept this gift, and may it ever remind you of your friends at Stockdale.

Signed on behalf of the community, Mrs. Vanda Esler, Mrs. Percy Way, Mrs. Fred Lenoir.

Marguerite thanked the friends for the gift and said she hoped they would be spared to meet again many times and no matter where her duties might lead her she would always retain fond memories of the old friends at home.

After singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," the company dispersed to their several homes.

Three Day Week For Bricklayers

TORONTO, Sept. 3.—An example was set last night to other workers when the Bricklayers and Stonemasons' Union, members of the Builders' Exchange and the General Contractors' Association agreed on the three-day week as a means of relieving the effect of unemployment among many bricklayers and stonemasons.

Announcement of the three-day week to a method of equalizing work among members of the union, of whom almost 50 per cent are out, of work, was made by Secretary-Treasurer Joseph Bamber who spoke highly of the attitude of the employers and the willingness of members of the organization to share their work with less fortunate workers.

Winnipeg, Sept. 3.—Toppled by a selling sally, the wheat market Tuesday moved into untouched depths for the season as 10-cent wheat became a factor for traders to worry about. Values fell in the wake of heavy hedging sales by Western elevator interests to finish off 3 3-8 to 3 cents a bushel and "dollar wheat" entirely out of reach for the time being.

HYDRO LOOKS FOR NO TROUBLE OVER SURVEY IN THE NORTH

Scenes of Horror in San Domingo Follow Hurricane

SETTLEMENT OR ARBITRATION IS FARMERS' PLAN

Hydro Men Making Survey Asked to Desist Till Settlement

HOW MANY LINES

Madoc and Marmora Farm Owners Voice Their Attitude

Difficulties which have arisen between farmers and the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario over pro posed lines to cross farms in the town ships of Marmora and Madoc have not reached a serious stage nor are they likely to. Inquiry of interested parties today by the Ontario Intelligencer showed that all the farmers want is a statement from the Hydro as to what they are to get for the land taken up by the lines running through from the Gatineau development to Toronto and if necessary to have the question arbitrated.

Hydro employees have been sent to survey farms in Madoc and Marmora townships for two more high tension power lines to carry current from the Gatineau to Toronto, in addition to the lines which now stretch across from the Ottawa.

Hydro linemen and surveyors have been telling most that they must stay off some or all of the eight or nine farms in question until some form of arbitration or a settlement of some kind with the farmers is arrived at. All talk of physical interference with the men or harm is entirely out of place, it is said.

Want Settlement

Two power lines already are running across these farms. According to Mrs. John Gawley they make it extremely difficult to work around them. Furthermore they do not add to the beauty of the farm and they are, she claimed a danger point when a storm is raging. But the point in question is that the Hydro is contemplating putting two more lines in and the trouble at some two weeks ago when Hydro employees arrived on the ground to start a survey. Incidentally, the surveys have not progressed very far. Messrs. John Gawley, Jim Nickle, Kenneth Bateman, Jim Bateman, Harry Blakely, Abe and Sem Richmond, Arthur Empey and Earl Carman have, it is said, quietly but firmly objected to the survey and have said that it cannot go on until the Hydro has offered some form of settlement.

No Word From Hydro

"We have not heard any word at all from officials of the Hydro', Mrs. Ken Bateman stated to the press today. "The first thing we know about it was on last Wednesday, I think, when the men arrived for the survey. They only got part of one line surveyed when my husband told them that they could not go any further until some form of settlement was arrived at. They left their lines there and we have not seen them since. We still have not heard from the Hydro officials. The land on one corner of our farm, on which they are contemplating building, the two additional lines, is good, arable farm land.

"The Hydro walked in here before," continued Mrs. Bateman, "and practically scared us into having the lines on our land by telling us we had to

FLIER IS CLOAKED IN SILENT NORTH

Winnipeg, Sept. 4.—The grim North today hung a cloudy, windy cloak of silence around the Canadian Government's Arctic exploring duo. Weather bound at Bernard Harbor, Dolphin Strait trading post, Major L. T. Burwash, famed northland adventurer, and the pilot of his seaplane, W. E. Gilbert, waited for clear skies that would allow them either to continue their air journey into remote King William Land or fly back to Fort Smythe.

AUDITOR TELLS OF BIG DEPOSIT

York Township Engineer Deposits $13,776 on $3,100 Salary

Toronto, Sept. 4—Since Jan. 1 last D. K. C. Strathearn, designing engineer for York Township, whose salary is $3,100 a year, has deposited cheques and cash totalling $13,776.66 in his personal account at the National Trust Company, it was testified yesterday afternoon at the York Township probe.

This evidence along with a number of further revelations regarding the operations of Jee Furnica and Peter Mohan, contractors, was produced by Albert E. Nash, the chartered accountant, who, at Judge Denton's order examined Strathearn's and other accounts.

In examining the contractors' books Nash said his work was restricted by missing books and cancelled cheques. Furnica, he swore, had no account books of any kind. The auditor only saw cancelled cheques and these, today he said, were missing for the periods from April to November, 1928, and for January and February, 1929. Mohan, he stated, had no books prior to June 1, 1930, and no cancelled cheques prior to Jan. 1, 1929. Certain cancelled cheques dated since that time also were missing, the auditor swore.

Nash said that he could find in Mohan's accounts only one cost sheet for any contract. This, when Nash read it, created a mild sensation. It recorded that Mohan's total cost on the Lacey Avenue sewer was $4,617.23 whereas, according to evidence, the township paid him $20,546.94.

Mohan, called to the stand, pointed out that his cost sheet contained no provision for overhead or for his own salary. This matter will be further investigated, it was stated, by Gideon Grant, K.C., special township counsel.

Mr. Grant delved further into the township's purchase of a house and lot on Ray Avenue, Mount Dennis for $7,000 from W. K. Shannon, chief clerk in the township treasury department and an office for the South York Conservative Association.

Premier Ferguson Launches Attack On Importations of U. S. Canned Goods

TORONTO, Sept. 4—In a direct, vigorous frontal attack upon United States canned goods and flour being imported and offered for sale here while there is a surplus of Canadian grown vegetables and wheat, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson Premier of Ontario, speaking at the Exhibition directors' luncheon yesterday, sounded the prelude to his forthcoming campaign to promote the use of Ontario farm products.

Three outstanding trade-names of United States goods paralleling Ontario products were used by the Prime Minister to illustrate his text.

Campbell's soups, Del Monte canned fruits and Swansdown flour, came under his fire. Campbell's soups, "in every shop-window," he declared, were American products, made from American-grown vegetables. Del Monte products, such as canned peaches, were sold here while the same fruit was dumped for the sale of Niagara grown peaches. Swansdown flour, he said, was made from American soft wheat and sold here, while in Canada there was a superabundance of the finest, hardest wheat in the world.

The premier also deprecated the use here of peaches imported from Australia by means of the aid of an Australian Government grower a tremendous advantage unfair to the Canadian fruit-grower.

Mr. Ferguson announced that the Ontario Government planned an aggressive educational advertising campaign, from the platform, in the press and over the air, to promote the sale, use and consumption of Ontario farm products.

Entire Army of Republic is Called Upon to Preserve Order

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Sept. 4 (CP) — Scenes, the horror of which exceeded anything witnessed here in thirty years, followed the passage of a terrific hurricane which destroyed almost the entire city and wounded or killed more than nine hundred persons.

President Rafael Trujillo took personal charge of the relief work with the entire Dominican army at his assistance. Urgent appeals for medical supplies and water were sent out by the late and fleeing.

IS HOSPITAL ROOM PRIVATE HOME WITHIN ACT, NOT FULLY ARGUED

Patient, Out, Gets Liquor Which He Takes to Room

POLICE CALLED IN

"Is a room in a hospital a private dwelling under the Liquor Control Act?", was not fully argued in police court today before Magistrate Meyers, a charge against Allan Ruderman, Newark, N.J., "that he had liquor in an illegal place", was changed by the consent of the Crown to one of intoxication to which Ruderman pleaded guilty and was fined $25.00 and costs. Charles A. Payne acting for the defense brought up the question but under the circumstances the charge was amended as Ruderman was found on his way home. On Friday night near Brighton, Ruderman with his pals De Mazzo and Mulla went into the ditch trying to avoid striking a car coming out of a north road upon the highway. Ruderman received a gash stitches in the head and was able to leave the Belleville hospital sometime yesterday but the other two are still patients of the institution. Yesterday afternoon, Ruderman it is alleged visited the liquor store and purchased a fine assortment of liquor and took it down to his room in the hospital. Apparently somewhere he imbibed freely but not wisely for late in the evening, a police officer had to go to the hospital to quell a disturbance this man was said to be making. Ruderman and his assortment of choice wines and liquors were brought to the police station and today the above sentence was promulgated. The liquor was confiscated by order of the Magistrate.

TWENTY-FIVE ROBINS ON LAWN

Robins, the best friends of the amateur gardener are one of Canada's cheeriest and most popular birds, are always welcome and when a whole flock of them chooses a sweet on which to disport themselves great is the joy of the proprietor of that lawn thereof.

Twenty five of the redbreasts, finding a sprinkler gently wetting the ancient sward on lawn of Mr. Mackenzie Robertson, Albert street, yesterday afternoon, all took this opportunity of indulging in a bath. It was a sight that is seldom seen. The birds stayed there for time as presented a pretty and interesting sight.

Eighty-Five Years Old Today and Would Take Up Peewee Golf for Diversion

Eighty-five years of age and she wants to take up miniature golf! Yes, Mrs. W. H. Glenn, 230 West Moira street, is celebrating her eighty-fifth birthday today and she has expressed the wish that she may learn how to put the elusive pill around the half-pint Tiny Tim and Tom Thumb courses.

Today Mrs. Glenn is receiving the congratulations of her many friends in Belleville upon safely passing another milestone in her long life. Mrs. Glenn has lived here for twenty-five years. She resides all alone in her trim home on Moira street and does all her own work. Not only does she do all her own housework but she has a garden. And this garden is just about as fine a truck garden as you will find anywhere. She raises all the common variety of vegetables, enough for use on her own table and some left over to give to her friends.

Mrs. Glenn is in possession of all her faculties. She insists upon walking down to market on Saturday morning and doing her own buying. Today she is having some of her friends in to tea. She is a member of Holloway Street United Church and a regular attendant at that place of worship. Mrs. Glenn has one nephew in Belleville, Mr. Harry Sager, Octavia street.

Pigeons Pest On City's East Side

Pigeons by hundreds lost their squatters' rights when the old high school tower was torn down to make way for the present collegiate. Naturally there is no provision for pigeons in the new B.C.I.V.S. and the birds have been forced to find nests in the vicinity of the big school. Verandahs, porches, garages, sheds, barns and every colgn of vantage that will shelter these birds have been chosen and at the present time they have become a nuisance on the east side.

How to get rid of the pest is a problem. Driving them out by tearing down the'r nests may help for the moment but in t short time the birds are back with straws and as industrious as ever with their cooing and nestbuild ng.

Pigeonless parts of the city can feel a sense of freedom.

FAMILY REUNION IS HELD AT TABERNACLE

CUT OUT "OVERHEAD"

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—Announcement was made yesterday by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, that an agreement had been reached whereby construction of an "overhead" at the Waterloo crossing north of Simcoe, will be undertaken immediately.

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the finest delicate baby and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-worn infant.

SWITCH OPEN

Pembroke, Sept. 4.—An open switch "inadvertently opened" by Walton Prestherstone of Smiths Falls, caused the wreck of the C.P.R. passenger train Trans-Canada here last Friday, it was determined by a Coroner's jury tonight. The freight trainman testified that, through forgetfulness, he had opened the switch against the passenger train to allow his train to back off a spur line.

83 YEARS OLD

Ottawa, Sept. 4—The tremendous advance which Canada has made since Confederation and the fact that even now those who are most intimately associated with the development of the Dominion have hardly penetrated to a complete realization of Canada's great future were the two outstanding elements which struck Sir George Foster, veteran statesman and administrator, most forcibly today. Born on this day 83 years ago, Sir George, who had just returned from a three months' holiday in Jamaica, Columbia, was spending his birthday at home, the recipient of many congratulatory messages. Sir George enjoys excellent health, and has lost little of the vigor which characterized him in the days when he broke many a lance in the political lists.

INJURED IN BLAST

HAMILTON, Sept. 4.—Arthur Shaver, aged 32, a farmer, who lives near Waterdown, was injured severely yesterday afternoon, when he was trapped by a premature explosion of dynamite as he was removing stumps in a field. The blast went off in a stump near which he was standing, and he suffered injuries on his head, chest, arms and one side of his body. Mr. Shaver was removed to the General Hospital. His condition tonight was said to be grave.

Milk Producers To Become Sellers

MARKHAM, Sept. 4—If the Toronto Milk Distributors refuse to pay the 2.50 per hundredweight asked for by the producers for the Winter months, the Toronto Milk Producers' Association may become a selling organization and market as well as produce, the milk.

This was the statement made by Professor C. B. Sissons, director of the association, before a crowded meeting of the York County branch of the association.

Pointing to the Fraser Valley Producers Company which became a selling organization, Professor Sissons warned the distributors that if they persisted in their policy of "demanding a lower price for milk then the producers are afford to accept the producers would become a retailing organization for their own protection. This is our alternative," declared Professor Sissons amidst loud applause.

ARBITRATION IS FARMERS' PLAN

let them or else take the consequences. We get paid far under the real value of the property and we are not going to let it happen again. No violence has been shown to Hydro men but we want to know what the Hydro is going to do for us before they survey or build any more lines on our farms."

This is the concensus of opinion of all the farmers in question. The farms of these men run side by side through Marmora and Madoc townships.

Did Not Get Started

Mrs. Gawley said that the Hydro did not even really get started to survey on their farm when her husband asked them to stop until word was received from the officials of the company re to some settlement. None, she said, has been made to date or even offered. She too, thinks that inadequate payment was given for the land used for the last two lines. Approximately one hundred and fifty feet was used for the two previous power lines. Although different sums were paid, it is believed that about $15.00 roughly, was paid for each pole and tower that runs across the land. Mrs. Gawley said that she did not know just how many were on her land but "if you could only come back and see them you would see what we have to put up with and why we don't want any more," she said to-day.

It is believed that arbitration will finally be the outcome of the trouble and that some settlement will be decided upon. Provincial police visited the district on Monday last, but reported no trouble and are of the opinion that there will be none. The farmers, it is said in the neighborhood, are only standing up for what they believe are their rights and want no trouble.

Hon. J. R. Cooke, Hydro Commissioner, when spoken to late last night said that the matter was a trivial one. "There is nothing serious to the affair," he declared.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION
By H. B. Martin

HANDS MUST WORK IN UNISON TO GET POWER IN DRIVE

Another important "don't" in golf is taking the wrong grip. When one places the right hand well under the club and the left hand too in just the opposite position, he is taking a handicap upon himself that is hard to overcome.

When the right hand is under the club the left hand should be on top in order to permit them to work in unison. Otherwise one has no sense of power. The right hand is not braced by the left as it should be and can offer no direct support. The left in this position can do no hitting on its own account.

The correct grip is always the easiest and the most useful. The best grip is the one which gives the right its greatest power with the left acting as a guide and at all times controlling the swing.

Campbell the same score and Dorothy Grant and Helen Potter scoring an even 37. The first three will play-off the match to be concluded by the fifteenth of the month.

On Monday a bogey competition was held with Mrs. O. H. Scott and Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson tying, 56s. Scott winning the playoff. Mrs. Fred Temple won in the second flight. Today 13 lady members of the club left for Kingston to play a friendly match with members from that club. They will be entertained to lunch at the clubhouse playing the game in the afternoon.

Devotional addresses were delivered by Rev. George Jackson, D.D., of England, while Rev. C. D. Donald of India, and Rev. J. H. Arnup, lately returned from the Far East, spoke on foreign missions. The subject of home missions was ably discussed by Rev. R. B. Cochrane, D. D.

NATIONALS MADE HITS COUNT AND SCORED 12 - 6 WIN OVER HELLO BOYS IN SECOND GAME OF O. B. A. SERIES

Alex. Weir Hurled Near Perfect Game Backed By Splendid Hitting and Fielding to Win Pastime. Cretney Was Star With Featur Catch and Timely Batting; Bells Unable to Bunch their Hits and Moffatt and Gillespie Hurlers Were Easy Picking For Locals. Third Game in Peterboro on Saturday.

By C. D. T.

That was not a second guess.

All sport fans, roosters of the Nationals believed the Bell Telephone team to be just another team, when playing in a regulation park and that prophecy bore fruit yesterday afternoon.

Hammering the offerings of Norm. Moffatt, star right hander of the Hello Boys, and sending him to the showers in less than two innings, following with an onslaught on Harvey Gillespie, who relieved on the hurling peak, Belleville Nationals took the second game of the series between these two teams yesterday afternoon before a large crowd by a score of 12 to 6 and looked all over the Bell team. The third and deciding game will be played at Peterboro on Saturday afternoon, Belleville refusing to flip a coin for either Toronto or Belleville. R. Al Elliott, of Delcro, president of the O.B.A.A. made the decision, when the managers failed to agree. The management of the Bell Telephone made a protest on the umpiring of Mr. Elliott, informed both teams that neutral would be chosen excluding Toronto, Peterboro and Kingston. It is likely the athletics will be brought from Hamilton.

Weir in Form

Alex. Weir, who failed to go the route in Toronto on Saturday, was the hero yesterday. With him pitching one of his good games, the team had the needed confidence and disrespecting the ability of the Bell Telephone team, went out to knock their deficiency into a cocked hat. They eked out a long lead in the first three frames, had a grand blow out in the eighth at the expense of Gillespie and then eased up to have the Wrong Number boys tack on four runs to make it close. The last four runs would not have been scored had there not been a mixup in who was to take a fly ball in the eighth frame. Two outfielders went aloft it and neither made the catch, The Telephone team played like a well beaten outfit foh the majority of the pastime and Nationals beat a better team in Kingston on the days play.

Visitors Confident

The visitors went into the field in a confident mood due to their win on Saturday and with the thought that Weir would not come back to pitch a game such as he turned in last year against them. Although Alex was suffering from a slightly strained back but born of the courage that makers real athletes, he simply stood the vaunted heavy hitters of the Bells on their proverbial heads. Executing in the first, seventh, and ninth, the Bells were unable to bunch their hits and generally a fine piece of fielding took the boys over the rough spots. The crowd thoroughly enjoyed seeing the Toronto team beaten and if the Nationals play back to the same effort they will enter the next round. Norman Moffatt, who has been the mainstay of the hurling staff for the Bells, and who won a game from the Nationals last year was easily sent to the clearings. He had nothing but a prayer on the ball and was relieved early in the second frame after five runs had been scored. Moffatt did not have a screen to aim at and the ball went where they lay without any fences or chimneys to bother. He is just an ordinary pitcher and will have a hard time going the route against the Nationals at anytime. Harvey Gillespie, who took up the task, gave it a merry ride and just when it.hurt.

Cretney in Limelight

The Nationals at times rise to great heights and yesterday Cretney stole all the limelight. This boy came up from the sticks to senior ranks and many were of the opinion he would not do. He has played stellar ball in right field and hit the pellet a merry fans all summer. In the series with Bells he is the leading hitter of both squads and yesterday captured the fielding honors by making a sensational catch along the right field foul line. Jennings caught a shoot of Weir's on the nose and it went far Cretney raced as far as he could and with a flying leap speared the horsehide as it was dropping to earth with one hand. The crowd gave him a great hand and even the Bells were dumbfounded. The catch took the heart out of the visitors. In the Toronto park it would have been an easy homer so a regulation diamond makes a difference, Darrah in centre also came in for praise with three spectacular catches any of which would have been good for the circuit in Dominion Park. They would have dropped over the fence. The infield played classy ball with "Penny" Mills directing the operations besides having the number of the Bells batsmen.

Nationals Hitting

The Nationals were in a hitting mood and the extra base blows came at opportune times. Belleville had fifteen hits against ten for the opposition with two of the ten coming in the last frame. Darrah and Harry Mills poled doubles with Vern Weir and Bob Scott contributing triples. Harry Mattone played the stellar role in clouting for the visitors with two triples but he overshadowed his performance by striking out twice with the bases filled. The pitcher who blow might have put a different complexion on the proceedings. Weir was master all the time striking out seven of the opposition and walking but three none of which figured in the scoring.

Everyone Starred

Every player on the National team played his part in the victory and it would be unfair to single out any particular player. Vern Weir played a starry game at second base a complete reversal to the game turned in at Toronto, while Bob Scott guarding the hot corner in the style. George Scott has started to hit and his fielding is all that could be desired. As for the game on Saturday it rests entirely with Alex Weir. If his arm holds out he will again beat the Bells and as easily as he did yesterday. Many followers of the team will be on hand when the umps call play.

HARRY VARDON IDEAL DRIVING MODEL

By H. B. Martin

Harry Vardon is probably the greatest golfer of all time when style and form record is considered. This famous picture taken of Vardon at the top of his swing is the best one ever taken for instruction purposes. Those who advocate a straight left arm will notice that he curves his or kinks the elbow. Another very important point is the left knee bended and pointing to the ball.

Vardon shows here the perfect pivot and the perfect poise just before bringing the club down to sweep away the ball. It always has been more of a sweep than a hit with Vardon and not lost energy.

PLAYOFF OF TIE HERE FRIDAY

Cement Men andd Lift Lockk Team Meet in Third Game

Ball fans should not forget the play off between the C. O. E. team of Peterboro and the Point Anne nine at the fairgrounds in this city tomorrow afternoon. The Electric team won the first game by a score of 7-5 in Point Anne but the Cementmen went right back to the Lift Lock city and knocked off the Electricians by a score of 6-0. Gibson hurled both games and showed well in the contests. He will likely be used again tomorrow. The Point Anne team is composed of nearly all who have played senior ball, while the Peterboro team has a number of stars of former years in the C. O. E. This should be one of the best games of the season with Point Anne having the edge on being on their own grounds. The boys ask for the support of the Belleville fans, while Point Anne Village will be closed for the day. Belleville and vicinity have two teams in the running and they should support the efforts of the athletes. The game will be called at three o'clock.

BRAMPTON WINS LACROSSE CROWN

Toronto Sept. 4 — Brampton Excelsiors are champions of Canadian lacrosse, worthy winners of the famed Mann Cup and all the glory that goes with it.

Before the greatest crowd to witness an exhibition of the national sport since pre-war days, the Florists from Peel county vanquished New Westminster's withering pace for two periods and with superior strength and stamina came from behind to score a sweeping victory by a 4 to 1 score. The victory was the Excelsiors second in the three-game series, the first being scored rather easily by 8 to 1 on Saturday, while the Salmon Bellies came back to even the round 5 to 4 Monday yesterday's torrid test breaking the deadlock in favor of the east.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND IS FLIERS' LURE

Coste and Bellonte Fly to Texas to Collect $25,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—CP—Preceded by their business manager, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, the French flyers of the Question Mark, took off at 6.35 this morning for Dallas, Texas, to collect $25,000 prize offered by Col. William E. Easterwood.

The take-off of the French fliers was delayed by the necessity of constructing some special device for splining the propeller which is set so high that it is very difficult for mechanics standing on the ground to start the engine, Capt. Coste expected to make the journey in between 12 and 15 hours

TRAIN WRECKED

EVERETT, Wash., Sept. 4.—CP—The eastbound Great Northern Mail train number 28, was wrecked at Index Washington, 50 miles east of here last night. Unconfirmed reports reaching here indicate the engineer and fireman were killed and seven persons injured. Telegraph and telephone lines were destroyed by the wreck.

W. J. RAY'S HOUSE WAS ONE ROBBED

The wrong name of the owner of the residence was given in connection with the house robbery in Sidney, last Wednesday night. It was not James Ray's residence on the 3rd of Sidney, but the home of Will J. Ray on the Frankford Gravel on R. R. No. 2 that was robbed. The burglars entered from the cellar window and it is to judge by the goods they carried away they must have had a car or some means of carriage as they could not convey their stolen goods without some sort of conveyance.

SAN DOMINGO SWEPT

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 4.—The last reports received here from Santo Domingo, before communication was broken at 3 p.m. yesterday, said that the storm was moving northward over the eastern portion of the island.

CHRYSLER

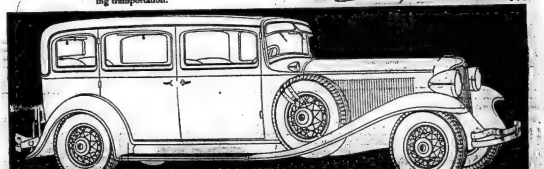
PRESENTS TWO NEW

STRAIGHT EIGHTS

All progress is change.

Only by change do man and the factors of his civilization move from the lower to the higher state; from the cruder to the finer development.

Our Chrysler engineers devote their lives to study, to analysis, to experimentation. And out of this constant searching and trying come the knowledge, conviction and decision that lead to progress.



In announcing two complete lines of New Straight Eights, in addition to our lower-priced Chrysler Sixes, we now register our most important change and progress —all designed, all worked for, all created to give the world better and more satisfying transportation.

In our progress there is no departure from fundamental principles.

To maintain public approbation, we must give always finer, more dependable, more dynamic car performance—must offer always greater value, as well as cars better suited to the needs of modern transport.

Thus, our latest Chryslers—the new Chrysler Eight and the new Chrysler Imperial Eight—containing as they do, outstanding engineering and style improvements—are, we believe, milestones along the road of automobile progress.

We are proud and eager to submit these cars to the inspection and test of the public.

She Has Never Had A Lame Back Since

Says Mrs. M. W. Kaley After Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills

New Brunswick lady is enthusiast about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, N. B., Sept. 1 (Special)— Of the many persons giving cheer tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is noticeable that the great majority are women. The reason given for this being that nearly all of women's ills come from the kidneys.

The following statement comes from Mrs. M. Kaley, R. R. No. 2, Woodstock, N. B.:

"When I was a young girl I had a lame back. It used to hurt me to stand up to any work. I took quite a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and have never had a lame back since. I have also given them to my boy for involuntary urination and found them good. My husband has also taken them."

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Drugists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

RADIO FANS' CORNER.

Reception was only fair last night wasn't it fans? Right. I mean it was not anything to get up and howl about, was it now, excuse my French but that is exactly what I mean.

Premier Ferguson at the Exhibition Director's Luncheon yesterday confirmed theories of a few days that the Ontario Government will immediately launch a vigorous "The Ontario Farm Products" campaign. In the near future, the Premier repeated, a new policy in marketing will be announced. The improvement in farm products and more extensive use of grades and greater economy in marketingketing will be the objective.

The soloist for the C.N.R. hour tonight will be Cornelia Van Giesa, a native of Delft, Holland, and she studied as a young girl at the Royal Art Academy, Amsterdam. She has from all accounts appeared in Opera and on the concert stage in all the countries of Europe. Her talent however, is not only confined to singing for she is an artist of some note many of her paintings having been exhibited in The Hague and Amsterdam. The program will be from CNRT and CNRX at, 8 EST.

Fleischmann hour from WEAF tonight starting at 7 EST per usual and Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees are the headliners still, yet, and again By the way I say that you'd almost think I didn't like Rudy but oh you're wrong I do. Sarcasm? Well maybe.

Jack Frosts Melody Moments from WEAF too, tonight at 8.30 EST and later at 10.15 EST Uncle Abe and David. Say they had a big fright last night when it looked for awhile there as if Everybodys Budgery had been burned but everything turned out wonderfully.

From WJZ at 7 EST B. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strike orchestra and right after the Knox Dunlop orchestra, another good program. Victor Herbert's Light opera "Princess Pat" also from WJZ to-night at 9 EST.

Next Sunday September 7, during the Atwater Kent hour James Melton will sing three songs that helped to make him famous and the first will be "Ah, Moon of My Delight" most striking of the tenor solos in L'ac Lehmann musical setting for Omar's "Rubaiyat" which Mme. BOVRIL
MAKES
SANDWICHES

LUCKY GIRL

By Hazel Livingstone

"A Chinese man to see you," Cissy told Cathie that evening. "He has his pass all signed properly, but you don't have to see him if you don't want to."

"Oh just I want to! It must be Cheong!"

CHINESE CALLER

It was Cheong. Wearing his black coat and his derby hat. Carrying a scrap of brown paper that opened, disclosing Yiles. While Chinese lilies, golden hearted, full flory-blossomed, on the thick pale green stems.

"This is a most unhappy occasion," he said in his ceremonious English, "but I wish to assure you of my good wishes. In my small way I may be of assistance, I hope. I—I have many Chinese boys, who are my friends Quite possibly one may discover evidence. For it is written 'n the book of history, the ignorant may change the course of life of the great."

Cathie smiled sadly. "Cheong, you did the only thing that could really help me already. You found Mr. Moore for me. I can't ever thank you for that."

"These things are simple," the fat old Chinaman said, "When one is well acqua'nted. In China we have a saying. Roughly translated it would be ..... Be of good cheer, for virtue never dies."

They let Gordon come at last.

It was a long while before Cathie could trust herself to speak. His eyes were so heavy, his dark, thin face was so marked with, fatigue. He looked as old as his brother David. As old as his Uncle Andrew's .... Because of her....

"Don't worry, Gordon. You mustn't worry. It doesn't do any good."

He began to take heart again. "Cathie has Mr. Allan told you how important it is for you to impress the jury in the right way? Told you to be looking pretty! Pale, you know, but lovely.... oh, you must look any other way but appealing, but you'll remember to impress them, Cathie dear, you know that there are many things against us, the hidtlng of the clothes, and so many other things. .... You'll not forget, all that it means for you to do your part?"

"I won't forget," she promised.

A chill struck her.

For the first time Cathie was afraid.

CHAPTER 44

Cathie sat in the place they had given her, and looked down at her hands. Ma sat bes'de her, her gentle eyes staring straight ahead, chin up, good black hat creeping steadily backward by the pugnacious tile of her chin.

Cathie Ma.....dear, brave Ma.... The shadow of a smile touched Cathie's reddened lips....Redden'ng them had been Mr. Allan's ideal. He wanted her pale, he said, but not washed out.... There was so much about looking just right in this trial business. Cathie hadn't known.

Ma was perfect, he had said, Cath'e's heart welled in loving gratitude. Ma had elected herself to go without the widow's veil with its protecting dre mesh. Just at first when she came in Cathie had wondered at the broken-hearted wonderment to that jail she had worn it, as a protection for her poor, tear-streaked face.... But now, now that she had had time to prepare herself she was getting along without it. She was showing the world how little all this affected her .... Her Cath'e was innocent ....nothing to worry about, just a formality.

....Proud head, hands clasped.... Oh, Cathie knew what she was thinking .....Poor, darling Ma.....

COURTROOM CROWDED

A warning look from Mr. Allan. Cathie bit her trembling lip. If Ma could be brave, she could too.

The curious crowded the court-room Some of them had been sitting for hours, ever since early morning. Cathie saw the sea of faces, curious, staring, when she lifted her eyes.

Here and there someone forced herself on her consciousness. A stout, red faced woman had brought a child, a little boy who wiggled and wanted to slide off of her lap.

A bailiff spoke to her.

"I have as much right as anyone else to be here!" she cried, in a high shrill voice. But the little boy was frightened, and burst out crying. The woman left angrily, carrying the screaming child in her arms. Cathie got one last look at her round, red face, last with anger. Saw the child's puckered face, and his little clenched fists, hoped the mother wouldn't spank him once she was out of the room. She looked like that kind of a woman.

Cathie looked at the jury, that it had taken them so long to decide upon.

TO DECIDE FATE

They looked cold and inimical to Cathie. Four middle-aged men, one with a greasy gray suit. A young and attractive youth, hardly more than a boy, with two jeweled fraternity pins showing on his vest when he moved, as he did frequently, struggling for comfort in the hard, high-backed chair. The others were women, most of them housewives, with the air of having struggled to get the breakfast dishes done, and the children off to school, and still get to court on time.

They looked at Cath'e curiously. So that's the way a murderess looks," she thought Cathie said.

She wondered how she looked. The attorneys had talked so much about her appearance before in court. She was wearing the black fall'e silk dress she had worn on the day she went to jail. It had been newly cleaned and pressed, and the narrow ruching of white around the neck and at the edge of the cuffs looked n'ce, she thought. She knew that her shining, natural wave was gone, and her curly curling hair had not gotten as ill did in the days when Marguerite used to brush it, and set it in big, soft waves. But that couldn't be helped.

She wasn't much interested in the trial. It progressed so slowly. The Judge with his clipped little mustache and his nice gray hair made her think of little Mr. Farnsworth. He had a cold, and Cathie was afraid that his head ached, because he kept taking off his glasses and wiping them on a small piece of pink cloth he kept in his upper waistcoat pocket. When his glasses were off his eyes looked strained and h's flesh looked puffed and dark under the eyes ...just the way little Farnsworth used to....

DULL PROCEDURE

They were days, just getting the jury. It was warm. People drowsed in their chairs. From the open windows came the street noises, the rumble of street cars, automobiles stopping starting, grinding gears.

"A little louder, please!" the district attorney kept asking curtly, but nobody bothered much. They were just waiting....waiting for the pref minaries to be over....waiting for something interesting to happen.

Cathie drowsed, too....it was all very dull. All of a sudden she sat up with a start. Mr. Macmillan, the tall b'ack-browed district attorney, was talking. He was making an address to the jury:

"If the court please, and ladies and gentlemen of the jury, the people will prove that on the 6th day of April last year, Alfred Avery Farnsworth took into his employ as s'enographer in the firm of Vaughan and Farnsworth, Consulting Engineers, this defendant Catherine Farnsworth, or Catherine Paige as she was then known.

"This Catherine Farnsworth, or Catherine Paige, was a girl of poor family. She was glad to get employment to help support herself and her family.

ACCUSED BY ATTORNEY

"We will prove that this defendant, Catherine Farnsworth, was artful and designing herself at her work. She kept aloof from her fellow workers. She worried her wry into her employer's affections.

"On the 27th of October, less than seven months after meeting Alfred Farnsworth for the first time, she became his wife. It was a hurried marr'age. Mr. Farnsworth's best friends did not know of it until after it had taken place. Mr. Maurice Vaughan, his senior partner, did not know of it. His own son, Chester T. Farnsworth, was not informed of it.

"Alfred Farnsworth was at that time sixty-eight years of age. His bride was nineteen.

"We will prove that this sixty-eight-year-old bridegroom showered every luxury upon the defendant. He gave her unlimited credit at department stores. He settled money upon her fam ily. He was in every way a devoted and indulgent husband.

TELLS OF TRAGEDY

"And we will prove by a chain of circumstances beyond and to the exclusion of any reasonable doubt, that this kind and generous old man, Alfred Avery Farnsworth, was murdered in his bed while he slept, between the hours of twelve midnight and one a.m. on the morning of April 7th by Catherine Farnsworth, his bride of six months...

"We will prove.....

Mineral fillings and mineral false teeth did not make their appearance until the end of the 19th century.

And now... a SHOCK-ABSORBER in your safety razor blade

EVERY Probak blade has a built-in shock absorber that absolutely prevents edge distortion. You feel the results in an utterly different and vastly better shave.

Probak's shock-absorber incorporates two revolutionary improvements in blade construction—butterfly channeling in duo-tempered steel. Scientifically shaped perforations disperse the bending strains—provide channels for their escape. Specially tempered steel in the middle of the blade absorbs what little strain is left. No shock or distortion reaches the highly tempered and finely honed shaving edges. The blade is as keen in your razor as in the original package.

Prove these facts. Buy a package of Probaks. Try two in your double-edge razor (old or new model). If every Probak shave isn't quicker, cooler, smoother—return the package and your dealer will refund every cent—$1 for 10, 50c for 5.

No. 3 — Ontario Bakeries: Operating the largest chain of bakeries in Canada independent of any flour milling company.

THE baking of bread is one of the relatively few industries free from seasonal or sympathetic periods of depression. Changing conditions of prosperity have no effect on the individual demand for this every-day necessity of life. A daily turnover—on a cash basis places bread baking income of the most outstanding positions of the depression proof class. Plants of the Ontario Bakeries are located in nine growing Cities and Towns throughout Ontario—in communities providing a steadily increasing demand for their superior product.

In past years these units have been operated with marked success. The connection that exists between these modern plants and the Canadian Terminal System, with their grain elevators, warehouse facilities and water transportation makes it possible for them to secure flour and other ingredients with dispatch at attractive prices. These factors combine to assure continual profitable operations in the future.

This is the third of a series of advertisements portraying the activities of a Canadian organization operating a chain of public service enterprises throughout Canada.

SIDELIGHTS

MAY SEEK FRANKLIN RELICS

Major Burwash is in the Arctic in the land where Sir John Franklin lost his life with his 129 adventurers eighty-three years ago of starvation.

That country holds the secret of almost a century but as the flying machines are opening up the unknown land, it is to be expected that some day some one will chance upon the relics of the Franklin expedition. Some day the north must yield its dead, just as the Arctic island revealed the Andree party.

It may not be Burwash or perchance it may be but some one will make the discovery of the party.

BUILDING UP

Boys and girls who crowded the city schools on Tuesday morning of this week for their first appearance at school must appreciate what the long summer vacation has done for them. Here in the city playgrounds, on the commons, and in the country about the city, the woods and the fields, they have played to their heart's content very close to nature.

In other cities it is about the same. New York has a problem with its hundreds of thousands of youngsters seeking relief from summer heat and a time to expand their lungs and refresh their limbs in the open spaces. The Play Schools there have carried on a fine campaign "rigging" up a dingy apartment as one of their experiments, showing what cleanliness, painting and carpentering can do—this is the home-making work. This year an apartment was fitted up for a dozen kinds of work and play by the youngsters and it has been kept as a club for older children. These children have cooked their own marketing, prepared their meals, and kept their rooms spick and span. Another effort was the securing of four old backyards, part of which was cemented for play under awnings in wet weather and the rest was planted with flowers. Some of the children grew things for the children in the Philippines, filling treasure boxes for the little black kiddies of the Pacific. Health talks have been given to mothers and hot school lunches served the children. In the city's great parks many have played, some have gone to camps provided after by societies and much has been done for the development of the young.

So it is the world over, the world we know. Boys and girls have been having a good time. This should all tell to their advantage with the coming winter's work.

The boys and girls in the country have also the intimate touch with the great outdoors which makes them strong for their work and their study. They are taught an intimate relationship with the life of the fields and woods, something of education in agriculture and the home life and all this prepares them for life.

A PATHETIC STORY

The fortitude and thoughtfulness of the adventurer and scientist were never exemplified to better advantage than in the life and death of Andree, the Arctic explorer, who heroically went to the death which he felt coming on him. He wrapped up the records of his trials and protected them against his body in his last thoughts before he fell into everlasting sleep. His last thought was the advantage of these records to the world of life from which the snow and ice had shut him forever.

His last thoughts must have been deep ones, as he lay his body in the side of the ice-clad hill trusting by some divine intuition that some fate of the world send some explorer his way and find his body and the record of the expedition of 1897.

Probably Andree's correct will tell of the last days of who was first of the party to die and what his hopes were of a relief expedition, to pass his way.

In the great turn of events his hope was justified for there came after him undaunted men and two of them found him.

Records of explorers are great human documents. The record of Captain Scott is one of the brightest in human history and perhaps Andree, though dead may yet speak through his journal a tale of human grandeur and nobility.

THE AIR TRAIL

Dieudonne Coste has hopped the Atlantic in Question Mark. Soon is the regularity of these transoceanic voyages by air.

Intrepid birdmen will continue until they beat a trail which can almost be visible in the air as they cross and recross the airways of the Atlantic.

DR. MAYO'S FAITH IN FAITH

A significant statement was made by Dr. Mayo last week at the Winning meeting that the solace of religion brings a man more confidence in his ability to come through an operation than all that science can do. He never refuses the request of a patient to see his minister before going on the operating table.

Amazing things are done through science and amazing things occur through the proper frame of mind and faith in the outcome.

This tribute of Dr. Mayo to the presence of religion in life's crises is a sermon that no one should forget.

THE SEEKER

By Alice Michaelis

I am the seeker who never tires,
Though long are the years of my quest,
For the beckoning flame of my far desires
Leaves no inough of aught else in my breast.

Oh, the vision that gleams like a star by night
And glows like a sun by day,
And always I grope through this lesser light
Toward the glory so far away!

I am the seeked who knows no lack
Though my face is a sonnty crust,
With no roof for my rest, with no coat for my back,
As I trudge through the rain or the dust.

I am the seeker with lifted brow,
Dweller in realms afar,
Untouched by the cares of here and now
As vowed to another star.

All the pains of living pass me by,
And the jump of living pulls;
I am the seeker. From on high
The vision glows and calls!

BASEBALL SEASON in Belleville has been a washout with few games and little interest in them. If senior baseball is on the toboggan why not build up a good junior team and preserve the sport from extinction? Failing that why not try and bring the good old game of lacrosse back? Looks like golf, tcnl and pee-wee, and motor cars have diverted interest from baseball, or perhaps there are other undermining influences. This brings back again the question would professional baseball pay in the small cities. Gananoque tried professional ball several seasons bringing in a team from Buffalo and played a series with gate teams from Clayton, Alexandria Bay and other places in New York State. Gananoque's experience might be worth enquiring into.

NEW YORK BANDITS certainly know their bullets and do their work with a perfection of execution which must be admired even if deplored. Rye beach, a summer resort near New York, has a large amusement place, Playland Park, where every device known to man, from hot dogs to cold cats, is utilized to coax nickels from the thousands who go there every day. New York bandits looked the situation over and decided to levy one day's toll on the amusements resort for the benefit of said bandits, their heirs and assigns forever. As the police station was next door to the park entrance the plans had to provide for police entertainment while the levy was taking place. The time chosen was daybreak following a holiday, the means, a large touring car, sawed-off shotguns and plenty of nerve. Driving up to the doorway of the police station the officer on duty, standing in the doorway was greeted with a cheery good morning and then invited to step into a cell and take a nap. The invitation being backed up with a shotgun it was immediately accepted. Other police as they arrived were similarly cared for—first they might be injured while the play was being made at Playland Park, next door. To make a short story shorter the park was looted and the receipts of the holiday, amounting to $12,000 taken, including 30,000 nickels which formed part of $7,000 in coin; and $5,000 in bills. The entire job only took a very few minutes and the clever craftsmen were soon roaring back to the big city to be speedily absorbed in the traffic and make their getaway complete. Crime is becoming so systemized in the U. S. A. that it would not be surprising is these crooks had their own little private bank and were able to deposit the results of their early morning's work by ten o'clock and call it a day.

"Aye," replied the caddie cynically, "but what's the good o' puttin' up an umbrella if your boots are leakin'."

The match was ended, and the spectators were crowding out through two or three tiny gates. One of them, impatient, began to climb over the fence.

"Hi!" said the gatekeeper, "can't you go out the same way as you came in?"

That," was the reply, "is what I am doing."

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Mrs. Hews came to see ma this afternoon, and they was drinking tea and eating little cakes, ma saying, I wish this bore would go up.

I 2nd the motion, Mrs. Hews sed. It's not doing anybody any good except perhaps the bonkers, and they must of got quite full of good out of it by this time so theres no further excuse for it. A little rain would be a big relief, she sed.

The weather man promised rain for this afternoon but I havent seen any signs of it, ma sed, and Mrs. Hews sed, You mite of known that. When the weather man says one thing, you make up your mind there is to be the other, and you'll have an infallible system she sed.

Thats just what I do ma sed. If the weather man says deer I take my umberella and if he says the opposite I do the contrary. It seems to me anybody could do as well as him, Mrs. Hews sed, and Mrs. Hews sed, Yes, of corse all you haff to do is sit around and guess wrong.

Which just then I looked out the window and the sky was all dark and it was starting to sprinkle already, so I say Mrs. Hews, I think it's raining its raining now.

Well of all things, ma sed. Well, I suppose if a person guesses often enough their bound to hit it rite sooner or later, thats only human nature, she sed.

Of corse, I'm just saying saying something long enough, its bound to come true some time if theres any probability connected with it at all, Mrs. Hews sed. Id like to have another one of those delicious cakes, but I feer their fattening, she sed, and so do I, like me they be their each little bits of things.

And they both took another bong about their 10th speece.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVES COMMON AILMENT

Millions Already Know Its Effectiveness

One of the short common ailments in the world is constipation. It is also one of the most dangerous diseases, known, to mankind. It is the source of many complaints which strip life of its pleasure.

Many people have constipation in a milder form and do not know it. Perhaps they are suffering with headaches, backaches, indigestion, bad breath, and general physical depression. These are often symptoms.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or money will be refunded.

The most frequent cause of constipation is the lack of roughage in food. Modern, soft foods seldom contain enough.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains roughage. It is the original ALL-BRAN, introduced by Kellogg for relieving millions of people from the scourge of constipation and slavery to habit-forming pills and drugs. It also adds needed iron to the blood.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream. Over cereals and fruits. In soups. In cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Today's Verse

WHAT WAY CAN MY DISTRESS
What way can my distress
Come to another door
And find me a valley lovelier than before?

All day the wind and I
Both have been twisting keys,
Crying at doors and whispering
"Open, please!"

But everywhere we stop—
Barred out from loveliness;
Somehow at last there's no escape
From this distress.

THE BEAUTY BOX

(By Helen Follett)

One way to cleave down the spread smidship that excessive measurement around the hips, is to jump the rope. It is about the last recreation that the girl with considerable avoirdupois would think of. All right unless the heart doesn't pump as strong heart should, vigorous exercises are a peril. If one doesn't want to jump, one can do hippity hops, a milder and slower form of dieting ones self from adipose padding. Though we hear about curves, extreme plumpness is an undesirable as ever was. Nobody wants fat cells.

Strong household cleaning agents remove the luster from finger nails and eats into scarf skin at the base of the nail. When using them, it is advisable to wear rubber gloves. Keeping the finger nails oiled at night, covering each one with a thimble-like cap of cotton, will remove the dullness and bring a rosy shimmer. It is only when the cuticle is dry, clinging to the nail surface, that hangnails form.

It is the habit of a woman to defer exercise; it is always something she is going to do next week. Too bad. Firm muscles are influences that prolong the slenderness of youth. Good fibers strengthen the internal organs which are muscles. No woman is entitled to hand herself appendicitis if she can't clip off five miles a day without fatigue.

We don't hear anything any more about green and lavender complexion powder, though orchid is being used by the low-headed blondies who think it increases their beauty batting average. The healthy, natural skin has a creamy tone; all powders ranging from ivory to beige are bound to be more satisfactory than those that incline toward pink hues.

Alcohol rubs will benefit skin on legs and arms that is speckled with little red elevations, like blushing gooseflesh. Follow with a husky oil rubbing with a coarse linen towel that takes hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience. Oil rubs are advantageous.

Persian Balm is alluringly fragrant. Adds a charming refinement to the most finished appearance. Creates and preserves complexions of surpassing loveliness and texture. Softens and whitens the hands. Cools and dissolves all irritation caused by weather conditions. Quickly absorbed by the pores, leaving never a vestige of stickiness. A peerless toilet requisite. Invaluable for all women who care for elegance and distinction.

Bulova Watches

"BOY-CRAZY" GIRLS AND "GIRL-CRAZY" BOYS

By Beatrice Fairfax

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Here's a letter in which the writer says she's at her wit's end over her sixteen year old daughter who she says is boy-crazy.

The girl it seems, is highly accomplished in dispensing those "no-intruduction-necessary" glances, right under her mother's watchful eye. "It' so common," writes the poor lady "and relatively dangerous." I agree with her at the same time I think a less gloomy outlook, a dash of humor maybe, would save the situation.

The mother goes on to say that she has been more than careful in bringing up Dorothy—sent her to the nicest schools never let her play with any but the nicest girls—and never let her play with boys at all.

And that, my dear day, is the root of all your troubles. If Dorothy has been allowed to play with boys, they wouldn't seem so wonderful to her now. Girls, like this one, who grow up in families without boys, and have no boy cousins or neighbor's sons to scrap with, and make discoveries about how ruthish, greedy, and full of faults is the common or garden male are apt like Dorothy to grow up and show symptoms of being "boy-crazy."

The same ailment may also attack households in which there are no girls. At seventeen or thereabouts—the approach to manhood which helps to fill the jobs strips is anything but comic to the victim—a sisterless boy is apt to fall, and fall hard for the first bit of femininity that crosses his path.

The charmer may be as old or older than his mother, she may be a friend of the family, a kindly teacher, or a screen star he's never seen in the flesh—any peg on which to hang his fluttering fancies will do—meantime, parents please be sympathetic with your girl or boy-crazy youngsters. It's going to come out all right, if you don't take it too hard.

If there aren't both boys and girls in the family when children are growing up, the wise mother will borrow some of the sex she happens to be out of, and let them all play and grow up together. At the same time, remember the old proverb about one rotten apple spoiling a barrel full. Be sure the borrowed article is sound and healthy minded, exercise a judicious amount of supervision, and avoid the mistake of bringing up a child who has a wrong sex slant on life.

A little girl seeing a boy "wolfing" all the best eates on a plate at table and neglecting to pass them, is apt to have illusions about the first shock-haired youth she comes in contact with than the girl who has had to watch the cake plate in her own interests at home.

And a boy who has been "fattled on" by an aweule little sister or friend doesn't write an ooch poetry about she's seventeen as the boy who has had to watch his step with the fatties day in and day out.

Not long ago a mother wrote me of an amusing experience she had with a daughter, who, like Dorothy, wasn't smile and flirt in public.

"Sam," said this lady to her husband one evening "why don't you bring home some of your cosni supplement friends?"

"What do you mean?" asked Sam, who had been primed in advance.

"Sally seems to know the queerest looking men and boys— not gangsters, exactly, but funny paper types. The poor child seems ashamed to speak coriaint to them, but she gives them friendly little smiles"—

"Oh, yeah?" Sam pondered. "Down and Outs that she's herpes at the church mission most likely."

And the daughter listening in the next room, did a little thinking.

Fashionably Speaking

BY LUCILLE

DEAR READERS:

Evening dresses, and frocks that go dancing this winter are going to be stately affairs, if we can believe news of advance fall fashions. Classic lines, slim at the waist, and flowing into wide sweeping skirts will add grace and dignity to practically any wearer.

Skirts, that rose and fell in pointed, scalloped and tiered fashion last year have decided to be uniform in length this year and to reach the ground. There are to be no half measures. Frocks that last year intrigued one by trailing to the ankles in the back and then, to one's surprise, being almost a foot shorter in the front, will either have to grow many inches or fling themselves passe.

Into the dance frock field has come satin, soft, flattering, delicately tinted satin. White is the favoured colour, and then the pastel tones, with black holding a place of special importance. There is something very fascinating about these satin gowns. Their slender bodices, with moderate decolletage, and slender lines trimmed only with subtly placed bows give the gowns an individuality and distinction that all women like to attain.

Georgette, recognized as the favourite always for the youthful dance frock will be worn again this year, as well as the more fabric that proved so popular last year.

If your choice I es in black, you will want to know about the latest shade in hosiery, called "off-black." The hose is of gossamer sheer chiffon and its blackness has a faint rusty tinge. Stockings of such a tone are newer than the grayish gunmetal, and are far smarter for evening wear.

The cocktail or fingertip length evening jacket is particularly engrossing with the new longer frocks. Medium length and long wraps are quite as correct.

With such charming examples of the evening mode, this promises to be a season of sumptuousness and the winter affairs will be brilliant with the beauty and colour of milady's gowns.

Fashionably yours,
LUCILLE.

PENITENTIARY TERMS GIVEN 2 IN ATTEMPTED JAIL BREAK

Upper Bridge Inspection Completed by William Gore

LITTLE AND ASELSTINE ARE SENT TO PENITENTIARY ON JAIL BREAK ATTEMPTS, ASSAULT ON OFFICIAL

Third Man Bailey is Remanded For One Week

TWO TAKEN AWAY

Little and Aselstine Pleaded Guilty to Charges

Electing speedy trial before a judge after his preliminary hearing in the police court David Little charged with attempted jail break and assaulting the turnkey, Robert E. Collins, appeared before Judge Deroche and pleading guilty to the two counts through his counsel, R. E. Arnold was sentenced by the presiding judge. On the charge of attempted jail break he received a sentence of two years in Kingston, yesterday and on the charge of assaulting Mr. Colling was given three years in the same institution, both sentences to run concurrent. Little, asked by Judge Deroche if he had anything to say why a sentence should not be pronounced, replied in the negative.

Yesterday afternoon Gordon Aselstine and George Bailey appeared before Magistrate Millar for preliminary hearing and at first it was decided to remand the men for another week. However, Aselstine elected summary trial and in following the charges pleaded guilty. He was given the same sentence as Little and later, was hurried away to Kingston to start his sentence with Little. Bailey was again remanded. R. D. Preston, K.C., appeared for Aselstine. No counsel appeared for Bailey.

These sentences were the outcome of an attempt by three men to break jail on August 30th last, when the warden of the jail, Tom Ketchenson and the turnkey, R. E. Collins, went to the corridor to place the men in their cells for the night. In the melee the turnkey was badly bruised and was confined to his bed for some days on account of the injury, while Ken Colling a son of the turnkey, who went to his father's assistance, received several cuts on the head. Little and Aselstine at the time of the attempted break were waiting transportation to the Reformatory for charges of breaking and entering and theft in Belleville and Bailey who it is alleged was one of the three on charges of breaking and entering and theft which took place at Bancroft.

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 5—(C.P. Cable)—"Man did very well while he was an ape and if I cannot understand why he ceased to be one," said Dr. H. S. "Nature overshot the mark in producing a cunning big brained animal with hands," said the professor, "and we are now struggling with the consequences."

Lower Bread Prices Held to Be Likely
Labor Minister Expects Voluntary Cut

Ottawa Sept. 5.—Information relating to the price of bread is still being accumulated by the combines investigation branch. As yet there is no intention to launch a formal investigation act. Senator Gideon D. Robertson minister of labor said he looked for a lowering in the price of bread by voluntary action on the part of some of the baking concerns.

Bread prices in 69 Canadian cities have been analyzed by the department. Out of this number the price now is lower in 19 communities than it was in January 1929 while the price of flour has been lowered in 47 communities.

The analysis of the department also showed that since January 1929 the price of bread has increased in 12 cities and the price of flour in fourteen. For this there is no justification in the opinion of government officials and they are giving close attention to those localities.

Also her thing disclosed by the investigation is an increasing demand for a loaf of poorer quality than the normal standard of most bakers. This is considered a result of unemployment and shortage of money and loaves of this type may be purchased as low as 8 cents for the pound and a half size.

MERAW DEATH PROBE CONCLUDED DROWNING IS VERDICT OF JURY

Scholar Tells of Discovery of Floating Body in River

MERAW SEEN EARLY

"That Frank Meraw came to his death by drowning in the waters of the River Moira at Tweed on September 2nd last", was the finding of the jury which convened in Tweed yesterday afternoon. Dr. Eagleson of Madoc, presided as coroner and R. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney, interrogated the witnesses called. The burden of was of short duration as the facts in the case were well established before the inquest opened.

Joseph Melroy, a school pupil, told the jury of finding the body in the river as he and two other companions were rowing across the river on the above date to attend the opening of school. The body was found in eight feet of water and the cap, which the man was wearing was seen sticking out of the water. Patrick Melroy and Ronald Sayers told of witnessing the bringing of the body to shore and the calling of the police. Peter Lloyd, a neighbor of Meraw, told of seeing Mr. Meraw about 5.45 a.m. at the back of his house and Joseph Benjamin stated he saw Mr. Meraw an hour later in practically the same place. H. Sayers told of the health condition of Mr. Meraw and explained to the court it was hard for him to remember.

Provincial Constable Fred Hill of Madoc, who made the investigation previous to the death with County Constable Wallace Moon of Tweed informed the jury that the deceased had been left on his home previous to the drowning, one being for alleged assault and the other for an alleged breach of the Game Control Act. Mr. Meraw had not been served personally but that the summons were left at the house for him. Dr. Leslie of Tweed who performed the post mortem stated: There was no foreign substance found in the stomach, but the stomach and lungs were full of water, showing the man had died from drowning. The jury were not long in arriving at a verdict.

Boy of Today Wearies of School Earlier
Part Education is Called Invaluable

Bristol, Sept. 5.—"The public school boy of today surely tends to weary of school at an earlier age than did his father," declared the Rt. Hon. Lord Eustace Percy, president of the Board of Education from 1924 to 1929 when he addressed the British Association for the Advancement of Science on "A Policy of Higher Education."

"An increasing number of 'upper' and 'middle' class parents must experience an uncomfortable feeling that after all this one or that one among their sons might have developed much stronger intellectual appetites if he had gone through a work shop apprenticeship at a comparatively early age" stated the former Minister.

Lord Eustace insisted the idea that all education must take the form of a continuous school and university life that if a boy left school he "abandoned definitely all hope of pursuing a connected course of education. The idea of part time education far from being despised as it has long been should be recognized as a most valuable one.

9,600 Houses Are Destroyed By Storm

Santo Domingo, Sept. 5 — (Copyright by the Associated Press) — There were only 600 buildings left standing today in the city of Santo Domingo out of 10,000. The storm spared only those strong enough for it. Dead and injured in Wednesday's hurricane far exceeded the ability of relief workers to calculate with accuracy. Reports from the interior points show that the already tremendous proportions of the greatest of the recent Caribbean storms must be increased with the arrival of information hour by hour from points left isolated. Available estimates gave dead 1,000 and injured 5,000.

A meter to measure the energy requirements of field implements most in agricultural operations is urged.

CYRIL MAUDE IN "GRUMPY"

After playing "Grumpy" fourteen hundred times on the stage, Cyril Maude transferred this delightful classic to the celluloid and yesterday Belleville theatregoers flocked to the Belle to see the screen version. "Grumpy" was as delightful and detestable as ever and it is a pleasant thought that this stage masterpiece will be preserved for the benefit of theatregoers yet unborn as proof that the drama of this era was not all "parlor, bedroom and bath" as might be supposed frof Broadway's best sellers "Grumpy" is Cyril Maude at his best, and little else, although the cast is adequate enough for their not very strenuous parts Not to see "Grumpy" would be a very grave social error as well as a distinct personal loss to anyone who admires the best things of stage and screen.

"Grumpy" will be the last tonight for the last time in Belleville.

INCREASE CURB ON STOCK FRAUD

Security Fraud Prevention Act is Being Strengthened

Toronto, Sept. 5—Regulations which the Province of Ontario will apply under the Security Frauds Prevention Act of 1930 have been approved by Order-in-Council, were made public yesterday by Attorney-General William H. Price and become effective immediately.

All the old restrictions—those which have been in operation since 1928—have been in operation since 1928—like the act they are to implement, are with several exceptions, the direct outgrowth of the Inter-Provincial Conference on the brokerage question which was held at Queen's Park last spring, and will in all likelihood, be adopted in toto by the other Provinces of the Dominion.

A much more complete control over the various securities proposed to be disposed of by brokers has been made possible to Colonel W. W. Denison, Registrar, by requiring the broker to file with the Registrar the prospectus of a security issuer and the price at which he acquires and disposes of the stock in every case where the proceeds go either directly to the treasury of the company or to the vendor or promoter. Added check is acquired by requiring that in the case of vendor's stock the Registrar's consent must be obtained before the security can be disposed of by the broker. The same restriction will apply also where the security issuer has been refused registration.

Roly Young Praises "Let's Go Native"

Jack Oakie, Jeannette MacDonald, Skeets Gallagher in Clever Film

Roly Young the brilliant Photoplay critic of the Toronto Star Weekly speaks in the following glowing terms of "Let's Go Native" which is to be exhibited at the Belle Theatre, Saturday and Monday, matinee daily:

"Tune in folks, and hear the glad tidings—you are shortly to see one of the greatest laugh films ever made. It hasn't any sense, it's just a collection of hilarious nonsense—ah! what a cast—oh boy! If all the silliest and funniest bokum in Hollywood were laid end to end the result would be "Let's Go Native" with Jack Oakie and Jeanette MacDonald. However, I'd better become normal and compose myself or you won't know what I'm raving about.

"Let's Go Native" is just about the nuttiest bit of screen fare this year—and it's hilariously funny. Part of my job requires that I turn out from under the blankets at 4.30 a.m. daily so when I can sit at a preview until 2 a.m. in the morning and still think its funny, it must be good.

The opening of "Let's Go Native" shows the movers, headed by Eugene Pallette (remember, he plays— Bergy Heath) removing all Jeanette's furniture because the installments had been noticeably by Ellis' comfort. This is plain slapstick and bokum, but contains any number of laughs. Jeanette is a customer and like just inflated dressing a show bound for South America. Her fiance is James Hall, who has been in retirement for the past three years working in "Hell's Angels," but friend Jimmy is a millionaire's son and doesn't work. Jeanette decides to go to South America with the show and says she won't marry Jimmy until he gets a job. Jimmy gets a job as trimmer on the ship. He also takes along two friends, one of whom is Oakie, who plays Vollaire McInnis, a dumb taxi-driver. On the ship is the girl Jimmy's folks want him to marry, none other than your old friend Kay Francis. After many funny episodes on shipboard, the steamer is wrecked and the leads are adrift on a raft which floats to a tropical island inhabited by a race of comedy amazons ruled by "Skeets" Gallagher. Now it's not much use to try to tell you any more about it because it moves too fast, but from what I've written I think you can imagine the laugh possibilities there are in this tale, and you can take my word for it that not one of them is passed up. There are a number of good specialties through "Let's Go Native" including a title number which is only heard during the opening titles, although it is used for a rather uninspired ensemble of natives in the latter part of the yarn. The whole thing is a wow!

Hope to Salvage Wrecked Steamer

North Sidney, N.S. Sept. 5—Continuation of moderate weather will make possible, it is believed, an attempt to salvage the steamer Caribou, now lying precariously on the reefs at Mouse Island, Port Aux Basques, where she piled up in a dense fog and turbulent seas on the morning of Sunday, Aug. 10.

According to those who have viewed the stranded steamer indications point toward the possibility of salvaging the hull of the ship, providing a strong southerly wind does not blow up.

During the past few days considerable gear has been removed from the ship. A general survey of her damage has been estimated with the result officials in marine circles are under the impression that with continued fine weather the ship could be hauled off and towed to Port Aux Basques where further temporary repairs could be effected to enable the ship to be taken to St. John's and hauled in drydock for complete repairs.

The 200 sacks of mail, personal luggage of the passengers and the greater part of the freight have been salvaged.

The Caribou was a steamer of 2,221 tons, and cost over $350,000 to build in 1925.

It is understood a large ship to be chartered by the Newfoundland government to replace the Caribou on the North Sydney-Port Aux Basques route while arrangements for the construction of a new steamer are being made.

She Has Never Had A Lame Back Since

Says Mrs. M. W. Kaley After Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills

New Brunswick lady is enthusiastic about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, N. B., Sept. 1 (Special)—Of the many persons paying their tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is noticeable that the great majority are women. The reason given for this being that nearly all of women's ills come from the kidneys.

The following statement comes from Mrs. M. W. Kaley, R. R. No. 2, Woodstock, N. B.:

"When I was a young girl I had a lame back. It used to hurt me to stand up to any work. I took quite a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and have never had a lame back since. I have also given them to my boy for involuntary urination and found them good. My husband has also taken them."

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

THIEVES USE EITHER

London, Ont., Sept. 5—Inspector George Tustin of the London Humane Society claims to have found evidence which leads him to believe that chicken thieves in this district are using cans of ether placed under the roosts of unsuspecting birds to rob the coops. Overcome by the fumes, the poultry fall to the floor, and are picked up by the thieves and bagged. In a number of recent robberies the Inspector claims, cans which had contained ether were found on the floors of the hen coops.

900 Lives Lost In Santa Domingo

San Juan, Sept. 5—Governor Roosevelt was informed last night that 800 were dead in the City of Santo Domingo alone as the result of the tropical hurricane, with no part of the interior of the Dominican Republic heard from.

The Governor's information came from Major Cary I. Crockett, who flew from San Juan to the Dominican Capital this afternoon.

Major Crockett's estimate was made after he had conferred with President Trujillo and Charles B. Curtis, United States Minister.

VIKING TRACES FOUND IN NORTH

Capt. MacMillan Interested in Icelandic Settlement

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., Sept. 5.—Captain Donald B. MacMillan, noted Arctic explorer, who accompanied Admiral Peary to the North Pole in 1909, arrived in Charlotte town Thursday on board his auxiliary schooner Bowdoin, after a 30,000-mile voyage to Iceland, the East Coast of Greenland and Labrador.

This was Commander MacMillan's fifteenth hitip North, each voyage having been for a different purpose. His quest to Iceland this time to attend the celebration of the 1,000th anniversary of the first parliamentary govern ment in the world. There were 30,000 people present, and in one valley 1,000 tents were pitched to accommodate the visitors.

The explorer is greatly interested in the Norsemen and the discovery of North America. He has studied the homes of these people in Greenland, built at least 1,500 years ago, and has been searching for tracks of Northmen in Labrador, to which it is believed they came 400 years before Columbus crossed to America.

"If evidence is ever found that they did come to America at that time," said the Captain, "it will undoubtedly be found in Labrador, Newfoundland or the coast of Canada."

There were traditions all along the Labrador Coast among the Eskimos to day, said Commander MacMillan, that strange people came to them in open boats from the open sea and lived with them for several winters. They had actually shown the explorer where these people lived and fought with the Eskimos.

In Labrador the Commander built a school to accommodate 40 children and this year installed a electric plant for the Moravian Eskimo village to light the church, school and homes of the missionaries. The school building will also serve as a social centre. The aim English language and help the Moravian language, andhelp the Moravian missionaries, who have labored there for the last 150 years.

That elk are attracted by music seems to be established by the actions of two fine specimens of that animal, which stroll most of the bush when dancing begins at the Banff Springs Hotel every evening. Under the ballroom windows they begin to shake their heads and prance, dart and caper while the music lasts, not even stopping to eat until the orchestra has ceased playing.

Canadian poultry are rapidly being recognized throughout the world as reaching unusually high standards and recently the S.S. The birds came from a poultry farm near Vancouver.

Captain McMurray, whose rank is equivalent to the army rank of brigadier-general, is one of the few living Canadians holding such a high position in the R.N.R.

The province of Manitoba last month celebrated its sixtieth birthday. Where 60 years ago the buffalo reigned alone, Manitoba farmers are now pasturing 350,000 horses and 450,000 cattle and the prairie dweller instead of returning to fort or wigwam from his day's work, spends his evenings in his radio-equipped home or motors over good highways to the nearest city.

About a thousand tons of clay concentrates from Mayo, B.C., as the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, were shipped in England recently, this being part of a movement of 1,500 tons monthly from a mine which started five months ago and which ships lead concentrate to California.

Nearly 12,000 extra men are finding employment this summer in the Canadian Pacific Railway's program of construction, maintenance and improvement from coast to coast of the Dominion. Program includes laying of branch lines, repairing and renovating of right of way, bridges, tunnels, stations and other buildings. The men in general are recruited as near as possible to the scene of work and have steadily employed until each job is finished.

Boasting the world's record in passenger traffic operation, Western Canada carries into effect this light this year with the 1362 mile mountaineer run from Port William to Calgary of the Canadian Pacific locomotive number 2816. A number of locomotives of this class are now being built by the railway company with roller-bearing boxes which will still further facilitate engine operations on long runs.

The season's first climb of Mt. Temple, 11,500-foot peak in the Rockies, was made last week by Dr. Thorington of Philadelphia, walkdown writer and Alpinist, and W. Kerr, of Vancouver. Edward Feuz, one of Swiss guides in the Rockies, was in charge of the climb which started from Chateau Lake Louise at three in the morning and reached the summit at 9.

With the opening of the New Pines Hotel at Digby and of the Algonquin Hotel at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea at the end of June, the tourist season in the Maritime Provinces is now in full swing. Reservations at both hotels are very heavy, forecasting a prosperous season.

Difficulties met by Canadian and United States motorists when taking their cars to Europe have been overcome by facilities afforded by the Canadian Pacific Railway, under which the owner can ship his car as baggage between Canada and European points in either direction. The Company arranges for the necessary customs and registration documents for every country to be visited, for international license plates, and membership in the Royal Automobile Club. The car is unloaded within an hour of the ship's arrival and is furnished with oil and a small supply of gasoline and made ready for the road. There is no red-tape, no bond or other financial guarantee required.

Believed to be the largest salmon ever taken by fly on the Restigouche River, Cape Breton, Archie Jousby, Bangeorie Club guide, hooked a fish recently that weighed 32 lbs. was 42 inches long and with a girth of 21 inches. The fish has been photographed for reproduction in the Saturday Evening Post.

The railway grade crossing problem is not a problem of the railways alone, but essentially a "safety problem" and responsibility for its solution rests equally upon the railways as a whole. In the opinion of W. P. Borland, United States Bureau of Safety, United States Interstate Commerce Commission, in an address before the National Safety Council at Detroit.

In the 17th century, spectacles though fairly common, were articles of some cost, and frequently formed the subject of bequests in wills.

At the Eastern Ontario championships to be held at the Bay of Quinte Club tomorrow afternoon two of the games left over from the invitation tournament held on August 4th will also be decided. H. Vesey of Oshawa will meet Doug Orans of Kingston in the men's singles for the final game and mixed doubles, the finalists being two teams from Oshawa will also be played off, to declare a winner. The senior and intermediate playoffs will start immediately after these games have been played.

The tournament will include the best players from Whitby on the west to Cramptonville on the east and north to Peterboro, Campbellford, and Tweed. Belleville and vicinity should consider themselves fortunate that the league decided to hold the playoffs on the local courts at the Country Club. The intermediate semi finals will be played between Point Anne and Kingston with the winners meeting Whitby. After the games are completed the presentation of prizes will be made in the club house, when will be followed by a dinner in the clubhouse and the day brought to a close by a social evening.

BOY DROWNED

Brockville, Ont Sept. 5—Resuscitation efforts over a period of two hours led by Earl Steel, 756 Coxwell Avenue, Toronto, and M. J. Densmore, 619 Jarvis street in the same city, who were pressing at the time of the accident, failed to restore life to Donald Mallory, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Harold Mallory, 232 King street east, who was drowned shortly after leaving his classroom following his second day at school.

HERE'S A CURE FOR CHRONIC SLICER

If one is a chronic slicer and wishes ready relief without a series of lessons, study the picture here and try to stand in this manner. It will be observed that the left foot is very far advanced, a very exaggerated closed stance. It is impossible for one to slice in this manner if the ball is hit with any force as the club comes to the ball from the inside and finishes on the outside of the line of flight. A weak effort would send that the ball is merely headed to the right which would not be a slice at all. One must make sure to follow through and the result will be a hook nine times out of ten. The other try will be a straight ball.

This tip is for the unerrable slicer. As one goes on driving this way he should gradually advance his right foot until it is even with the left. If the slice comes back put the right foot back again.

PEARCE WINS WITH WRIGHT

Australian Sculler, With Easy Style, Leads From First to Finish

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Bob Pearce, the super-sculler from Down Under, gave a crowd along the Exhibition sea-wall last night a glimpse of his prowess and style when he pulled through a rollicking waters to a victory over Joe Wright, Jr., Canadian champion and former winner of the Diamond Sculls. Pearce won the quarter-mile special dash by about three-quarters of a boat length in one minute twenty and a fifth seconds.

Joe Wright, the smiling Argo ace, took up a sturdy fight against his brilliant rival, dug in doubly hard to cut down an early deficit, crept up close near the mid-way mark, but he could never pass the Olympic champion, who shot his frail shell through the waters with ease and smoothness Pearce pull away from the start and was never headed, just as he did in the dash and regular Henley route of a mile 550 yards at Hamilton.

ACCIDENT HALTS THE HONEYMOON

Robert Ferguson Getting Car Ready Injured As Jack Slips

WELLINGTON, Sept. 5—Who is the man who suffered the hardest luck in August? The answer lies just across the bay in Prince Edward County. Robert Ferguson was happy as he was married on Saturday last. On Monday however, Mr. Ferguson was fitting his automobile, which was jacked up in order that he might work under more favorable conditions. Suddenly the car slipped from its "moorings" while the bridegroom was underneath it. Unfortunately, his head and face were under one of the wheels and he suffered some nasty cuts and bruises. A man who was working with him succeeded in raising the car and Dr. Thompson of Wellington was called. Mr. Ferguson who had a wedding trip all planned was unable to start. His friends are pleased to learn that he has recovered.

Macks Win In 15th Simmons the Hero

Philadelphia, Sept. 5.—Al Simmons played hero role as the Philadelphia Athletics took the second game of the series from the Boston Red Sox after a 15 inning struggle 8 to 7.

Simmons singled in the final inning with the bases loaded and two out to score the winning tally. In the fourteenth inning, with the visitors two runs in the lead, Simmons knocked out a home run to tie the count and make it necessary for his other telling wallop.

Lefty Grove was on the mound for the Athletics at the time the victory was scored and was given credit for his second win in two days and his twenty-fourth of the season.

TWEED SINGER WINNER MEDAL

Miss Dorothy Sager Takes Second Place in C.N.E. Contest

In competition with the best soprano that Canada can offer, Miss Dorothy Sager, of Tweed, carried off the silver medal and second place in the dramatic soprano section at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. The contest was held on Tuesday morning last.

Miss Sager is only seventeen years old. She has been studying music only since last fall, which adds to the honors that have fallen to her. Studying under Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, of Peterboro, Miss Sager has a beautiful rich voice. She has sung in Belleville, at Eastertime, in the Bridge Street United Church choir, when she was visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Houston, Charles street.

Miss Sager is a niece of W. E. Tummon, M.P., for this riding. The latter stated to The Ontario Intelligencer today that he was delighted enjoyed at the honour that she had won. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sager, of Tweed. It is interesting to note that the winner of the first place was awarded eighty-one points, while Miss Sager was only three points behind, scoring seventy-eight.

In this Modern New Plant

MARCONI

has perfected Radio

3* Different Ways

●In this new Marconi plant the very latest manufacturing, assembling and testing equipment enables expert Marconi craftsmen to complete 15 sets every thirty minutes.

FOR over thirty years Marconi engineers have amazed the world with repeated achievements in wireless. Now the same men who have made the name Marconi famous in wireless have turned their attention to Radio Receiving Sets.

A Dominion-wide investigation determined three essentials Canadians wanted in radio. Then, in accordance with known facts and public demand, Marconi perfected its radios 3 different ways: in tone, in appearance and in selectivity.

Three different groups of outstanding Canadian authorities—musicians, interior decorators and scientists—have now tested Marconi's contributions to radio (1) NATURAL tone quality (2) MODERN cabinet beauty and (3) CLEAN CUT sensitive-selectivity—AND EACH GROUP HAS UNRESERVEDLY APPROVED the New Marconis!

See, hear, and test the new Marconi Radio tonight at your nearest Marconi Dealer's Store.

Here are the 3* Different Ways MARCONI has Perfected Radio

Dynamic Speakers mean True Tone

1 TONE—Marvelous . . natural . . specially designed speaker and amplifier give perfect tone quality . . Tested and approved by such outstanding Canadian artists and musicians as Dr. Ernest MacMillan, Dr. Herbert Austin Fricker, Madame Jeanne Dusseau, Boris Hambourg, Stanley Gardner and George Brewer.

Correct Design means True Beauty

2 APPEARANCE—Beautiful . . absolutely correct, modern design . . judged and approved by such outstanding interior decorators and social leaders as Mrs. Minerve Elliot, Miss Martha Allan, Dr. A. E. Whitehead, Mr. Adjutor Savard, Mr. J. Herbert Hodgins and Dr. Augustin Frigon.

Matched Coils Keener Sensitivity

3 SENSITIVE-SELECTIVITY—Amazingly keen and accurate on both far and near stations. Tested and approved by world-famous radio engineers . . A set that requires no artificial tone adjustment yet one that will bring in stations you never hoped to get.

SHOWING THE WAY

Toronto bricklayers in agreeing upon a three days' week with the day's salary unchanged accepted in part principle the suggestion made last Saturday at Washington that the day was coming when a three day week would be accepted in lieu of th present six day week and that men would earn the same money for the short period as for the present working period.

Everywhere the action of the union and the decision of the employers not to cut wages but to give every man half of the week for work have been praised as a sure sign that labor is willing to share one another's burdens.

Should the same principle of sharing be adopted not only between members of the same union but between unions and then between unions and the great mass of society, to many it would look as if a mid-lenium had been ushered in. Some such form may work out and perhaps depression may not occur——

The self-sacrificing spirit of the bricklayers for the good of the union and of the building trade and in the long run of industry and business must be commended. This is far different from the spirit of those who batten on the difficulties and hard time of others.

People are going to eat, to be clothed and to be sheltered, in short, they are going to live through depressions as well as through good times and it is better that they be well fed, well clothed and well housed than half fed, clothed and sheltered. If any class is responsible for men being workless and ill-fed, then that class suffers along with the unwilling victims.

QUESTION MARKS?

Why the name 'Question Mark'"?

Is it because all aviation is a question? because the end of every journey is in doubt? "Does the question mark foretell disaster by acting like a charm or amulet?

Dieudonne Coste has broken records. There is no question about that.

Indeed the only question about the Question Mark is its name.

Does a name mean anything? Perhaps this one does signify and symbolize the yet unachieved. Perhaps the name suggests this what shall not this ship conquer, what records shall it not break?

Dieudonne Coste has set the work asking "What next?" from this airship and this airman? Who can beat him? What is the end of aviation?

WOMAN'S WORLD

The deft hands of the housewives on the farms of Hastings County still work at the handiwork and the evidences of this will be shown on every side at the fall exhibitions up and down the counties in this part of Eastern Ontaro. The edible cakes, the delicious pies which even judges taste with a great deal of relish, the tarts and the preserves of all fruits, which go to make up the fruit display and the home cooking contests will be the centre of all eyes. Many a lip will smack and many a mouth water as the crowds move by in procession to enjoy the sights.

Every one envies a homecooking judge particularly at fair time. He or she gets the cream of everything. Such sampling must be hard on the judge's own household if the judge is a man, for the example of nice cakes is better than precepts and recipes. Just to see them is to know that they do exist.

The handiwork of the farm boudoir, the sweet cookings made in the kitchen and put away in the cellar are two of the lines by which the great public sees that life is accomplishing something on the farms. These women learn by practice and benefit by the institutes. Though the baking of bread for instance today is not so general in the country as it once was, the art remains. It excels in piemaking according to the notions of men on the farm or anywhere else.

These are but two lines in which the progress of farm life is marked. No wonder rural fairs ought to be well patronized, to see these arts in their full florescence.

A CHILLING THOUGHT

Snow fell in Alberta this week and it will fall here within two months is the cheerful news for the coalmen and the bad news for the coalburner.

THE TRAMP SHIP

A tramp ship from the fog-bound northern sea,
Blinding a course through sleet and angry foam,
Swung into berth beside the shivering quay,
That winter's dawn to bring my lover home.

The dock-hands stirred and cursed themselves awake,
Mocking the grimy tramp, all bent and torn
By murderous wave and fierce ice-pointed flake
And yet to me, whose prayers were for that morn,

More wonderful than purple Tyrian ships,
Or golden galleons coming home to Spain,
When he caressed and comforted my lips,
Seemed the poor hulk that gave me him again.

—Laurence Powys, in the Spectator.

A LIVE SNAKE wandering about the Exhibition grounds is an added attraction which Canadian National Exhibition officials would gladly dispense with. Fifteen feet of python is something to look at, but not out in the open. Fortunately the reptile had just been fed so will not be hungry for a few weeks, but just the same——

TWO BELLEVILLE GIRLS visiting in Peterboro, had an unusual experience the other day, when their good looks flagged an express train and caused the engineer to say some words not written in that order in the Talmud or the Koran either. They were just two giggly girls on the happy-hop out for a good time, miles from home, and all that kind of thing, don't you know, and positively didn't mean any harm—but they knew the conductor and hereby hangs a tale, because the engineer didn't know that they knew the conductor and the engineer didn't know the girls and the girls didn't know the engineer, but they knew a fine looking chap when they saw one and he knew fine looking girls when he saw them and he saw them then—but here's the story as related in "Main Street Topics" and printed in the Peterboro Examiner:

SMILE STOPPED TRAIN

Dashing breathlessly through the barrier at Charlotte street crossing Saturday, just as the 8.20 a.m. Lindsay-bound train was pulling out, two young ladies were the innocent cause of the loss of a few minutes, which would doubtless have to be regained by a somewhat disgruntled engineer. He was a handsome man, too. A fact which probably played a major part in the comedy of errors.

The girls reached the barrier at about the same time as the engine, from the cab of which the engineer smilingly peered. They waved to him —a friendly gesture, misinterpreted as a signal that the damsels wished to board his train. The brakes screeched. The trainman and conductor appeared at the open doors of the cars willing to assist the late arrivals. The two young innocents kept walking alongside the train. Their leisurely gait betrayed no undue excitement They passed the first door, second and third, and finally the last door, and much to the amusement of the onlookers and the embarrassment of the train crew, continued on their way up the platform, absolutely unconscious of the stir they had caused.

ALL WEEK SHE WAITS FOR THIS HOUR

How excited — and how happy — she was the first time she heard her son's voice come over the telephone from a distant city. Talking with him was as easy as though he were in the same room. It was something to remember and to cherish for days afterwards.

And how much happier she has become, because Fred comes home by telephone now every week. He calls her every Sunday evening at eight-thirty. It is an hour she waits for and looks forward to all week long. It brightens days that had become a bit empty and lonely with the family scattered.

Fred is happier, too. For the price of a movie he gets something no money can measure — his mother's voice — a touch of home. It's a fine way to start a new week's work.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls now begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want—it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

On The Sport Trail

Grab yourself a taxi a motor car or hitch hike to Peterboro to watch the hostilities between Belleville Nationals and the Bell Telephone in the third and deciding game of the playoffs. Each team have won one game and the local boys think they can come through as they have on many other occasions. Bells are just another team to the locals and after testing their strength for two games believe they have enough reserve power to take the final tilt. No doubt a large number of fans will go out to the Lett Lock City as there has been more base ball talk in the city for the past year than in years past. The fans are beginning to realize that Belleville has another team of championship quality even though they have but one hurler on the staff.

Ales. Weir felt fit and ready for another go at the Hello Boys when he jumped off the rubbing board at the Y.M.C.A. after Ralph Morden had given the flinging arm a thorough massage. Ales complained of a slight strain under the shoulder blade but this was taken out and the tiredness in the arm had entirely disappeared This boy is young and strong and will recuperate rapidly and it is believed that he will take his team through. If Belleville wins tomorrow in the Lett Lock City they w ll likely enjoy a byt to meet the winners of St. George of Toronto and Oshkes of Hamilton. This would give the team a breathing space and fit them for the drive down the stretch. Merrifon is likely to win the round from Dunforth and Gali should put Native Sons away. Both of the games are played tomorrow in Merrifon and Gali respectively. Fans are hoping for another Gait-Belleville fin i.

Bill Cretney is the local hero at the present time all because of his excellent showing so far in the series with the Bells. This boy could always hit but some doubted his fielding propensities but after his remarkable catch on Wednesday all will agree he can go get them. He is awkward looking in the field but results have proved that he gets there and that is what counts. Ranged alongside of him in the outfield is another clever outfielder in Earl "Mode" Darrah. He can gallop miles and his judgment is nearly perfect. Dusty Pilgier the other member of the outer guard is a steady field er but lacks the hitting quality. Belleville has as good an outfield as in their history much as can be said to the contrary. The inner works is steadied with George Scott showing a fine improvement at short.

The Nationals have probably one for the book in their infield. It is composed of brothers George and Robert Scott. Vernon and Alex Welr and Harry and William Mills. Probably never such a combination has ever existed either in professional nor amateur ball and the way they are covering about their respective position the combination is not likely to be broken up for some years to come. "Peeney" Mills the veteran of the infield is probably playing the best game of his career this summer and he is simply potent to a pitcher with men on the runways.

Belleville in the past has sported yachts, that won international races, ball teams that have won Provincial championships, hockey teams that have proved keen competitors and now takes its place in the harness horse world with the advent of Bud Grattan over the horizon, who takes his place with Jim K. and other racers that have gone on to the horses' paradise. Bud Grattan was bred and raised in Belleville by Dr. Benson, the mother of the colt being Bella Watts and the sire Lacco Grattan once raced by the late lamented Edward "Pop" Geers. After receiving his early education he was taken to Dufferin Park for the fall meet last year and after a remarkable showing was purchased by J. T. Payette of Penetanguishene. Yesterday at Penetang, racing before his adopted home lovers, Bud Grattan tripped a mile in 2.08 1-4 to break all existing records for that racing strip. The horse will be driven a well earned rest and will be campaigned over the Raging Grand next summer. Clifford Chapman is the trainer, that has been in the pilot house in all his fast mile. During his campaign this summer Bud Grattan has only dropped one race and in that one he was raced fore legged.

The stay at homes that enjoy a game of tennis should journey to the Country Club on Saturday afternoon to witness the senior and intermediate Eastern Ontario championships. Teams from Toronto on the west and Ottawa on the east will be on hand and some of the best racket wielders will be seen in action. The programme will start at two o'clock and continue till all the events are run off. The Country Club with its excellent four asphalte courts is the ideal place to run off such an event and this should be the largest sporting event to be held in Belleville this season.

It is not a far cry to cold weather and Belleville in a sporting way is better equipped than ever. The artificial rink will open about the middle of November and the hockey players will be in excellent condition for the long grind that will bring fame or misfortune. Stirn Burgoyne, the coach, retired will be in the city the first of November to take charge. Belleville should enter two well balanced squads in senior B and junior O.H.A. competition. There is some excellent material in the city and some new prospects to look over.

Mrs. Minaker thanked the Hillier Women's Institute for their hospitality which was replied to by Mrs. Ernest Terry who on behalf of the Hillier Institute expressed appreciation of the excellent programme given. The meeting closed with God Save the King. Sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Bruce, Toronto, Mrs. King Terry, Mrs. C. L. Jones, Mrs. Lloyd, Miss Bessie Way.

In the paper Mrs. Minaker gave on Luck, three of the outstanding hints were:

The definition—
What we call luck
Is simply pluck
And doing things over and over.
Courage and will
Perseverance and skill

Are the four leaves of luck's clover.
Interpretation of P to luck and call it pluck and it will stand for personality, preparation, perseverance, patience and luck will follow.
Don't you worry—
There's a town called Don't you worry
On the banks of River Smile
Where the Cheer Up and Be happy Blossom sweetly all the while Where the Never Grumble Flower Blossoms beside the fragrant Try
And the Never Give Up and Patience Point their faces to the sky.

In the Valley of Contentment
In the Province of I Will
You will find this lovely city
At the foot of NO PRE-SHI Hill
There are thoroughfares delightful
In this very charming town
And on every hand are shade trees planted
By Try Seldom Frown.

Rustic benches, quite enticing
You'll find scattered here and there
And to each a vine is clinging
Called the Freedom Ernest Prayer
Everybody there is happy
And is singing all the while
In the town of Don't You Worry
On the banks of River Smile.

LUCKY GIRL

By Hazel Livingstone

Beyond the bulk of the menacing figure swaying its long arms, pointing its finger, calling for arrest..... cold blooded calculating ..... murderess .....Cathie saw her mother. Saw Mary Pope sitting up straight as a ramrod.....white-faced, contemptuous, furious ..... fighting mad.....

Something in Cathie seemed to crack. She thought, "Now I'm going to faint.....I'm going to slide right out of my chair onto the floor and the Judge will see my face.....I can't stand them all looking at me.....looking at me.....".

But she didn't faint. She didn't move. She sat immobile, waxy-faced, half unconscious, and the district attorney's words pattered all about her, and never penetrated her numbed brain at all.

Some time later she realized that he had stopped talking. He was through telling what the people were going to prove about Calbfrine Farns worth.

SECRETS TAKEN

Mr. Allan was on his feet. "At this time, if your honor please," he was saying in his smooth, rich voice so different from the district attorney's harsh, loud one, "the defendant requests that the jury be instructed that the opening statement of the district attorney is not evidence in the case."

The Judge put on his glasses again. He said in his nice, tired voice, "I suppose that you understand, ladies and gentlemen, that any statement made by the attorneys is not evidence. It is merely an outline of what the district attorney expects to produce in the way of testimony here, in order that you may more clearly understand the case."

Then he got up and walked out, using a little door in the rear of the room.

Mr. Allan wiped his bald head. "There will be a ten minute recess," he explained to Cathie.

Cathie looked down at her hands. A ten minute recess in the trial for her life.

CHAPTER 45

The ten minute recess was over. Judge East was back on the bench, which wasn't a bench at all, but a high backed chair in back of a big square desk raised upon a platform. Cathie had to crane her neck to look up at him from her place next to Mr. Allan and Mr. Gunther and, Ms. at the defendant's table.

Inspector Horgan was called, and after him Inspector Bidwell. They told about being sent for by telephone, and coming out to the house on Presidio Terrace and finding Mr. Farnsworth dead.

They told a lot of other things too. How long they had been in the police department, and things like that. Well that was all right, Cathie didn't mind, though it took time. She relaxed a little, realized that her head was aching in small, and wondered how many more days it would last. She wished Gordon could have sat there at the table with her. It would have helped to have him .....You need people you love at times like this .....

SOMETHING ON STAND

Suddenly when the coroner took the stand. As he talked the court-room seemed to slip away. Cathie was back in the big house..... running up the third floor stairs, wringing her hands listening to Marguerite .... hearing the house some alive again ..... chatter of frightened Chinese, growl of men's voices, slam-bang of the front door opening and shutting .... Back in her own room again, the silver and turquoise room Mr. Farnsworth had fixed for her .... cowering there, listening to the sound of the slow footsteps of the men who came to carry him away .... hearing the peculiar measured tread of men carrying a heavy body .... carefully .... around the corners, Thinking, I'll always hear it.... I'll never be able to forget it.... It will be branded into me forever.... even if they let me go free ....

It hurt to see old Mr. Vaughan slowly and rheumatically climb the witness stand. Mr. Farnsworth would have called it an outrage .... he was always so considerate of old Mr. Vaughan . . . .

The old man's voice wasn't very strong. "A little loudet," it you please We have people in Scarborough who aren't quite as deaf as you think."

Cathie was relieved when they were through with him. She hadn't really heard a word he said, she was so worried lest the effort prove too much for him.

SECRETARY CALLED

After him came other witnesses. People who had known Mr. Farnsworth, Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Allan really did most of the talking. About all they gave the witnesses a chance to say was "Yes" and "No." Mr. Macmillan was trying to make them say that there was something queer about Mr. Farnsworth's sudden marriage to her. Mr. Allan was trying to establish proof that the marriage had been all right.

And then they called Marsha Darrow. Cathie saw Mr. Allan's fat neck stiffen, his shoulders straighten like .... Mr. Macmillan was all taut nerves too.

Marsha Darrow seemed to enjoy being a witness. She wore a smart little coat suit of tan cloth, and a red hat that scooped off her face in front and had a little bit of ruffle down over her shoulders. Cathie had the old sensation of being shabby beside her.

Marsha Darrow was accustomed to be seen, she did very well. Was she in her confidence? She couldn't say that. Didn't love seem two-sided, and the defendant, for six months in the late Alfred Farnsworth's office? Yes, but they didn't have that much in common. No, she wasn't surprised to hear of the marriage of her 65-year-old employer and the 19-year-old stenographer.

TELLS OF LOANS

"I saw it coming," she said. "I understood the situation. She was very poor—and she had previously borrowed several hundred dollars from him. He was very heavily in love with her, see? So it was quite natural for her to accept his offer."

Cathie's lower lip began to tremble. She caught it tight in her teeth, and stared straight ahead.

"Do you know exactly why he loaned her the money?"

"No."

"In the best of your judgment, was it a friendly loan? A case of this girl needing money, and this wealthy man acceding to her requests?

"Yes. She told us in the office that her mother was very sick, so I suppose that was why she needed money. I know that the money was loaned to her because I did Mr. Farnsworth's banking and saw the check stubs. I know that the money was ill because Miss Paige told me so. I do not know of course, that this was the reason for Mr. Farnsworth borrowing from Mr. Farnsworth, but I think so." Miss Darrow settled back complacently. She knew she was being a good witness.

Cathie felt her mother jerk herself upright in the straight chair. Saw the sweet mouth twitch .... met with glance at Cathie .... her hurt eyes asking, "Cathie, is this true?" .... Poor Ma, she hadn't known about the money Mr. Jerry had got it from her .... and now she had to find out this way.... Cathie hung her head.

WITNESS ROCKED

Ma was trying to hold her chin up pugnaciously .... succeeding a minute longer. Then her head sank back in her hands. Ma had given up .... Cathie saw it out of the corner of her eye. The tears were dripping through her black-gloved hands, running in rivulets down her dress .... She made no sound, but her head was shaking, and the hat sliding back further and further .... You know she was crying in her heart .... "For me.... my girl..... she did it for me....."

A little electric shiver went through the courtroom. A shiver of anticipation. ....

"You are also acquainted with the Farnsworths' friend, Mr. Preston Moore?" the district attorney was ask-

A nervous girl tittered.

ROMANCE RECITED

Miss Darrow shot a sudden, angry look at Cathie. "Yes, I am."

"And how long was Mrs. Farnsworth

COFFINS WASHED FROM CEMETERIES AWFUL SCENES IN SANTO DOMINGO TWO THOUSAND DEAD IS ESTIMATE

Magnitude of Disaster Gradually Dawning on Dazed People—Work of Reconstruction Begins—Description of Scenes with Thousands of Buildings Levelled and Washed Away.

Santo Domingo, Sept. 6 (By Associated Press) — Relief agencies speeding to the assistance of this stricken city today encountered conditions of horror which have been enacted rather than mitigated since the storm Wednesday.

Between 1500 and 2000 persons it is now reported to be dead from the terror which hit Santo Domingo last Wednesday.

More than 5,000 were injured. Thirty thousand are homeless and of 10,000 buildings, 4000 are left standing. Property damage will pass $20,000,000.

Finish set of Cemeteries

The water works having been destroyed there is no water fit to drink. Floods have washed out the newly buried in the cemeteries and coffins float around like card wood. The dead are being collected in mounds and heaps and burned above the ground. Wagons are loaded with bodies.

Their is hardly any clothing to be had. Nakedness and starvation are everywhere. The people appear to be in a daze.

Huge Hole Blown In Building Side

Hamilton, Sept. 6 (CP)—A hole large enough to drive a car through was blown in the side of the building and the whole wall was bulged out. St. James Anglican Church across the street was badly damaged. The explosion occurred when a few people were on the street and it is believed no one was hurt. William Yates, manager of the theatre, says this is the latest of a long series of outrages perpetrated at the theatre which is said to be non-union in its operation.

Police are investigating the case. They report that two men were seen at midnight in the neighborhood of the theatre.

SELF-CRACKING NUTS TO BE GROWN

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 6 —Here's comfort for the people who have a hard time in exercising the shell from the proverbially stubborn nut.

Dr. A. W. Hill, of the botanical research station at Kew, told the British Association for the Advancement of Science, that it was at last possible to produce self-cracking nuts.

"This is a valuable achievement in a commercial sense," Dr. Hill remarked. "For instance in California pistache nuts have been commercially valueless owing to the cost of cracking them."

French Manoeuvres Demonstrate Trench Warfare and Heavy Artillery Things of Past

Paris, Sept. 6.—Military men say that the French war-game manoeuvres on two far-flung fronts—the usual battle military movements since the close of the world war—appeared definitely to have proved trench warfare was a thing of the past and that heavy artillery was virtually obsolete.

Foreign experts invited to view yesterday manoeuvres on the Germans and Italian frontiers of France, were unan mous in their praise of the grand strate and efficiency in which the manoeuvres were carried out, and in their opinion that the artillery units of 1914-18, would be almost useless in war as it may be fought to-day.

"Bubs" not only was a tower of strength to the Tricolor's football team but also was one of the best players on Kingston's team in the Central Ontario Baseball League and will be much missed in sporting circles here.

Think Over Seventy-Five People Idle Comment on Report

What is the number of unemployed in Belleville at the present time? is a question that is heard about the streets today based on a report from Ottawa giving seventy-five as the number of idle men here.

One prominent citizen did not agree with the report, putting his estimate up in the hundred mark even perhaps to two hundred or more. He thinks the Ottawa statement misleading and likely to cause a rush of unemployed to this city. "If the report is true then we shall have no trouble this winter" he said. "We have been expecting about three hundred this winter to be out of work."

The Canadian Legion is going to make an appeal next week for all ex-service men to register at the Legion offices and work will try to be found for them. Legion officials believe that there will be probably seventy-five returned soldiers report at the very least. One of the executive stated to The Ontario Intelligencer this morning that he could name seventy-five men out of work without any trouble at all and he did not suppose that he knew a third of the real amount.

Trenton in Good Shape

Trenton, on the contrary, is in good shape as far as unemployment is concerned. "We are doing" a public official said to the press today," one hundred thousand dollars worth of city work; our factories are all running full giat; the canning factory is running night and day and is constantly enlarging. I wouldn't say that we had over fifty unemployed in the town of Trenton today, and the majority of these, perhaps, are the "habitual unemployed, who wouldn't take a job if it were offered to them. He, we are not bothered with any unemployment here to any extent.'

But Trenton does not want any of other idle men to come to Trenton, that is clear. Trenton men get Trenton jobs.

Australia expects to be benefitted by the new German-Polish commercial treaty.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION TAXED TO FULL

Some Scholars at Queen Victoria School Sit Two in Seat

SPACE AT PREMIUM

High School Instruction in Public Schools Will Create Problem

Crowded conditions in the schools in Belleville will present an interesting problem to the Board of Education this fall. Belleville is possessed of as fine public schools and collegiate as any city, no matter how large, in the Dominion, but every year capacity has been getting a little more taxed.

Queen Victoria school, on Pine street, faces the biggest problem of all the public schools, Mr. Edgar Bateman, assistant principal, stated to the press today. "The rooms are crowded to capacity. There are over five hundred students attending Pine street school this year. "We are using every available inch of space," the assistant principal stated to The Ontario Intelligencer. "Why, the public may well realize it, but in some of the rooms the children are sitting two in a seat!"

New Problem

Pine street school has a fine auditorium, but it is not used for that purpose alone. Classes are held in it as in every other room that can be commandeered.

The other public schools, although crowded, have not their capacity taxed to such an extent. It is understood that King George School even has one room to spare.

It is being talked in provincial educational circles at present of having the first two years of high school held in the primary schools and the first two years of university conducted in the collegiates and high schools. As the local schools are crowded at present this would practically be an impossible condition, Belleville teachers assert.

The collegiate is well filled this year. One member of the Board of Education told the press that there was still accommodation for more pupils.

BENNETT ALREADY ACCOMPLISHING SAYS M. P. AT THURLOW GATHERING

especially pleased to extend a welcome to the Sidney Conservatives who were meeting with them.

Mr. Harold Cummings of Sidney was voted to the chair, he being President of the Township Association, who related he appreciated the honor which had been extended to him to ask him to preside. He was pleased to be present upon this occasion with a gathering of the Conservatives of Thurlow Township.

Member's Thanks

Mr. W. E. Tummon, M.P., upon being called upon to speak was accorded a hearty reception in his opening remarks the popular member referred to the activities of the Thurlow Conservative Association composed of both men and women and the fine support given him by the township at the recent general election. He desired to take the present opportunity of thanking not only the Thurlow but the Sidney Association for their hearty cooperation in rolling up for him a fine majority. He appreciated that vote of confidence reposed in him and would do his best to serve faithfully.

Why King Lost

Previous to election it was thought the Conservative party would be returned to power and it proved to be a tremendous sweep. It went to show that a party in power in Parliament cannot preach one policy and upon the hustings have another policy. The late Government in Parliament apparently favored the United States but during the campaign turned its face towards the British Empire. The people of Canada however, and by their votes we will treat the party which has proved to be a protective party and a party that has been true to the British Empire. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Premier is an outstanding man in Canada and he the speaker, has faith in him as a leader when in opposition and he has great faith in him as Prime Minister of Canada. The Conservative party would give such legislation as will be of benefit to this country as a whole.

Already Accomplishing.

Hon. R. B. Bennett has in five weeks accomplished much. He has selected his cabinet, and all its members have gone back to their respective constituencies and been re-elected. In addit on a programme has been prepared for the opening of Parliament. Mr. Tummon could not tell what that programme will be, but all could rest assured that the Premier will set about to fulfil the promises he made to the people of this country. Mr. Tummon in referring to the Imperial conference in England in the latter part of September said that the electors of Canada had said who would represent this country at that conference. Hon. Mr. Bennett had not divulged who would accompany him to that important gathering as it was obligatory to usage to do so. In concluding his brief address Mr. Tummon again returned his thanks for the hearty support given him on July 28th.

The proceedings were brought to a close by cheers for Mr. Tummon and the singing of the National Anthem, after which refreshments were served.

C. G. E'S SHOW SMART PERFORMANCE DEFEATING PT. ANNE 7 TO 3 IN FINAL

Uroski Outpitched Gibson and Pointer to Win Series, Hurler Backed By Splendid Fielding and Timely Hitting. Fred Ash Shone for Winners, while Earl "Sunny" Green Stole Limelight for Losers. Point Anne Team Guilty of Misjudgment on Critical Plays.

By C. D. T.

Taking advantage of the errors in commission made by the Point Anne team, the Canadian General Electric team of Peterboro, won the third and final game from the Cementmen at the fairgrounds Saturday afternoon by a score of 7-3 and looked all over the better team. They will now meet the Arabs of Oshawa in the next round of the intermediate series and by their display yesterday will take a lot of beating in that competition and the wishes of the Point Anne team go with them in their quest. Everyone played a big part in the outcome of the game, although the Cementmen had the home crowd sick of them, due to their winning the toss for the last game, and also the choice of bat. Price locally all the players taking part for the C. G. E. team were players of senior calibre and some of them formerly the backbone of the senior team in Peterboro for some years, particularly "Shiner" Johnson, Max Swanston and Ray Stone and they showed their experience in working a squeeze play and a double steal, the Point Anne squad being flabbergasted on each attempt.

Arguments Will Follow

The battle will be fought all over again for many months and the second guessers will have a rare time telling what would have happened had Point Anne executed plays differently. Some will say the first error was in not starting "Hoot" Gibson back at the Peterboro plan after he had completely subdued them in the 1/ft Lock City on Saturday last, administering a load of whitewash. His hurling after Pointer had been taken out would have justified starting him. Gibson had a long rest from Saturday and with his experience, there might have been a different story to write. Pointer, who was slated for mound duty, pitched well but in his mind we did not exhibit the same confidence that they did behind Gibson, when he ascended the hurling peak. It was a bad day for a southpaw as the wind blew directly from the west and his curve ball had to fight its way into the gale at every pitch. Then again the team made two bobbles in the first innings on successive ropy and this unsettled Pointer. A run was scored that was certainly unearned and gave the Peterboro team confidence.

Iafle's Weak at Times

The infield of the Cementmen was very weak at times. Bob Gaulin made a bad play when he held the ball after he had trapped Johnson between first and second, allowing Swanston to slide into the plate without making a play on him. Frank Goyer did not cover the plate on an attempted squeeze play in the fifth and that innings was the downfall of the locals. Back of it all however was the swell pitching of Uroski, formerly a hurler on the National corps. This boy has developed more speed in his scrapbook by the Ozonides and certainly more confidence. He allowed but six hits and the only time they were bunched was in the fifth frame when three came in the frame. He seemed to be on top of the batters, something that was foreign to him in Belleville, and his underarm delivery was serving splendidly. He also had the advantage of a real infield with Fred Ash as the sparkplug for the plays. "Vinny" was right in his glory and had the honor of trimming some of his old team mates twice in the series. He did get in trouble in the ninth frame but a pop fly with three men on bases and two out ended the hostilities.

Ash the Sparkplug

Speaking of first baemen one would have to go far to over shadow Freddie Ash. Built along the lines of a beau brummel with a good eye and a long reach, he covers acres of ground at first and can go a mile for foul hits in his territory. He played a sparkling game yesterday with Ray Rose another old timer not far behind. Hollingsworth has developed into a smart shortstop and Skinner Johnson can still guard the red light corner. Swanston is the same old standby with the outfield able to go get them but a little light in batting. Earl Green better known as "Sunny" to the fans was the fireworks for the losers. He played a smart game at second and out his any paper on either team. His triple in the first and his double in the fifth accounted for two runs and he was hustling all the time. Hutchings in right field made the features catch of the day when he came in fast to take a looper at his shoe strings. Kerr was unsteady at third, he getting out of a sick bed to play the game. Gaulin paved the way for the first run and was the cause of another in the fifth. The team simply were not hitting and that is the only way that runs can be manufactured.

Credit must be given the Point Anne team for their fine showing against such a well balanced team. The Pointers have had little opposition during the year and never faced real pitching till the series started. They were not four runs the worst team on the ball but runs are what count in baseball. With the team intact next year and an effort made to include teams of faster calibre than last year, the Cementmen will be hard to take by next fall.

YOUNG PROVES SELF CHAMPION IN SHORT SWIM

Powerful 44-to-the-Minute Stroke Beats Toronto Youth's Rivals

EIGHT PRIZES ARE WON

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Swimming with all the strength and smoothness that he had shown in the past, George Young, of Toronto, the Catalina Kid, yesterday swam his way into prominence and $300 in the first of the Canadian National Exhibition three-mile swims. He triumphed after relentlessly wearing down the early opposition shown by Stan Pritchard of Buffalo, coming in an easy 200 yards in front.

Entering the race quietly, not pinning his name as a competitor until a few hours before its start, the powerful Toronto boy took the lead at the start, held his position easily throughout the first two miles and then ran away to come in fresh. He was hardly panting when he crawled out on the float 1 hour, 18 minutes and 32 seconds after he plunged.

Not very far behind him came Stan with Big Bill Sadio just eight minutes behind the latter. The next three places went in order to Alf Sully of Toronto, Gordon Spaulding of Saratoga Springs and T. H. Kindall of Toronto. These three coming in bunched after they had all passed Eddie Meyers of New York. The latter succumbed to cold water but finished gamely in fair shape, taking seventh money. Mene'e Delarie of Los Angeles grabbed the eighth prize. The prizes were $300, $200, $100, $75, $50, $40, $30, $20.

Twenty-nine swimmers started. They fell in a number of places and kicking feet; very few of them greased for the warm water. Despite threatening skies, a huge crowd turned out to watch the start, which grew rapidly as the news of George's entry spread through the Exhibition grounds.

TOLL GATE IN TRACK RECORD

Steps Mile in 2.06 3-4 at Exhibition—Willis Grattan Fails to Equal Mark

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Closing day of the harness races at the Canadian National Exhibition was featured by Toll Gate, the sensational pacer of the present season, establishing a new track record when he stepped the only heat of his race in 2.06 3-4, lowering the old mark made by Grattan Bars of 2.07 1-4. Yesterday Toll Gate only needed th's heat to win the race and he had everything in his favor towards an attempt at the record. Away in the pole position he went to the half in 1.04 and the fans came home the last half in 1.02 3-4.

Later in the day there was also another attempt made to break the track record by Willis Grattan in the third heat of the 2.10 race, but there was nothing in the race which could help him. At that, he just failed of equalling the record when he went the mile in 2.07 with the aid of a strong wind. Despite of Willis Grattan thought that his horse had beaten the mark and was highly elated after the finish, but the timers, and they were three of them, said no. The heat was the third straight for Willis Grattan in the 2.10 pace.

HERE'S BEST GRIP FOR WEAK HANDS

By H. B. Martin

Golfers with very weak hands make a mistake in using the overlapping grip. To get the most out of one's grip one should use the grip that gives him the most power. Americans began golf with the old fashioned grip, that is, the one with all the fingers on the shaft. The thumb of the left was not on the shaft in the palm of the right but later on this was adopted as a compromise between the overlapping and the old 8s. Andrews grip.

Women players with small hands will find that th's grip is the most suited to their needs and provides more power for the swing and the impact.

Coming out party from 7.30 to 9 o'clock Tonight
Standard Time

Twenty-one of the greatest artists and orchestras on the air are to be congregated on this single programme, which will be by far the costliest and, most magnificent hour-and-a-half of entertainment ever produced. It is to be, in effect, a "coming-out party" for the new General Electric Radio receiver—first radio considered worthy to bear that name.

Among the artists engaged will be the two outstanding sopranos of the air—Olive Palmer and Jessica Dragonette; the world's finest male quarette, the Revelers; that one man vaudeville show, Phil Cook; the scintillating two-piano duo, Ohman and Arden—and more than a dozen others whose names are as well or better known, including the outstanding orchestras of the air.

This mighty pageant of the air will reach you over Canada's Cheerio Station, C.K.G.W. or any one of forty other stations on the N.B.C. net work.

General Electric Receivers are on the way and we expect to show samples in a very short time.

ALCOHOL AND THE YOUTH

Sixth of Series of Articles by A. H. Lyle, Field Superintendent, Royal Templars of Temperance

Most "teens" are so busy making a living that too little attention is given to the "making of a life" and yet there is nothing in this world of more importance than the training of the young; bringing to the minds of the boys and girls those great and abiding truths about right living that will prevent them making shipwreck of their lives.

Kobe Children

"The whole history of alcohol is one of destruction, heartbreaks, sorrow and death. For every man killed in war, five have come to an untimely end through drink." Alcohol has robbed more children of the opportunity to "make good" than any other agency known to man. Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, Labrador's missionary-physician says, "I have seen more women ruined, more homes broken and more children brought to the hospital through alcohol than through any other agency."

Impress the Young

If, with all the freshness of their ideals, with their love of freedom and unbounded enthusiasm, we could impress the young men and women with the fact that alcohol is a narcotic drug, which blunts and dulls our higher mental faculties and gives free reign to our baser tendencies, we would soon see a marvelous change in the social customs of this wonderful province of Ontario.

In the Shadow of the Bottle

In our study of the drink problem, we are confronted with several reasons why young men and women commence to dabble with alcoholic drinks. One reason is that at the present time it is considered "smart" to drink wine, cocktails, champagne at social functions and the desire to imitate others leads many young people to drink.

Desire to Imitate

We all know that one of the earliest forms of learning was through the instinct of imitation. In the days of primitive man, camp fire stories were the vehicles of conveying traditions from one generation to another and the son was eager to imitate his father in all his ways. How true it is today that from childhood to adolescence and from that stage to manhood and womanhood, imitation exerts a potency in determining what men and women are and what they do.

The reason we see the drink habit increasing among young people today is because these young folks are following the instinct of imitation and doing what they see their elders do. Today we have easy access to all kinds of liquor and it has become quite the popular thing to drink at social functions and the young are bound to imitate.

Splendid Example

President Hoover has set a splendid example to his people by refusing to allow liquor of any kind to be served in the White House, and realizing the value of example, and realizing the U. S. in convention a few months ago passed a resolution calling upon the people to follow the example of the President and abstain from all alcoholic beverages. If some of our political and social leaders could be persuaded to set as splendid an example as Mr. Hoover has done, our young people would not be faced with the temptation to drink that exists today. Alcohol dulls the brain centres and mental victories are not won by men who cannot think.

Unable to Think

Recently I came across Chas. F. Haanel's book "Cause and Effect" and was interested in his discussion of the effect of drink on the working cells. He expresses himself thus: "The more they think the less satisfied they become. Leaders of men all know this, for this reason England has her ale, Scotland her whisky, France her absinthe, Germany her beer, and we of America who are recruited from all of these have had all forms of alcohol. A man who has had access to a fair amount of alcohol will not ask too many questions. If he does, give him another drink. This method of reducing the citizens of a country to a kind of idiotic servility—may be used for reducing them to economic slavery as well as spiritual slavery, for the man who cannot think has but small prospect of ever coming into any understanding of spiritual truth."

Now often, have we seen boys and girls deprived of an education, so vital to their future welfare, because too much of the earnings of the household had gone to purchase drink. Investigation shows that the boy whose class has only one chance in nine thousand of ever becoming a really successful citizen, while the boy who completing the high school course will have one chance in four hundred. If he goes through college, he will have one chance in forty.

Education Wins

Education will do much to save the coming generations from the ill effects of alcohol, and it is a genuine pleasure for the writer to have the opportunity of going into the schools of the County of Wentworth and bringing to the young people a message that alcohol, as a beverage, is always harmful to the mind and body. The eagerness with which the story is listened to, and the hundreds of splendid essays that have been written on the subject by the scholars, testify to the value of such teachings.

Not the Cults

One cannot forget, however, that past experience indicates that unless there is a great change in our social customs, one in every six of the boys and girls now in our schools will go down through drink. Those who go down will not all be cults, because it seems to be a peculiarity that the brightest minds, the young men endowed with the highest mentality, are very often the most affected by this narcotic poison.

Slow to Learn

Man, the crowning species of creation, is very slow to learn the truths that modern science teaches about alcohol viz:—

1. Alcohol is a poison of all life, whether plant, animal or man.

2. Alcohol is a habit forming drug, most deceptive, alluring and enslaving.

3. Alcohol is a specific cause of degeneracy, an active principle of death for body, mind and soul.

Eclectric Oil will take the fire out of Fur Burns and Scalds—Dr. Thomas' a burn or scald. It should be at hand in every kitchen, so that it may be available at any time. There is no preparation required. Just apply the oil to the burn or scald and the pain will abate and in a short time cease altogether.

MURDERERS HIDE ALL TRACES IN PERRI SLAYING

Inquest Jury Baffled By Thoroughness of Silence

VERDICT IS OPEN

HAMILTON, Sept. 5.—Completely mystified, a coroner's jury was obliged last night to confess itself beaten by the baffling ingenuity with which gang land apparently covered its tracks after the murder of Mrs. Rosie Perri, wife of Rocco Perri, self-crowned king of Ontario's bootleggers.

"We, the jury, find that Rosie Perri came to her death from gunshot wounds inflicted by a person or persons unknown," read the verdict which the jurors returned late this evening after hearing half a score of witnesses, including Perri himself.

The jury was out eight minutes—not much longer than it would take for them to write out their verdict. Before they retired at 10.25 o'clock, the coroner, Dr. G. S. Rennie, M.P., admitted his own mystification in his brief summing up.

Evidence Inconclusive

"The evidence, as far as it goes," Dr Rennie stated, "does not by any means anything to your minds as to who the person or persons were who murdered Rosie Perri."

Next week was given the mystery by the previously undisclosed account of William Graham, black-haired Bolo club entertainer, of what he did on the night of Aug. 13, when Mrs. Perri was shot down in the garage behind the Perri home at 18 Bay street south was engaged on work at the Central public school, half a block north.

Graham, whose evidence seemed in conflict with that of another witness, George Thompson of 137 Duke street, swore that he had seen a cheap looking touring car standing on Bold street, north of the Perri residence facing down the lane by which Perri and his wife had just driven their car into their garage, where the shooting occurred. Graham said that when he heard the shots he was on the fire escape of the corner of Bay and Bold streets in the company of a young man and a girl. He had come to work in the Central school grounds and whose identity he did not know.

Man Runs To and Gets In

Thompson, who lives near the Perri's said he had got in his pyjamas and from his bedroom window had seen a car on Duke street. As he watched it he said, a man ran up and got in the back. The driver had been racing his engine just before this man appeared. Thompson thought he was drunk. He saw two men in the back seat. According to Thompson, seven or eight shots were fired. Other witnesses said there were three or four shots.

She Has Never Had A Lame Back Since

Says Mrs. M. W. Kaley After Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills

New Brunswick lady is enthusiastic about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, N. B., Sept. 6.—Special—Of the many persons paying their tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills, it is noticeable that the great majority are women. The reason given for this being that nearly all of women's ills come from the kidneys.

The following statement comes from Mrs. M. W. Kaley, R. R. No. 2, Woodstock, N. B.:

"When I was a young girl I had a lame back. It used to hurt me to stand up to any work. I took quite a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and have never had a lame back since. I have also given them to my boy for involuntary urination and found them good. My husband has also taken them."

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

Output of copper mines in Canada during a recent month was nearly one-third greater than in the corresponding period of last year.

WAS RUN DOWN AND VERY WEAK
Too Little Blood the Trouble
Mrs. Jas. A. Haughn, Bridgewater, N. S. writes:—"I was badly run down and very weak. So much so I could scarcely do my housework. My nerves were affected; my digestion poor; I had continual headaches and could not get a restful night's sleep. Different remedies failed to be of benefit and I was growing discouraged. One day, however, I saw an advertisement of a case similar to mine which had been relieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so I decided to try them. A few weeks' use of the Pills fully restored my health and now my household duties are a pleasure instead of a torture."
Mrs. Haughn's whole trouble was that she had too little blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were of aid to her because they renewed and purified her blood and that good blood promoted good health, for where good blood abounds disease cannot exist.
You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SHOT IN BRUSH WITH POLICE FORCE

TORONTO, Sept. 6.— Paul Comet, 40, of South Therold, is believed to be dying in Oshawa General Hospital after a brush with a squad of Provincial Police early this morning.

Comet was wounded, officers say, when with a companion he attempted to dash from his car and escape in the dark over the fields.

One of the officers fired a shot. He claims it was to force the men to stop. He thought he fired high. In the darkness he could not see the fugitives. The bullet pierced Comet's right lung.

The other fugitive was arrested. In the car the two men abandoned police claim to have found 150 gallons of straight alcohol.

45TH HOMER

New York, Sept. 6.—The Washington Senators again displayed their superiority over the Yankees by pounding out a one-sided victory, 14 to 5, in their semi-final game of the season. It was the 17th game Washington has won in their 21 clashes this season.

Babe Ruth contributed the leading wallop, when he hit his 45th home run of the season in the ninth with Lyn Lary on base. It was the Babe's first homer since Aug. 17 in 5th him one behind Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs.

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the finest delicate baby, and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-worn infant.

The effect of what a woman says depends greatly upon the tone of her voice. The whining femme does not impress anyone; nobody listens to her. The woman who dresses in a hoarse, shrill and shrieks should learn to soft pedal. Some women and men, too, never learn to talk. They chatter, mumble, gabble, blather or rant.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER 46

Cathie saw Elsie Parnell in the courtroom. She hadn't seen her for years. Elsie's eyes stared through her, hard 'triumphant.'

Elsie had married when she was 16. It was the talk of Clara street. She used to come home to visit her mother sometimes, pushing the baby buggy. The baby was never very clean or very happy. Its sodden garments stuck to it forlornly. There was always a grease spot or two on the blue sat'n coverlet Elsie kept on the buggy, and the baby chewed on its gray bonnet string incessantly.

Elsie had known hard times. Her husband couldn't get work. He got into trouble in his job.....some said he had been in jail....They whispered about it on the street. "Poor Mrs. Parnell," Ma had said ..... and now Elsie Parnell was sitting in court, and Ma's girl was being tried for murder..... her murdering her husband.....

Cathie's eyes filled with tears. Her eyes sought her mother's. Ma sat staring straight ahead of her, soft brown eyes fixed on space.

"MYSTERY MAN" AGAIN

A hideous period of nausea came over Cathie. She hung on to her chair, and hoped she wouldn't be sick.

Someone was handling her a bottle of smelling salts. "Thank you," she murmured. When it was evident that she was not going to faint people turned their eyes away from her back to the witness again. The trial went on.

The man with the walrus whiskers who said he saw Cathie at the front window was on the stand. His name was Alfred Sells. Queer that his name should be Alfred .....like Mr. Frankworth.

Mr. Allan was cross-questioning him nearing his testimony all to pieces. "How could he be sure that the man he saw in the window was Chalkcine Parnsworth? Well, he wasn't sure. Could it have been another woman? Well, yes, maybe. Could it have been Cathie Parnsworth? Well, he wasn't sure. Could it have been another woman? Well, yes, maybe. Could it have been a man who have her own good reasons—

"Order! Order!"

"What do you know of her married life?"

"Well, it has two sides, so to speak. There was what her ma said about everything being lovely. But when I come into the kitchen—

"Please kitchen, Mrs. Hennessy?"

RAMBLING TESTIMONY

"Whose else but Mrs. Paige's? I said I come into the kitchen without knocking one day, being an old neighbor and all like that, and I wanted to borrow the loan of the preserving kettle on account of my girl Lillian sending me a box of oranges. And a couple of dry onions?

"Never mind that."

"What, sir?"

"I said stick to the essentials."

Mrs. Hennessy rubbed her long gray nose. "I was doing my best."

Titters from the crowd.

"All right, go on. You came in and found what?"

"I didn't hear much. I seen Cathie —Mrs. Parnsworth, sitting on her mother's lap, and her mother comforting her, and her crying. So it looked to me—

"Never mind how it looked to you. What else did you hear?"

"Nothing!"

"Nothing! Is that all?"

"Don't you think that's pretty plain?"

The bailiff was trying to restrain.

"Do you know anything else——"

"Of course I do. But the way you're all snapping at me I don't know I dare to tell it!"

"Order, order!"

"Well, its this way. My girl Lillian—" again Mrs. Hennessy cast an appealing look in Mary Paige's direction, "My girl Lillian married well and she has a maid. And her and the maid of the C. T. Parnsworths was friends. Not the A. A. Parnsworths—but the C. T. Parnsworths ——see? Well, her and Chester Parnsworth's maid was friends. So this other maid told my girl's maid that the two C. T. Parnsworths was expecting a divorce any time with the A. A. Parnsworths, on account of Cathie, I mean Mrs. Parnsworth, having an affair with Mr. Moore—

There was more. Cathie heard, and still she did not hear. She saw her mother's face, saw the droop of Mr. Allan's broad shoulders.

She thought, "What Mr. Allan was afraid of has happened . . . they've all turned against me now. . . . . I'm lost, lost!"

CHAPTER 47

Witness climbed the stand.

"Do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you, God?" the clerk asked each one in a solemn routine, running all the words together into one long, unintelligible word, to which they answered nervously, "I do."

It was going against her. Cathie knew that. Where did they get all these people? The Chester Parnsworths? Those whom she had never seen before, testifying to conversations she had heard between Chester and Elsie, conversations in which Chester assured Enid that it was only a matter of days until Parnsworth filed a divorce against her, conversations in which Chester told Enid about finding Cathie and Gordon Moore together.

"Trying to prove a motive for Cathie," Mr. Allan explained to Cathie in a whisper.

"What crime?" she whispered back, stupidly.

"Your crime! Reasons for the murder, you know."

MAID TESTIFIES

"But I didn't do it." she whispered back. And when Mr. Allan didn't answer, she whispered again. Besides if Chester told Enid those things he maid is testifying to, he was lying. You ought to get up and tell them so!"

"Shh!" Mr. Allan and Mr. Gunther warned her, "Shh!"

Something else came out. The Chester Parnsworths said knew the other Parnsworths' maid—Marguerite Spinney. She could shed quite a lot of light on the Hennessy woman.

"A queer one. Sort of cracked. Always hated the men in the house, and was crazy about the young girls. Funny worth. Always wanting to know what Chester had said about her. Her and I used to giggle over it a lot at night."

So that was where Marguerite went on the nights that she came in so late and giggled over her cups. It was no wonder that Marguerite had meant things for the best, appointed herself as a sort of spy, and now it was going to make the worst kind of trouble, fatal trouble probably. And these people in court were listening to the story and believing every word of it. Chester....Well, you couldn't blame them for that. But why did Chester tell Enid things that weren't true? What was the use of deceiving his own wife?

LOVE LIFE BARED

About this time Mr. Allan, who had sat back in his chair and left most of the questioning to Mr. Gunther came to life, and took over the cross-examining of the witness himself.

OLDSMOBILE
EARNS YOUR CONFIDENCE

YOUR first appraisal of Oldsmobile leaves you with a friendly feeling of confidence towards this high-spirited car whose very lines suggest staunch build and absolute dependability.

But not until you have driven it ten thousand miles or more . . . under every motoring condition . . . and in all kinds of weather . . . will you fully realize how Oldsmobile earns and keeps your confidence. . . .

You will discover that Oldsmobile, like a true friend, becomes even more trustworthy . . . that it inspires deeper confidence the longer it serves you. Like thousands of other Oldsmobile owners, you will learn that its dependability is based not alone on the time-proven soundness of Oldsmobile design, but also on such mechanical refinements as a mighty 62-horsepower engine mounted on rubber . . . long, flexible springs controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers . . . big, weatherproof, four-wheel brakes . . . and a sloping, non-glare windshield.

An opportunity to prove how Oldsmobile earns confidence awaits you at our showrooms. Drive Oldsmobile yourself, and let this splendid car demonstrate for itself the qualities owners everywhere claim for it. HONOURS WITH EAST SIDE

It is the east side of the Atlantic which is doing the ocean spanning this year. France, England and Germany, have some amazing achievement and fliers of eastern countries have been setting a pace which the western world including the States find it very difficult to equal.

In these days of ocean flying a nation cannot rest on its laurels for another will hop along and take away the crown.

Eternal effort is the price of prominence in the aviation world.

FAIRS AND WOMEN

What would the fall fairs do without the women! Much of the work is done by women. Many in the crowds are women and some of the finest exhibits are shown by women. Those who attended Belleville fair could see with what interest the women from the Hastings and Prince Edward County farms inspected the stock or even saw to their care and feeding. A fair without the aid of women is as impossible as farming without women.

SEEING THE FUTURE

Belleville fair board has been counting the cost and the returns and is satisfied with the 1930 results. It looks forward and sees a number of improvements.

President Haning looks for continued expansion as the result of laborious effort expended upon the institution and Chairman G. J. Symons of the Parks Commission, a member of the Board, sees improvements stretching ahead—more sheds and accommodations for horses and cattle.

Trees! Mr. Symons sees the need of them. There will be a big planting match at the grounds and those who attend future fairs may rest in shaded lanes. Trees will be a real asset. Sidewalks and roadways and levelling of grounds even beyond the present fine state of the grounds are some of the avenues that improvements can take.

In some sections there is a feeling that the livestock should be in a more accessible place for the sake of exhibition visitors.

ELECTRONS, EVOLUTION, APE, MAN

Bombardment of the earth by the electrons from the sun resulting in pulsations which caused in the course of time life to evolve on this planet, is Prof. Benjamin Boss' theory of the evolution of the universe.

This is a new theory as to the cause of life here. But like all theories it has a premises, that there were originally electrons, and a sun and an earth and so on. It does not go back to First Cause, the Whence from all. Science can hardly get to that vantage point.

Tennyson's philosophy about the "flower in the crannied wall" which if understood by man would prove man had solved the mystery of the universe, still stands as the statement of life most people will accept.

The pleasure of this theorizing is that it increases knowledge of life; it is a "conversword puzzle" which spells progress and endeavor. It must go on till time's end.

Coincident with this theory comes the declaration of Dr. Harrison in a merry mood at Birmingham, England, before the British Association for the Advancement of Science that the ape made a mistake when it "descended" to man. "Nature overshot the mark in producing a big-brained animal with hands and we are now struggling with the consequences," he declared.

That is just another view of things! after the evolution which Dr. Boss is trying to explain got started and had passed from the ape stage to the man stage. These two statements were made on two days this week and a day or two some philosopher will come along and declare that nature is preparing another greater creature from man, which can surpass man as Dr. Harrison would say men think they surpass the apes.

It is all food for thought. Many people will not give much thought to the cause of evolution whether or not they accept it, but the ape-man stuff sticks in some minds.

Probably the doctor is not serious in his arraignment of the blunderer nature in making man out of an ape.

NEW SPEAKERS

George Black, M.P. for the Yukon, becomes the speaker of the House of Commons and Senator Blondin of the Senate. Mr. Black has won the office by his personal gifts for he brought to Ottawa no great political power from the Yukon. He has been commissioner of the Yukon Territory, and is called a man of great urbanity and experience and sound sense.

Good roads are getting to be a common thing, almost too numerous to open with ceremony. Now the Point Anne Road and the Bedneiville-Albury Road are opening with eclat.

If Belleville puts up a new upper bridge that will also mean a ceremony of opening.

SIDELIGHTS

ACCUSTOMED EYES

By Alma Richards

The rarest beauty often leaves men cold;
Its glories waning in accustomed eyes
That fail, through very nearness, to behold
The loveliness an eager world would prize.

Athena's charm, Diana's glowing grace,
These might grow dim across an ingle-nook;
The lure might wither from fair Helen's face
And all the wonder fade from Psyche's look.

And so it is that perfect beauty dwells
But seldom on the earth, and briefly then;
The evanescence of its charm compels
Frail allegiance in the hearts of men.
Too fleet is beauty for their sight to trace . . .
Each granted glimpse but stirs a new desire.

Milk, pasteurized or otherwise, is to be had for ten cents per quart, pure spring water is not to be had at any price in Belleville unless one is content to drink from the pipe near the Belle Vestige. ENGLISH MEDICAL MAN says that from ape to man was not a promotion but a demotion. Well, then you come to think of it the ape had one long holiday, didn't have to work never had to change his clothes which automatically renewed themselves, heavy coats for cold and light ones for warm. Now man has to work hard all the time and take his chances on getting a new suit of clothes occasionally, if the rest of the family don't happen to need anything in the clothes line just then.

Andree Finds Subject of Court Notice at Tromsoe

Tromsoe, Norway, Sept. 6—The crew of the Norwegian sealing vessel Bratvaag have lodged a claim with the port of the last camp of the Andree Balloon Polar Expedition, last, 33 years in the Artic ice.

While the crew of the Scandinavia were paying tribute to Salomon August Andree, and his two companions, and while experts continued to examine the bones of the dead explorers found on White Island, the crew of the sealing ship claimed they, and not Dr. Gunnar Horn's scientific party, had found the camp. They demanded compensation.

The Bratvaag, now in port at Tromsoe, brought the skeletons and remnants of the ill-fated expedition back to civilization. Dr. Horn is a Norwegian scientist who was on board the Bratvaag and who generally has been credited together with members of his party with finding the Andree camp.

While no estimate of the cash value of these historic remnants or the story of their finding can be made, it was indicated if any effort were made to commercialize them, the price might run high. Dr. Horn had intimated that if any statement were forthcoming he would favor their use in furtherance of subsequent searching expeditions to be sent into the Artic in a continuous effort to locate other lost heroes who, like Andree, have disappeared into the white wastes.

If Baby has COLIC

A cry in the night may be the first warning that Baby has colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy! This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never do the slightest harm. Always keep a bottle in the house. It is the safe and sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it suitable for the tiniest infant, and for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than some needlessly strong medicine meant only for adult use. Genuine Castoria always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Prescribed by doctors!

The Feminine Viewpoint

Library Corner

For those interested in the practical side of aviation, three new books have been added to the Carnegie Public Library. "Modern Aircraft" by Major Victor W. Page is a complete, practical treatise outlining clearly the elements of aeronautical engineering, with special reference to simplified explanations of the theory of flight, aerodynamics and basic principles underlying the action of balloons and airplanes of all types. This is a well illustrated and well indexed text for aviation students, airplane mechanicians, or flying field engineering officers. A section of Standard Aeronautical nomenclature, compiled by the Aviatory Committee for Aeronautics is included.

Lieutenant Barrett Studley as instructor in the Flight School of the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Florida, where all the aviators of the United States Army are trained, has tested the methods he presents in "Practical Flight Training". He has limited the scope of the books to the problems encountered in actual flight and discusses in full the essentials of aviation training, elementary flying, advanced flying, and training organization.

"Everyman's Book of Flying" by Orville H. Kneen is another practical outline of the details of flight. It gives a great deal of information regarding the business side of aviation, one chapter listing the various positions obtainable in all branches of the work.

"Johnson of the Mohawks" recounts a period of American history when airplanes where not even dreamed of. Arthur Pound tells stories and interweaving biography of Sir William Johnson, Mohawk war chief and his General Sole Superintendent of Indian Affairs and one of the only two men created Baronet in America. He came from Ireland at the aged of twenty-three to manage the estate of his uncle Admiral Sir Peter Warren, and became an immensely wealthy man, ruling this enormous estate in the Mohawk Valley with almost feudal overlordship. Dr. Richard Day, editor of the Historical manuscripts for the State of New York has collaborated with Mr. Pound in writing the curious and exciting life of this empire builder.

THE LITTLE SHIPS THAT NEVER SAIL

At work on inland farms he must have dreamed,
In restless youth, of sailing ships that came
With lifted prows where still the wonder gleamed
From seas and ports he loved but could not name.

In him was some old trace of blood that knew
The lift of sails and thrill of blowing spray—
But land had held him and the harvest grew
And he had never dared to go away.

Too old at last for work, his knotted hands
Have turned to dreams his youth saw shining by
And at a window facing prairie lands
He sees the cloud-ships billowed down the sky.

Each day he sits there, till the light is dust fall,
To build his little ships that never sail.

Fashionably Speaking

By Lucille

DEAR READERS ....

Those who have the gift of making dresses must revel in the fancies that are being shown in advance fall displays at the stores. Such lovely materials and such beautiful shades. Those who do not sew, and find it more practical to buy their clothes ready-made can only wait until something approaching the appearance of fabrics seen on the shelves makes its appearance, in a dress before indulging. But girls and women who sew and design have a rich field before them in Autumn's contribution in fabrics.

What one notices particularly is the predominance of tweeds. These evil foes of the soft wool variety, in such patterns and shades that the amateur dressmaker wants to start right in with her scissors. But the wool tweeds for sports have been artfully copied in prints. As one style writer put it, ranging crepes and silks are now "tweedishly" patterned.

For travel the silk and wool crepe fabric, printed in tweed motifs, is the answer to the traveler's prayer. The crepe is less liable to wrinkle and it does the printed effect makes the creases almost unnoticeable.

Other wool fabrics in browns, wines, and black will keep themselves gracefully to the many tailored mode that will be found popular this winter particularly for business wear.

When the crepes are dull surfaced, such as wool or crepe it will be the smart thing to wear dull hose and shoes. Kidskin leather in pumps and slippers is said to be very good for winter wear, for that reason.

Fabrics for sports include velveteen, that is seen at its best in suit effect with little blouse in white or matching shades. For evening wear georgette is going to be a great favourite, as it always is. For the tall slim girl there is one better choice and that is satin, in white or pastel tones. If such a gown is designed on long classic lines, very severe, and wit han even hemline that almost reaches the floor it will give its wearer a truly regal air. But the home dressmaker must be very sure, and with an even hemline that right pattern, the simplicity of which gives it its charm.

And so far fall fabric fashions morning afternoon and evening. Dont you think that it will be a very smart season, indeed?

Fashionably yours.

Good Manners

TWO OF A KIND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 21 years old, I was married when I was just 18, but we only lived together two month s and my wife ran through $2,00 in that length of time. I am of a very religious temperament and have had a hard life, having had a step-father who was jealous of mother and I.

About three months ago I met a wonderful girl and asked her to marry me; we became engaged and I bought her a diamond ring that cost $85. But we've had several little quarrels. When we're alone we get on fine, but as soon as we're with other people she doe severything to hurt my feelings. We made an agreement not to see each other for a month. At the end of that time she's going to tell me if she really loves me. I worship her and always shall. Please give me your advice.

ANXIOUS SUITOR.

The woman you married and who squandered your $2,000 in two months and the girl who accepted expensive ring and humiliates you before people seem to be two of a kind. You're only 21, and from this double experience show plainly that you're too young, too inexperienced with life to think of marrying a second time. If this girl breaks with you she should return your ring. I'm afraid you won't like the advice I'm going to give you, which is not to take girls seriously till you're old enough to take care of yourself and your money. Go in for sports, take up a hobby of some sort, join the "Y" in the city in which you live, and work to cultivate your own interests. Look out for the type of girl who works you for what she can get.

HELP HIM ALONG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20, and have been going out for six months with a young man of 20 who I am sure is in love with me but who is too shy to say so. As I am also in love with him, I would like to get the matter settled. Do you advise me to do the proposing and what shall I say.

BABE.

There is no reason why you shouldn't help your bashful suiter along, my dear Baby. It is possible that it may be a great relief to him if you do so. But it will be a mistake for you to say formal phrases for conveying your feeling to the young man. Choose your time carefully, in the first place If you go on country excursions together, that will provide the best possible opportunity. When the right moment arrives ask him if you are right in believing that he loves you, assure him of your own love and I should imagine that his shyness would disappear. But it may be that there is some reason why he cannot marry—some reason why he has not already spoken to you. In that case you must remember to be a good sport.

CONJUNCTIVITIS

By Lauis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Conjunctivitis is an inflamatory condition of the membrane lining the eyelids, which is common to all ages.

It may occur at any time during the year, but it is specially prevalent in the Spring and Autumn.

The lids may become simply red and congested, or the inflammation may progress to the degree that there is a discharge from the eyes, either serious in character or possibly with pus.

As to the causes, which are many, exposure to wind and dust, as in automobile driving with the windshield open, is a very common one.

Reading with a poor light has also been held to cause conjunctival irritation. The same may be said when glasses are needed, or the pate used are no longer to correct accurately the faults presents.

Smoke may also cause conjunctivitis. This may occur from a camp fire or from being in a room where the occupants are using tobacco heavily with inadequate ventilation. Getting a foreign body in the eye, like a cinder, may start conjunctivitis.

Usually these types of cases are the mild ones.

There is the redness of the inside of the lids, already referred to, and a certain degree of smarting or burning in the eyes. The patient often says that it feels as though "there is some thing in the eye." Accordingly he will rub the eyes, which of coure, makes the inflammation worse.

Usually, the eyes water a lot, and there may be a whitish discharge. Not infrequently, on account of the latter the eyelids and lashes are stuck together on awakening in the mornings.

Epidemics of conjunctivitis occur and this is because the discharge in conjunctivitis is contagious, especially if it contains much pus.

The greatest care should therefore be exercised regarding the fingers and the handkerchiefs, towels, etc., of a patient.

Even with care a whole family can become infected and with astonishing rapidity.

A person with conjunctivitis had best wipe the eyes with absorbent cotton which afterwards can be burned. Besides, he should have separate towels which should frequently be changed. The same applies to the handkerchiefs.

Conjunctivitis may also follow measels, they said and in fact after each of scarlet fever. Not uncommon if the affection is an accompaniment of an ordinary cold or of grippe or hay fever.

The condition usually clears up in a few days an din mild cases even with treatment.

However, a boracic acid solution which can be got at the drug store 5 grams of boracic acid to one ounce of distilled water should be dropped in each corner of the lid three times a day. Bathing with the same solution and using a special "eye-cup" for the purpose is also to be recommended.

THE BEAUTY BOX

BY HELEN FOLLET

Poor appetite means poor digestion, poor digestion creates a complexion that not only shows unhealthy coloring, but which succumbs to turkey tracks and other forms of facial irrigating ditches that are distressing to the spirit of woman. Appetite is aroused by exercise out of doors. The harder the exercise the better the appetite means work its waste products through the various avenues of elimination—the skin, kidneys, lungs and intestinal tract. Right living is the royal road to good looks.

Liquid rouge stick to one like a friend and a brother, and is satisfactory when the beauty suppliant learns how to apply it skilfully. One way is to dip a bit of absorbent cotton in water and to wring almost dry. Pour a few drops of the blushing medium on the cotto and apply lightly to the skin. With fresh moist cotton travel about the edges of the application, forcing them to do a fade-away.

Brushing cleans the hair shafts and gives them a healthy lustre, but it is doubtful if brushing improves the growth, beyond plucking out dead hairs that make way for young fellers. Unless brushes are washed frequently, at least once a week, they put as much dust into the tresslocks as they take out.

The woman who says she is comfortable only when wearing high heels is often suffering from the fixed idea. By lowering heels gradually the foot will adjust itself. Years hence spiked heels will be regarded as senseless and barbaric like the practice of footbinding in China. They are responsible not only for foot ills, but for internal disturbances.

CLERK OF FORTY YEARS STANDING

Charles H. Wright, of Sophiasburg, Dies After Short Illness

PICTON, Sept. 5—Charles H. Wright for about forty years municipal clerk and treasurer of the township of Sophiasburg, passed away at his home, Demorestville, after an illness of several weeks. He had been failing for some time and a few weeks ago was forced to give up his township duties. He was also Division Court Clerk for Demorestville Division.

Mr. Wright was born 76 years ago in the house in which he died. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a very efficient official and as tribute to the late clerk, the Sophiasburg Township council contributed a beautiful wreath. Two of his uncles, Dr. W. Barton and Thomas Barton, held the position of Township Clerk, before him.

His wife and one daughter, Mrs. Roy Abbott of Clifford, Ont., survive.

The funeral held on Saturday, was very largely attended. Interment was in Glenwood cemetery, Picton.

HEALTH CLINIC

A Public Health Clinic is being held in Picton Armories on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. This is the Travelling Chest Clinic of the Department of Health for Ontario. A specialist, Dr. Wilson, and a trained nurse are in attendance and are kept busy.

Dr. Wilson addressed the Kiwanis Club at their regular meeting at the Hotel Globe and explained the benefits to be derived from such a clinic. Twenty medical examination he said, is the cheapest insurance one can get. He spoke especially of tuberculosis, which is taking greater toll of life each year. Tuberculosis is nothing to be afraid of. It is not inherited, but it is infectious and must be handled and treated the same as the other infectious diseases. An excellent recovery is probable if taken in the early stages. With tuberculosis one examination cannot be depended on, as it progresses slowly and may be carried a long time without the individual knowing it.

Dr. Gerald Allison, M.O.H., introduced, Dr. Wilson and Dr. Publow moved a vote of thanks.

There is an attendance of about 270 at Picton Collegiate Institute 173 of which are girls. The teaching staff is as follows: C. A. Shaver, Principal; classics; Miss Jean Bertram, English and History; Glenn R. Hoffman, commercial Miss Mary—M. Gordon, Art, Physical Culture and Jr. English; H. M. Lowe, P. C. Spect a few for me, pop sed. And ma sed, About the baby's tooth, I spose. You remember the other day you and if the baby had some kind of stirring music such as the French Marcellaise, it mite induce the tooth to come through. You proposed to suggest it in a kind of flippant way, but I thawt about it later, and this afternoon I stopped in at Gimbelses houses and explained the theory to her, and we tried it out, ma sed.

Ithink modern dentistry, yes gosh, pop sed, and ma sed, We dident think the French Marsellaise would do because its too millitery and mite sound as though we were using force instead of suggestion, and we certeny dident want to brake the babys spirit just for one tooth. So we looked reel through Gladdises teaching machine records till we came to Waiting at the End of the Road, so we tried that to give him a mental picksture of his patient mother and grandmother waiting with outstretched arms for the tooth to appear. But Willy dident seem to feel any specific reaction, in fact he dident even wake up. So we tried Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold, to suggest that we would be patient indefinitely and in that way perhaps work on his little conciencia, and then we put on that wonderful song from Madae Butterfly where the little Japanese girl is sitting by the window singing to her fails lover that she is still waiting for him, and low and behold the baby angel woke up with a proud and happy laff, and it was out at last. It certeny speeks well for his taist in music, I think we ort to at least go to the movies to celebrate, she sed.

Amendments Expected to Meet Unusual Conditions

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—CP —Canada's seventeenth parliament disposed of pro limaries in short order early this afternoon. Within the space of three quarters of an hour members of the House of Commons paid a visit to the Senate chamber, received instruction to return and elect a speaker, selected for that important post, Capt. George Black, Conservative member for Yukon, and then adjourned to return for the formal opening at three o'clock. Then, led by Speaker Black, the members proceeded once more to the senate to hear the speech from the throne deliver ed by His Excellency, the Governor General.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 8—CP—Brevity characterized the Speech from the Throne which was delivered by His Excellency the Governor-General in opening parliament this afternoon. Exceptional economic conditions and unemployment were given as the reasons for summoning parliament. The speech contained no mention of only two measures which are to be presented to parliament.

There are to be amendments to the Customs Act and to the customs' tariff, and the view is expressed that these will do much to meet the unusual condition which now prevails. There are only three paragraphs in the speech and four sentences. The address will be moved by F. W. Turnbull and seconded by O. Gagnon.

Two Charges Overhang Horace Budd Formerly of Stirling

Leaving the district of Stirling for a year Horace Budd, an immigrant, returned to the adopted homeland only to run into the clutches of the law and now is languishing in the (County) Jail awaiting trial on charges of breaking and entering and theft of two stores in Stirling. The Dominion Store and Leury's general store on Thursday and Friday nights of last week. The arrest was effected by Inspector Loadpenny and Provincial Constable David Sylvester in Michael Shea's woods near Stirling on Saturday afternoon and it is alleged by the police that Budd was wearing at the time of his arrest a wrist watch believed to have been stolen from the Leury store. He will appear before Magistrate Casement on Wednesday morning. He returned about a week ago but did not visit his old employer and kept his presence a secret in the district as much as possible. On Thursday night, it is alleged he entered the Dominion Stores taking a quantity of goods and on Friday night entered Leury's store. Part of the loot from the Dominion Store, was also found in his possession in the woods.

WILL LAY STRESS ON AGRICULTURE

Superintendent Fetterly of O. S. D. Will Stress Manual Work

Ontario School for the Deaf will officially open its fall and winter term on Wednesday next, September 10th, H. D. Fetterly, M. A., ex-superintendent of schools for Dundas county, succeeds the late Dr. Coughlin as superintendent and already he has announced several innovations for the new term.

This year it is hoped that more manual work will be introduced into the routine of the school. There are one hundred and eighty acres of splendid ground surrounding O. S. D., only a part of which is covered by buildings. It is Mr. Fetterly's plan to convert part of this acreage into farming plots, thus teaching the children one more way in which to be useful in his life. In the past agriculture has not been stressed, but Mr. Fetterly is of the belief that this is most important.

Approximately three hundred students are expected to report back on Wednesday. Of this number some thirty will be new pupils, ranging in age from six years upwards. Today all was hustle and bustle at the institute as workers got the dormitories and other buildings into shape for the return of the children.

"We are going to stress the importance of more manual work this year," said Mr. Fetterly in speaking to the press today. "As well, some of the older buildings will be torn down and some renovated. The boys' dormitory especially needed attending to and a gang of workmen has been busy since last Wednesday."

There are no changes in the staff this year. The same teachers will report back to duty on Wednesday.

188 Cases Infantile Paralysis in 60 Days Good Results From Treatment of Serum

Toronto, Sept. 8—Notwithstanding that 188 cases of infantile paralysis have appeared in Ontario between July 1 and Aug. 30 this year—82 more cases than were reported during the corresponding period of 1929—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey and officers of his Department of Health, at Queen's Park, are emphatic in their statements that the situation is well in hand.

From these 188 cases there have been 17 deaths. From the 106 cases that occurred in July and August of a year ago there were 18 deaths.

Results in terms of residual paralysis following recovery are also somewhat better this year than last, for the reason, Dr. Godfrey declares in a general statement issued to the press over the week end, that the public, through the publicity efforts of the department, are better informed with respect to premonitory symptoms and early indications of the disease, with the result that physicians are being called at a stage of the disease sufficiently early to administer the serum and get good results.

SHE-BEAR DRAGS WOMAN ACROSS FIELD IN NORTH

Mrs. Thos. Reeves Seized By Black Bear in Mayo Tp.

TRUE BEAR STORY

Shout of Children Startle Cubs Which Call Mother Bear

This is a bear story, and absolutely true and one which might have proved serious to the participant. It happened in Hastings County and vies with the many stories that have emanated from the Sault from which that country has received so much publicity.

Attacked in Field

On Friday last, Mrs. Thomas Reeves, resident in Mayo Township near Mc-Arthurs Mills, and fifteen miles from Bancroft, was attacked and carried a considerable distance by a large female black bear, while picking and hunting the cows in a field nearby her home. The woman was dragged some twenty rods and was only drop ed by the bear when the children who were with her started to scream, each one the cubs in a nearby tuft of woods to enup a howl and the bear rushed to the protection of her young. Although exhausted and terribly bruised about the arms and chest, Mrs. Reeves managed with the help of her children to crawl through a wire fence and reach the house. On Saturday, she was taken to Bancroft and attended by Dr. Embury, who advised her to remain in bed a few days to rest her nerves that were considerably wrecked by the experience.

Dragged by Arm

Mrs. Reeves, it is understood, left the house about four-thirty in the afternoon for a pasture field to bring the cows for the evening milking. Proceeding but a short distance in the field, she was confronted by a large female black bear, who at once attacked her. Mrs. Reeves made powerless against the attack. The bear knocked her down and catching her by the upper part of the arm, started to drag her to the nearby woods, where the bear and her cubs undoubtedly have it was afterwards ascertained her cubs were in hiding. Mrs. Reeves fought until her strength was exhausted, all the time the children were with her voices. Apparently the cubs heard the commotion and they in turn started to cry in their mother's behalf. Frightened at the first call of danger, the mother dropped its victim and lopped into the woods leaving Mrs. Reeves on the ground.

Crawls Three Fences

Frightened almost to hysterics the woman with the aid of the children crawled to the wire fence which skirted the field and were under and over three fences, courage than strength reached her home almost in exhaustion. Her husband found her in an alcoved condition and administered to her bruises and scratches. Fearing complications the woman was taken to Bancroft for attendance by a physician with the above mentioned results. This is the first time for many years that a bear has been reported to have attacked a human being. As a general rule these animals are docile and will run from persons instead of meeting it. Of course when accosting their young they become ferocious and it is just possible at the time the mother bear was out foraging for her family and was probably hungry herself. Hunters after hearing the story rushed to the scene equipped for the hunt, but the mother with her family had probably withdrawn to the farther recesses of the dense bush that is prevalent in that district.

147 Years Ago Today Five Boat-Loads Loyalists Left New York

One of the most eventful days in the whole history of Canada is the 8th of September. On that date in 1783 five shiploads of Loyalists conveyed by the brig. "Hope", set sail from New York City, which was still in the hands of the British after the Revolutionary War.

They proceeded up the Atlantic coast to the Gulf of St. Lawrence up the Gulf and River to Sorel, where they wintered, and built boats known as batteaux, with flat bottoms and pointed prows.

In the spring the Loyalists with their few belongings started for their future homes on the Bay of Quinte. The men, walking along the shore, hauled the boats against the current of the St. Lawrence, while the women, with poles, kept the boats from nosing onto the river bank. They finally landed at Adolphustown on the 16th of June, 1784, and laid the foundation for the great British North America.

Captain Michael Grass with some others of the Loyalists stopped off at Kingston and others remained at different points along the river from Montreal up, in the progress of the journey. If it had not been for the coming of these and other Loyalists, Canada would have passed into the hands of the New Republic, the United States of America.

Much has been written about the landing of the Mayflower at Plymouth Rock in 1620, but after all, nothing of so momentous a character depended upon the coming of the Mayflower as did the landing of the brig, "Hope" with its fleet of Loyalists.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., has called attention to this date, and suggested that in the schools of Canada and elsewhere throughout Canada this date should be commemorated.

ST. MICHAEL'S WELCOME MONSIGNOR NICHOLSON

Parish Priest Celebrates Mass at Parish Church — Greeted By Congregation

The congregation of St. Michael's Church welcomed to their midst Monsignor J. L. Nicholson, Vicar General recently appointed parish priest by Archbishop O'Brien for the diocese, yesterday morning. There was a large outpouring of the congregation to the High Mass, which was celebrated by the new pastor and at the conclusion he was welcomed by the parishioners in an address delivered by Thomas J. Hurley, associated with a number of other parishioners. Assisting the pulpit Monsignor Nicholson gave an inspiring address and hoped that his coming would further cement the ties between the church and the people and also that the community spirit would be further enhanced.

Landmarks.

"As we travel down the streams of life," said Monsignor Nicholson, "we it long or short and or gay, there are certain occasions that partake of landmarks that mark the progress of civilization. Today it is the coming of a new pastor and I wish to convey to all parishioners my deep appreciation for the gracious gesture of welcome that has been given in the inspiring address. It is a real source of encouragement and a tangible token of faith and goodwill." The address outlined the history of the parish. Present said Monsignor Nicholson, "are blessed memories of the past." The invisible forces that have moulded human destiny are not in the Holy Book alone but in life itself. The lives of those

Peaches Growing on Queen Street Basketful Ripe in Two Weeks' Time

Hastings county, it cannot be denied, is a wonderful agricultural district. Vegetables of all kinds, grains and apples, not to mention melons and cherries, grow in abundance. But peaches are a rarity, that is home-grown peaches.

There is one tree in Belleville, however, and what a marvelous tree! Located in the rear of the residence of Mr. John Sisson at 57 Queen street, this tree will in a few days time have as nice a load of juicy peaches as could be brought anywhere. The Ontario Intelligencer was informed by the Misses Sisson that they had garnered over half a hundred peaches from the tree two years ago and from the looks of things this year this harvest will probably be repeated.

The peaches are all large and are even now beginning to ripen. They taste, it is stated, just as nice if not nicer than the finest imported varieties. The tree was planted about twenty-five years ago.

Fire Chief's Pay Tribute to Late Fire Chief Brown

Tribute to the memory of the late Fire Chief William J. Brown was paid at the Ontario Fire Chiefs' convention which concluded on Friday at Port Arthur. Chief Lynch, his successor who attended the convention informed the Ontario Intelligencer today that eulogies were read to the life and service of Chief Brown. The manner of his death was deeply deplored. Two other fire chiefs who had passed away within the year were mentioned.

The memorial tribute was paid at a public function before the armouries by representative band attending. Hymns were sung and benediction said.

The convention was a successful one said Fire Chief Lynch. It dealt with new hazards in the homes and in places of business and it also investigated equipment for fire fighting. Quite a number of the Ontario chiefs went on to the Dominion meeting in Winnipeg.

50 MEN FOUGHT GRASS FIRE IN P. E. CO.

On Sunday afternoon upwards of 50 men and youths fought a grass fire which occurred in a hay meadow owned by Mr. Walter Clarke and located at Crofton, Prince Edward County. The blaze started on the side of the highway and spread rapidly to the adjoining field. In its course the blaze burned a portion of a fence but fortunately it was checked before reaching any buildings. It is presumed that a cigar or cigarette stub thrown to the side of the road caused the blaze.

WEDDINGS

ROBSON—LLOYD

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday afternoon when Vera Laureta, only daughter of Mrs. Certrude Lloyd was united in marriage to Milton Harold, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Robson of Halloway, by the Rev. A. H. Jones. The church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of autumn flowers. At 3 o'clock the bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Mr. John Lloyd of this city to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mr. Alec Gordon. The bride looked charming in a gown of ivory satin, with cape and flares of silk lace. Her bridal veil was of silk net in cap effect caught with orangle blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and baby's breath.

Miss Laura Robson sister of the groom was bridesmaid. She wore a lovely frock of mauve mohair and carried pale yellow roses. Mr. Emsbury Hough of Halloway supported the groom and the ushers were Mr. Orliff Lloyd of Kingston and Mr. Lorne Wilson of Stirling. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother on Everett St. A dainty lunch was served to about forty-five guests. Mrs. Lloyd wore a gown of navy blue crepe romaine trimmed with egg-shell crepe de chine. The groom's mother wore a dress of dahlia georgette with crystal beads. After the reception the young couple left on a motor trip to Quebec city and other points. The bride travelled in a navy suit with grey gloves and hose and hat of grey chenille trimmed with black chiffon velvet. She wore the gift of the groom, a grey squirrel choker. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a silver compact, to the best man, a silver cigarette case and to the organist a fountain pen.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts.

SAVED CAT BUT LOST LIFE IN THE RIVER

PORT WILLIAM, Sept. 6—With his left hand stiffly held upraised, grasping his cloth cap, which he evidently saved from blowing away, but in so doing lost his life, the body of Andrew Houbol, aged 25, single, 108 McIntosh street, was found this afternoon near the freight sheds in the Cam River. Houbol was riding on his bicycle to work at 7 o'clock last evening. It is gathered from the position of the body that Houbol overbalanced while preventing his cap from blowing away, and his bicycle fell into the river, taking him with it.

Radio Fans Corner

Well and did the radio bring forth the very best in reception over the week end? I'll say it did and we sure enjoyed it. Saturday night it behaved like a lamb and the big program that everybody was looking forward to came in as clear as a bell, for a wonder.

Didn't it seem good to hear Little Jack Little's "here 'tis" again. He and Lopez gave us a treat all right with those nimble fingers of theirs on the piano keys. We'll look forward to hearing Jack again this winter at the Mythical Night Club of the Air.

FIFTY YEARS OF CONSTANT ENTERPRISE

THE POST MAN OF THE SKIES

Hurtling through space at a 100 miles an hour, the "mailman" who left his home this morning may lunch hundreds of miles away at noon. His job is to deliver the mail safely and on time.

Today Canada's air-mail ranks second in reliability to that of no other country. And now, through governmental foresight and enterprise, a complete trans-Canada air service is being planned.

Since pioneer days, Imperial has been providing oils and gasolines for every aviation need. To promote increased convenience and security, supplies of Imperial Gasolines and Marvelube Oils have been established at hundreds of strategic points—in Arctic caches for Northern fliers—in city air-ports—in remote seaplane bases far from the haunts of men.

This effort is but one of the many transportation services that Imperial has developed through fifty years of constant enterprise. It is one of the reasons why Imperial has become a great company —with thousands of dealers—1900 branch warehouses—unrivalled research facilities—a fleet of oil tankers—petroleum resources in Canada, Peru and Colombia.

Fifty years of constant enterprise are in the products Imperial Oil sells today.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Imperial Premier and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.

WHEN WINTER COMES

What will the winter be after a hot summer? So long has been the dry spell and the warm weather that weather prophets have been provided with the opportunity of their lives. Who can guess what it shall be! It is a real opportunity. Dr. Marvin of the United States Weather Bureau does not think that the rule of opposites needs work. He states that the continent is in a period of temperatures above normal while precipitation is unusually low. He declares that it is very difficult on the basis of these facts to forecast for more than a few days ahead.

Dr. Marvin says—

"I have come to the conclusion that nature feels no responsibility to make up deficits of precipation or to balance the intensity of one season against the intensity of another. Excesses or deficiencies of temperature in cold spells and in hot spells follow no special rule of averages. Meteorologists say that in the long run these things will be balanced, but sometimes nature makes us wait a long time for the balancing."

No cause has been found for the heat waves and drought and there is no evidence of a coming change from the condition which has existed for several years in regard to the winters ahead.

UNEMPLOYED

It is to be hoped that all the idle men who read the papers on Friday did not start for Belleville where according to an Ottawa report the total of unemployed was put as 75 with prospects of 350 by winter. If they do they will not benefit their own condition and they will hazard that of the workmen of this city.

It is an open fact that this city is well situated in regard to employment and the burden has not been heavy up to recently. It is to be hoped that Belleville will not lose its proud position of having the least unemployment among the cities of Ontario.

Houses are in demand in Belleville right now and the population is up to the highest point in history and some of those counted are recent accessions from the ranks of the unemployed.

THREE UNTOWARD EVENTS

Hastings has had its full measure of tragedies recently, the loss of two men in a disaster on Dickey Lake and two other drownings.

Tragedies of this kind are not pleasant to contemplate, particularly the two latter ones. The drownings at Dickey Lake were lamentable but there was no doubt from the beginning of their being accidental. About one of the other cases there was for a time suspition of foul play but ultimately no evidence of this was forthcoming.

These untoward events unsettle. It is hoped that the series of disasters is ended.

MAD IN STORM

Lunatics ran wild when they escaped (others lost their lives in the crash of the asylum) and neressed the terror of the hurricane disaster at Santo Domingo.

It was no wonder the madmen ran out when the earth raged and the normal folk all but lost their reason in the horrors of the scenes which met the gaze after the blow fell on the city

What were the thoughts of those poor mad folk as they raced about through the scenes of devastation, who can paint? They can hardly have been the thoughts of sensible folk though the very raging of the elements may have taken their thoughts off themselves and given them something to think about.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Is man going back to the ape? A British doctor says nature made a mistake in making man out of the ape. Now is the boy who sits in a tree emulating his far-off progenitor who lived happy according to the doctor. Is the boy in the tree the first sign of the back-to-the-ape movement?

SIDELIGHTS

BLUEBERRY MAGIC

They come from the far-off places,
Blue mills and a shimmering plain
With fragrance of wide, wild spaces,
And freshness of summer rains.

They take from the tranquil heavens
Their color so pure and cool;
They carry the magic essence
Of flowers by a pine-girt pool.

Magic! It lifts and bears me
As light as a thistle-down,
Away from the crowded dwellings
And streets of the busy town.

When I hear the song of the white-throat
And the swish of the fir, wind-tost,
When I glimpse the blueberry acres,
Long ago left and lost.

I know the lamp of Aladdin
Is potent as once of old,
And I gather a harvest of gladness,
As much as my heart can hold.

—Lilian Leveridge.

MARRIAGE MADNESS of rushing up and down Front street on a busy Saturday morning breaking all speed limits and every measure of common sense is something which should be nipped promptly in the bud, or wherever a nip will hurt worst. If the wedding party wants to go speed crazy let them exercise their motor madness at the Fair Grounds and charge admission—or rather pay people to watch their foolishness.

MURDER IN PRISON is not very common but it occurs occasionally nevertheless and the perpetrator is seldom found out because the inmates have tight lips and will not snitch. Murder in Sing Sing last week was seen by an official and two hundred convicts. It occurred in the recreation room and was premeditated, the murderer concealing a kitchen knife on his person days before and the first time he met his victim the deed was done. Double crossed in a bank job and doing time he waited until his former pal was caught and sent to the "Big House" too. Then he waited until they met—he was a "lifer".

WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN, former Kaiser of Germany and other things, is suing a newspaper for libel. A German newspaper actually charged the ex-Kaiser with having a large financial interest in the Krupps Arms Co., and for that reason failed to interfere when the Krupps supplied the army with inferior material. The paper stigmatized Wilhelm's attitude as "the grossest scandal in the history of the world." The public prosecutor refused to take up the case on the ground that the former kaiser is "no personality of public interest." Thereupon Wilhelm brought a private action.

HASTE

In honor of a visit to his plant by the Governor of the State, an automobile manufacturer once had a complete car assembled in something like seven minutes. Some weeks after the feat was heralded in the daily papers the telephone at the factory rang vigorously.

"Is it true that you assembled a car in seven minutes at your factory?" the voice asked.

"Yes," came the reply. "Why?"

"Oh, nothing," said the calm inquirer, "only I've got the car!"—Ex.

Asbestos production in Canada during 1929 set up a new high record, according to the finally revised figures of the Bureau of Statistics. Shipments in 1929 amounted to 306,055 tons, valued at $18,172,581, an increase of 12.1% in quantity and 17.3% in value as compared with the previous year. Nipigon trout, known all over the continent as the gamest fall game fish, are coming into the spotlight again according to reports from the famous Ontario resort where the annual contest for the largest speckled trout is now in full swing and will continue until September 14. The best entry to date is a 5¼-lb. fish, measuring 22 inches in length and 14 in girth taken with a single spinner with fly, on a 9½-foot rod, by Edmund Stalter, of Paterson, N. J., July 25.

East and West, Orient and Occident, will meet in the British Empire Piping competition, one of the most important of the new features to be introduced at this year's Highland Gathering and Scottish Music Festival to be held at Banff at the end of August. Pipe-Major John Clark and E. L. Collins of the Royal Scots Regiment of Scotland, of which Princess Mary is Colonel-in-chief, will come from the British Isles, while Pipe-Major W. C. Mackie of the Scottish Company of volunteers is on his way to Banff from Hong-Kong.

Prospects for increased earnings during the fall months are good and directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway have no intention of reducing the dividend, said E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the company, recently in reply to rumors that the dividend might be cut.

Nowadays the world moves on rubber and this does not apply to automobiles alone. According to a recent return of the Canadian Government the people of Nigeria in June bought 200 pairs of shoes with rubber soles from Canada. Barbadoes took 2,020 pairs and Trinidad 4,555 pairs. In June the export of Canadian automobile tires exceeded $1,000,000 in value.

Canadian farmers are now producing all the flue tobacco required by Canadian manufacturers, according to a statement just issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture which also claims that the tobacco is of better quality than that usually imported. Canadian tobacco has also become a factor in the British tobacco market.

An increase of 12.7% in motor boat traffic, from the United States to New Brunswick is shown in statistics for the 1930 season up to July 31 as compared with the same period last year, according to figures issued by the provincial government Bureau of Information and Tourist Travel from returns from Canadian Customs collectors at the 24 ports of entry along the International Boundary.

It is not generally known that the Prairie Provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — contain important commercial fisheries. In 1929 the commercial value of fish caught in these provinces exceeded $4,000,000.

Herman Trelle, of Wembley, Alberta, former wheat and oats king, won first prizes at the Regina Exhibition for his Marquis and Reward wheats. William Barborough, of Laura Sask., was second in the Marquis class, and E. Thomson, of Pathlow, Sask., came just behind Trelle in the Reward class.

Her Backache Trouble Trouble Disappeared

Mrs. W. H. Garretson Now sleeps Well and Feels Fine

Ridgeway, Ont., Sept. 8 (Special)

"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for pains in my back and kidney trouble" writes Mrs. W. H. Garretson, who is 71 years old and a respected resident of this place. "They certainly are a wonderful medicine. My backache is entirely gone. I can rest good at nights and always feel fine. I keep a box in the house at all times. They are a fine remedy for kidney trouble."

Dodd's Kidney Pills hold their popularity not because of the promises they make, but because of the good they do.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a Kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys so they can do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

Pure blood coursing through the body carries to the different organs the nourishment they need to keep them sound and healthy.

Two-inch Missed Putt Decides Prince of Wales Trophy Match

When Dave Arnott, Winnipeg, Manitoba, amateur golf champion, missed a six-foot putt by two inches, on the 36th, on the links of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Banff Springs Hotel, Banff, Alta.; he tied the match with W. J. ("Bill") Thompson, Toronto, for the Prince of Wales Trophy. On the 37th, thus necessitated, Arnott landed in a bunker, which cost him three and lost the cup. The picture above: (1) The Prince of Wales Cup, up for competition each summer at Banff. (2) Dave Arnott, taken just after the close of play on the 37th. (3) The fatal putt, which Arnott needed to hole out on the 36th and win. (4) "Bill" Thompson, the winner, at the end of a typical drive. The match was followed throughout by an exceptionally large gallery, including golfers from all over the continent. The Banff Springs Hotel, headquarters for social and sporting life in the Rocky Mountains, is well known in the golfing world for its fine accommodation. The annual championship matches, of which that for the Prince of Wales Trophy is the principal feature, attract players from far afield and are always a source of interest, not only to participants but to the many visitors at the world-famous hostelry.

STRONGER THAN A FIRST MORTGAGE

The T. Eaton Realty Co., Limited

First Mortgage 5% Bonds due April 1, 1949

Denominations: $1,000, $500 and $100

Price 95.50 and interest yielding 5.38%

IT would be difficult to find a more amply secured investment than the first mortgage bonds of The T. Eaton Realty Co., Limited.

The $12,000,000 bond issue is a first mortgage on over $27,000,000 of property, and of this over $14,000,000 is land exclusive of buildings.

In addition, the mortgaged properties provide rentals more than sufficient to pay all interest and principal, and these rentals are a direct operating charge of The T. Eaton Co., Limited.

These features make the bonds an even stronger security than a first mortgage and, at the current price of 95.50, they yield 5.38 per cent.

LUCKY GIRL
by Hazel Livingston

"Did Marguerite Spinney ever tell you of her love life with Chester Farnsworth?" he thundered.

"Objected to as irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial, the proper foundation has not been laid——"

"Objection overruled."

"Yes, she did."

"All right, tell us what that conversation was, if you please."

"The same objection, if the court please."

"The same ruling," the judge said wearily.

"She said Chester Farnsworth was no good," the girl on the stand said finally, and she was ruined by him when she was 16 and him 19, and his father sent him west to a school. When he came home she was still in love with him, and he tried first to get over it, but still he hung around and he got her in trouble, and she left for a while because she said old Mr. Farnsworth would have had her clapped in jail if he was that nipped on her being the one after Chester, only it was the other way round in the beginning. So she went away, and Chester sent her money regular.

DEATH KEPT SECRET

"When the baby was two months old it got measles and passed on, so after a few Marguerite came back to Mr. Farnsworth to work because it was an easy place even if she didn't like him. And she said that on account of how mean both Chester and Mr. Farnsworth treated her, as if she was the dirt under their feet, she never let on the baby died, and she kept on taking the money, telling Chester she had to spend it on the coming. She said it gave her something on Chester because he was scared to death his sister would find out. Type her, the father always thought the son was about perfect and the girl didn't want him to think different."

Clathie thought about that night that she had heard Chester and Marguerite talking together and Marguerite demanding money . . . So that was the hold Marguerite had on him . . . . . The silk nightgown that Marguerite took out of a drawer and gave to her the night Mr. Farnsworth was killed . . . . . Chester must have given that to her, or else she bought it, by the days when she loved him . . . . That perfume, too. Chester must have started her using it . . . . . the same kind his wife used . . . . . so cute . . . .

Mr. Allan was having a wonderful time. His sandy fringe of hair was all rumpled up like a wig, his baldhead shone pinkly. His immense red face perspired. His thunderous jaw quotations, made facetious asides. He was turning it all his way. The jury was impressed. You could see that they were changing their opinion about things.

SERVANT TESTIFIES

They called Cheong to the stand, Cathie thought. "Now it will be all right ,Cheong will say the right thing."

First the district attorney had him, then Mr. Allan. Cheong answered both in the same way. His story was unshakable.

He had been in Mr. Farnsworth's service for 14 years. He knew a great deal about the private affairs of the house. Was he not a trusted servant?

Did he know about an affair between the girl Marguerite, and his employer's son, Chester? He did. Had he told his master? Cheong shrugged. Was it his business? Certainly not.

Did he know of the private life of the Farnsworths? Certain. He knew that all was harmony, the relationship that of a kind father and loving daughter.

Were there ever fights in the house? Yes, when Mr. Chester was at home. What did they fight about? How was he to know? Cheong asked. He could volunteer but one statement, that Mr. Chester had tried to force his father to believe bad things about his wife and Mr. Moore which made, he said, Mr. Farnsworth righteously angry.

"Righteously angry?"

"A true husband shows wrath on hearing false scandal of his faithful wife."

"How do you know she was faithful?"

HOUSEHOLD GOSSIP

"I have eyes, I have also ears. I must listen to the chatter of many servants. I must listen to the chatter of that talkative woman, Marguerite, who being of unprincipled character, listened at keyholes and knew all."

And what did this Marguerite say?"

"She said, sir, that she regretted that her mistress, the beautiful and young Mrs. Farnsworth, did not make Mr. Moore her lover. She was, as I have said, a woman of little principle and no judgment, unacquainted with the higher ethics, and the blessing of faithfulness."

"You are sure that Marguerite did not say they were lovers?"

"Yes. I said I was forced to hear her reveal the fact that they were not—that unprincipled and ignorant maid-servant."

"Do you know if Mr. Farnsworth believed his wife's stories?"

"I know he did not. He was a man of great wisdom. He recognized a faithful wife."

Mary Paige looked around the courtroom suspiciously. Were they all listening, all these people? Did they hear that? Did they realize that proved all the innuendos lies? Sure, things were going right at last. There'd be justice done . . . . . .

VISION OF FREEDOM

"Darling, I'm so sorry I spoke against him—the Chinese gentleman," she whispered in Cathie's ear. "I told Ruth I wouldn't be surprised if he did it himself. But Clarke is all back. He's a true friend to you, and the poor man that's deserted in his life, Cathie darling."

"Shh!" Cathie smiled. She could smile now. She smiled at Gordon across the court room. Wondered if her nose needed powdering. Decided to wear another dress tomorrow, a prettier one——very striking, with a bit of white ermine on the collar. She had decided against it before while she was under the cloud. But now that she was being proved innocent she could wear it.....

"Order!" the bailiff was shouting and rapping on the desk.

Cathie came back to earth with a start. She must listen, and hear what else Cheong had to say.

CHAPTER 43

The old Chinaman sat in his chair on the witness stand, and answered, patiently, and courteously the countless questions they flung at him.

"Did you, or did you not, know that there was gossip, about Mrs. Crothers Farnsworth and her husband's business associate, Gordon Moore?"

"I know that there was ——gossip."

"How did you know it?"

"Have I not described the speeches of the son, Chester?"

"In your best judgment were these speeches, true or false?"

"False. I know they were false because of my own observation as a member of the household, and the spying of the maid-servant, Marguerite. If they were true Marguerite would have reported and it would have been known to me."

"Isn't it possible that she could have kept it from you."

TELLS OF TRAGEDY

Cheong cast a contemptuous look at his questioner. "No. I am acquainted with the ways of maid-servants. I could not be mistaken."

They told him to tell what he knew of his master's last day.

"The lady and Mr. Moore were having tea in the library," he said, "I myself brought the tea, and exchanged greetings with Mr. Moore. It was Mr. Moore's custom to join the lady and my master frequently.

"On this day Mr. Farnsworth came home very ill. I helped him upstairs to his room. He did not go into the library. It was his custom to join his good friend Mr. Moore and his lady. Instead he went directly to bed. He sent for a doctor and the doctor had told him that his days were numbered, he told me. I do not know the name of the white doctor who said so. No doubt the distinguished detectives can find his name.

GROUND CHEONG

"Mr. Farnsworth requested the maid Marguerite, to tell her mistress that he would not leave his room or dress that night, and that he was not to be disturbed until morning, as he wished to sleep."

"What was the last time you saw your master alive?"

"When he came into the house, around seven o'clock."

"You did not go into his room, or worry about him later?"

"Certainly not. He asked not to be disturbed. I am accustomed to obeying his wishes."

"Did you accept the idea of his impending death—that is, did you think that he looked like a man who had not long to live?"

"No, sir. I had thought, at a momentary glance, of recommending, perhaps, a Chinese doctor. I did not see death in his face."

That was all. They couldn't shake his testimony. The courtroom hummed. Reporters from the press table dashed out to telephones, Mary Paige pressed Cathie's hand.

"Gordon. Moore!"

Cathie was afraid to look at him at first. "Now when they put Moore on the stand, don't look at him like a dying calf!" Mr. Allan had warned her.

Cathie had called rather tremulously. "Do I look at him that way?"

Mr. Allan had laughed. "Oh you know what I mean—love light in your eyes, and so on. Now remember that he's your husband's friend and that's all——" priests that have gone on to their reward are the living witnesses of devotion and charity to your dead pastor. It is the reflection of the divine light of the Universal Church. It is affection and trust on one hand, and devotion and charity on the other.

"I'll be careful," Cathie had promised.

Life's Records.

"Lately the walls of this church resounded the requiem for the lamented Rev. Father Killeen," continued Monsignor Nicholson. "He labored courageously and died in the midst of his flock. Quietly as he had lived he passed on in the same way. He trusted in the simple faith and the tenets of his Church and the faithful St. Michael's Academy are but two monuments that will live for many years. We should offer grateful tributes to all their memories. Monuments and tablets will be erected but they have left their record in the archive of the recording angel which nothing will efface.

"The Divine Lord founded the Church and although we cannot hear the voice as did Peter, John and James, still the voice is not silent nor the hands helpless. He made us legates priests administer to their flocks. The priests represent the Divine Master and are sent by Divine mandate. Not by the ability, of those who have gone before has the faith been expounded during the past 100 years the existence of this Parish but through the Divine Lord and they were commissioned by the Divine Lord to fulfil the mission.

Service.

"We must be good Catholics as good Catholics make good citizens. I come as a citizen of Belleville to serve the community at large and to communicate the goodwill that already exists. The example of the Canadian Corps in France should be the ideal of this community of all creeds, one for all and all for one."

There should be Faith, Generosity and Loyalty to the pastor and I am relying on the same cooperation that has been extended to all who have gone before. We must go forward to the future and you may rest assured that my interests are your interests, my successes your successes, my disappointments your disappointments, your sorrows my sorrows and your joys my joys."

The address was closed with the benediction. Following is the address presented to Monsignor Nicholson and read by Mr. Thomas J. Hurley.

TO THE RIGHT REVEREND

J. L. Nicholson, Vicar General,

Pastor St. Michael's Parish,

Belleville, Ontario.

On behalf of St. Michael's congregation we bid you a very generous welcome to Belleville and say we feel greatly honored that His Grace, Archbishop O'Brien has favoured us by appointing you as our Parish Priest and we assure you of our zealous co-operation in all the work of your administration of this somewhat extensive Ecclesiastical District.

The parish of St. Mischel's is one of the oldest in the Archdiocese of Kingston, having been established over one hundred years ago, and during this period, the high office of priest has numbered many eminent men of whom we mention, the Reverend M. Brennan, The Reverend Monsignor J. Farrelly, The Reverend D. A. Twohey, His Grace Archbishop Spratt, and our late reverend and lamented pastor, The Rev. C. J. Killeen, who has left with us a gracious memory of one who served with unstinted measure of devotion his parish and his people.

Commencing with a small frame church, as a pioneer effort, replaced by a larger one of stone in the year 1877, followed by a structure of the dimensions of the present building, which after its destruction by fire in 1906 was built the edifice in which we stand.

This city is fairly well known as a centre of education and possesses many fine school buildings and we are pleased to tell you we have kept to the forefront in the erection of a modern separate school, and we feel in the recently completed St. Michael's Academy with its provision for first year collegiate work, we possess a school, the equal of any in the province.

Let us again assure you of our best wishes for your success and long life and happiness in this Parish.

On behalf of St. Michael's congregation, E. J. Butler, K.C., J. M. Truslich, Fred C. Lee, Frank Fitzpatrick, P. Corrigan, S. J. Garvin, Chas. T. Dolan, B. J. Black, T. W. Sullivan, Wm. J. Doyle, F. BELLS UNLEASH HEAVY ARTILLERY DEFEATING NATIONALS IN THIRD TILT AT PETERBORO SATURDAY BY 12 TO 3

Moffatt Simply Coasted to Victory After Team Gave Him Five Run Lead. Eighteen Hits Were Their Contribution With Batstone, Sniderman, Jennings Leading Parade. Sniderman was Fielding Star with Cretney Batting Hero of Whole Series. Errors at Critical Times Spelled Defeat for Locals.

By O.D.T.

Unleashing a furious batting attack in the second, third and ninth frames, Bell Telephone pounded their way to victory over the Belleville Nationals in the third and deciding game of their series at Peterboro on Saturday afternoon and by their win earned the right to proceed in this O.B.A. playdowns. The score was 12-3 and about represents the play. The Nationals were never less potent with the willow than on Saturday and at the same time, the infield did not click in a fielding sense with their past performances of the summer. Errors on easily handled ground balls welled defeat and sandwiched in between these miscues were hits of the lengthy variety.

Large Crowd Out

The fans like their baseball in Peterboro and a representative turnout was on hand by the game. The fans were drawn from every part of the district with Belleville supporting their team in wonderful style many making the journey to the Lift Lock City. There were a number of delays after the game was started that did not do the Nationals any good. After scoring three runs in the first frame, Harry Batstone, captain of the ultimate winners, was badly spiked on the shin bone by Bob Scott trying to scamper back to the bag and it required a physician to dress the wound. The game started with junior baseballs instead of the regulation ball and was not discovered until Norman Moffatt had thrown several in the last half of the first frame. The game was held up until new balls were secured. Fortunately Belleville went through the first frame without a run being scored against them. The Nationals won the toss and the Hedge Boys won the ball game.

Lived Up to Reputation

Reports filtered through before the teams met in the first game, that Bell Telephone had the heaviest hitting team in Toronto and on Saturday they uncovered that driving power in no uncertain extent. It was also stated, that the pitching was weak but Norman Moffatt, who was shelled off the mound in Belleville on Wednesday came back Saturday and after a shaky start, hurled near perfect ball and he was helped by some wonderful fielding especially on the part of Bill Sniderman at second base. A ball team's strength lies through the centre of the diamond and in this respect Bells were the much better team on Saturday. Alex Weir was nom'nated by Walter Cretney for mound duty and the manager made no mistake. Alex after only two days rest came back to pitch a good game and had he received the support his hurling was entitled to a different story might be written. He could not overcome the errors that were made at critical times and Lee Hit was sure to follow. Not alone did the infield not click but the outfield especially Darrah was guilty of misjudgment in two instances. On two shots to his territory Darrah, a real flycatcher, came in on the balls, and they dropped at his head, one for a triple and one for a double. Especially bad he scared the triple, the Bells would have had one run and in any place they tallied five before the innings was over.

Cretney Hero of Series

Out of the fray from a Belleville standpoint emerged a real hero in Cretney, the elongated right fielder. All the pitchers looked alike to him and he helped himself to two blows on Saturday to lead his team mates in that respect. He was leading hitter of both teams and fielded his position like a veteran. Next year if the team operates, Cretney should have his place secured in the right garden. Vern Weir emerged from the series in not so classy a light. He gave of his best, but critical errors at most inopportune times spelled defeat for his team. Harry Mills can be excused for his play on Saturday, as he was suffering from a very heavy cold and arose from a sick bed to make the trip. He was not helped any, when in his first time to bat he was hit in the back with a fast inshoot of Moffatt's, that laid him low. Bob Scott had a tough day at third corner and his error also helped in the third inning to score the three runs.

Alex Contributed

Alex, helped in his own cause to win the game by poling a triple, clearing the sacks in the first frame after getting a life, when Thompson dropped his fast fly with two strokes on him. The only other chance, that Belleville had to put over a rally was in the fourth frame, when three singles in a row filled the bases but George Scott overran second base and Alex Weir was trapped between third and home which made the second out. Scott had no license to go over second as the ball was hardly out of the infield. It was not the catcher's fault. Weir struck out six of the opposition against five for Moffatt while Alex walked but one and Moffatt two.

Winners Fielded Well

The Bells fielded like champions and his like demons especially with runners on the base paths. Batstone, Jennings and Sniderman with three hits apiece were the heavy artillery of the winners and the blows were all of extra base variety, excepting Sniderman, who was content with singles at opportune times. Daly poled a triple in the second frame to practically decide the issue and also a double. In fielding Sniderman surpassed them all and it was almost impossible to hit a ball through his territory. He went right and left of the bag to make all the grounders look easy. He had seven assists and one putout with three hits and scored three runs. An afternoon's work for any ball player. The score should have virtually been 8-3 for the four runs came in the last frame, when Alex was dogged tired and no chance to even better the National score.

On the play the Bells deserved to win the pastime and will be worthy representatives in the future playoffs. They will meet the winners of the Oakles vs St. George's and this should be a battle worth going to see. The Nationals after the game went over to the Bells' bench and wished the boys success in their future game. The best of sportsmanship prevailed during the series between the teams and the better team won through the series. Belleville was handicapped in having only one first line flinger, but Walter Gerow manoeuvered his team to make a ball game out of each contest. The Nationals will be back next year with a stronger team and in all probability a stronger league.

KEEP SOLID FOOTING ON IRON SHOTS

When we hit the ball with the iron it is necessary to hit from a solid base, that is, from a stance with both feet planted on the ground. The iron shot is more of a hit than the drive so therefore we must be prepared to use our feet as a foundation.

The left heel comes up of course with the pivot but it settles back on the ground before the club comes on to the ball. If we hit while off balance the shot will usually amount to nothing. We must settle ourselves in this position and let the clubhead do the work. The left leg acts as a stone wall defense against the body advancing until after the impact.

All the pitchers have had tough going in the National League this season. Not a single moundsman has won twenty games thus far and only Kremer and Malone bid fair to reach that coveted mark. Not a single pitcher has pitched twenty complete games. Above are five of the best this year: Kremer, with 19 victories, leads in games won, while Malone, the big fellow who has been the Cubs' mainstay in the box, comes next with sixteen victories. Vance is placed in this list, not because of his winning percentage, which is little better than an even break, but because of his earned run average which may well lead the league. Phil Collins of the Phillies should rank with any pitcher in his league this year for he has won 14 and lost 7 for a club that is a bad last, while Fitzsimmons of the Giants is entitled to ranking for the chun ky knuckle ball pitcher has had a right good year. Fitz has won 14 and lost 6 game, and if he can equal his 192 8 record of 20 won and 9 lost he may pitch his team to a pennant.

LACK OF RESPECT IS SHOWN FUNERALS

TORONTO, Sept. 8—Lack of respect for the dead—one of the characteristics of this day and age—was deplored by Rev. Canon W. L. Baynes-Reed, speaking at yesterday's annual commemoration service of the Independent Order of Foresters at St. John's Cemetery.

"It is dreadful," he declared, "to see people standing or rushing about, absolutely unconcerned, as a funeral goes by; some even breaking through to be on their way. It used to be a custom to turn and walk a few steps in the direction of the cortege, as a symbol of that last journey that comes to all. I wish that respect for funerals could be taught in our schools."

GOLF

The women's team from the Belleville Golf Club were guests of the Port Hope ladies on Saturday afternoon when a delightful golf match on the golf links. Although the Belleville ladies were beaten, they made some splendid scores and the feature was a hole-in-one by Mrs. C. C. Walker who becomes eligible for the Mowery prize. She shot a 50 and a 51 which is remarkably good since the game was played on a foreign course. Mrs. G. H. Scott played the course in 49 and 51 while Miss Ivy Dickens had a similar score. The result of the match however was a decided win for the Port Hope ladies. The players and scores were as follows:

THREE HUNDRED ATTENDING MEET

Provincial Temperance Convention Here in October

The Canadian White Ribbon Tidings, the official organ of the Dominion Women's Christian Temperance Union, in its September issue draws attention through its Ontario section by notes and cuts of Belleville to the annual provincial convention to be held in our city October 6th to 10th.

As announced several months ago there will be nearly 300 ardent temperance women in attendance, covering a radius of territory from Toronto, Windsor, Fort William, North Bay, Ottawa and intervening centres.

The sessions will be held in Bridge Street Church with delegates entertained for lodging and breakfast and billeting on the Harvard plan.

Committees have been working on plans here for weeks past under the direction of Mrs. (Rev.) E. Farmer-worth, local president. Mrs. Asa Gordon of Ottawa, is the president of the provincial organization.

Further details and reports will be given later on as to the program and speakers. It is understood that Hon. Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor in the Dominion Government and Dr. Ernest Cherrington of Washington, D.C., General Secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, will address the gatherings.

Married Fifty-Six Years Ago Today

Fifty-six years ago today, Sept. 8, 1874, the Rev. Septimus Jones, the first Rector of Christ Church, Belleville married Albert Loft Geen son of James and Elizabeth Geen and Sara Ann Consuelo de Fourneri, daughter of Dr. Jas. de Fourneri. Mr. Geen's parents came to Belleville from Devon, England about ninety years ago when Belleville had no sidewalks, not even on Front Street, and when Pinnacle and Coleman Streets had their cedar swamps. Mrs. Geen's father was of noble birth, a native of Northern Italy, he fought under Garibaldi and lost his estates, he was also a lieutenant in Napoleon's body guard of honor when he went to Prussia and afterwards came to Canada and was professor of languages in Toronto University. Mr. and Mrs. Geen are living in the same house they lived in fifty-six years ago, historic Moodie Cottage.

STILL DISCOVERED BY POLICE FORCE

Provincial Constables Sommerville and Porter of Peterborough made a capture of a well-appointed still and the three men, who are alleged to have owned the "plant". There was also taken in the haul nearly 40 gallons of the manufactured product. The men arrested are Bruce Freeborn and his father of Bobcaygeon and a man named Jill of the same address and are now incarcerated in Peterborough jail awaiting trial.

The still was located on Victoria County near the east of Pigeon Lake. Many attempts have been made to discover this still but the owners were always able to move the same, before the officers could make the trips into the wilderness after receiving information as to its operation. The police have been determined to make this capture for some months and even the Mounted Police have been sent back in an effort to bring the operators to light. The still was in good running order and capable of many gallons in each run of "moonshine".

UPPER BRIDGE CONDEMNED FOR ALL VEHICULAR TRAFFIC

Engineer Says Safe For Foot Traffic Only in Non-Flood Season

ADVISES REPLACEMENT BUT NOT IN AUTUMN SEASON

Council Will Enter on Special Session on Bridge Problem

Informal Meeting Held Today at Which Report of Engineer is Read

REPORT MADE PUBLIC

Messrs. Gore, Nasmith and Storrie Give Details of Inspection of Bridge

Replacement of the upper bridge at the earliest possible date but not so that building would be made necessary during severe weather, immediate closing of the structure to all vehicular traffic, and permission at foot traffic over the bridge during flood conditions was the gist of the report on the structure after an investigation by William Gore of Gore Nasmith and Storrie, engineers of Toronto, made at the request of the council.

The report was received by Mayor Reid this morning at the city hall and at eleven o'clock the council held an informal session in the office of the Mayo at which the report was read and a decision made for a special meeting of the council to consider the report tomorrow evening.

The report follows:

Sept. 8, 1930

To the MAYOR and Members of Council of the City of, Belleville, Ontario. Gentlemen:—

Re Upper Bridge over the Moira River

On August 30th, 1930, the City Council passed the following resolution:

"That the firm of Gore, Nasmith and Storrie of Toronto be engaged to make a report on the condition of the Upper Bridge over the Moira River at once"

In accordance with the instructions issued Mr. Gore has made a careful examination of the bridge and we now beg to report the result of our inspection as follows.

A study of the design of the bridge indicates clearly that it was not designed with modern requirements in view. Even if this bridge was in the best of condition it would not be safe except for light foot passenger traffic on the sidewalks. The loads that this bridge has been called upon to carry have greatly exceeded the safe loads and the whole structure is more or less in a damaged condition. The main cast iron truss girders which are in three lengths of approximately 70 feet each show many distortions and a number of cracks or fractures are plainly visible. Rivets are missing at vital points in the structure and many corrosion is noticeable in the lower flanges. These imperfections substantially reduce the rating of the bridge from what it was originally designed for.

The cross beams which carry the decking of the bridge, while not showing serious deterioration, are insufficiently stiff to carry the loads coming upon them. A considerable sagging in these cross beams is noticeable which is greatly increased when vehicles pass over the bridge. Considerable vibration is felt when any form of loading passes over the bridge.

One of the main piers has shifted on its bed a distance of something like two feet and the whole bridge shows a decided sag downstream High many

35 MEN GRADING AT NEW AIRPORT

No Large Scale Operations For Some Time at Training Base

Thirty-five men commenced grading operations at the new airport near Trenton yesterday afternoon. Officials of the Quinte Construction Company of Trenton, stated that contrary to general rumours, until further orders are passed in the House of Commons at Ottawa, work will not proceed on a large scale. Within the past month additional equipment will arrive and the force may be increased to three or four hundred as occasion demands. Stephen Hall will be dug and surface work carried on as rapidly as possible. The steel work will be handled by the Government while the Quinte Construction Company will sub-let other contracts. Mr. Wilkinson, General Manager of the company confirmed the report that preference in regard to the employment is being shown to married men and returned soldiers in regard to the employment and most of these reside in Trenton or Belleville. Practically every building has been demolished and leveling operations will be continued. No move has yet been made on the seaplane base which will be situated directly south along the bay shore between the mainland and "Nigger" Island. Officials state four years will be occupied in the completion of the camp.

VICTIM OF BEAR COMES TO CITY TO BE EXAMINED

Mrs. Reeves, of Mayo Tp., Will Consult Doctor in City

TELLS STORY

Injuries Will Be Carefully Examined By Doctor

Mrs. Albert T. Reeves, who was mauled and carried into the bush by a female bear, while hunting cows in a pasture field near her home in Mc-Arthur's Mills in Mayo Township was brought to the city today, by her husband, in order that a careful examination of her injuries could be made. Mrs. Reeves is at present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reeves, 184 Church street, Mrs. Howes being a cousin of Mr. Reeves. When the reporter for The Ontario Intelligencer called at the home he was made welcome and ushered into the sick room, where he secured from Mrs. Reeves an accurate account of what took place after she was attacked. Dr. Branscombe has the case in hand.

Mrs. Reeves in her own words said "I went to the pasture field about eighthirty in the evening accompanied by my son, Raymond, aged eight years and one, I proceeded but a short distance I heard a thumping behind me and turning around saw this large bear with her two cubs following close behind. I started to run but tripped over a hummock of ground and fell. The bear pounced upon me, grabbing me with the front paws around the waist, doubled my head over and held me left arm.

"I tried to pull the paws off with my right hand which was free and at this time the bear's face was close to mine and the bear started to bite, gasp and growl. I told Raymond to run to the house for his father and he ran screaming to the house. Albert came running with the rifle but all the time the bear was carrying me towards the bush at the end of the pasture field with the cubs following close behind. She carried me fully 200 rods into the bush and all the time my husband and the child kept running towards the bush hallooing and screeching. The cubs at this time started to whimper for their mother and the bear apparently satisfied, dropped me and started towards the cubs.

"I crawled through the fence, how I got through I do not know but the bear satisfying herself that the cubs were all right jumped the fence and started after me. At this time I was able to reach my husband and the bear relumped the fence and went back into the bush and disappeared from sight. Hunters went in the chase but the bear apparently travelled far inland.

"While I was in the bush beside the bear I could hear the husband and child hollering but could not answer. When I arrived at the house my clothes were all torn and the marks of the paws were visible on the flesh of the back although the skin was not broken through. Even when I tried to scream the bear tried to place his paws so that the screams would be stifled. It is only a week ago before the affair I was chased out of the berry patch by a bear but would not say it was the same one that at-

PROBABILITIES HINT AT FROST TO-NIGHT

When the old mercury drops down to forty-one degrees above zero it is time to be thinking about the winter coal bill and woollen undies. Last night this low temperature was recorded, although there was no frost according to pump-house reports. The weatherman has promised us that Jack Frost may pay a visit to-night, however, and amateur gardeners would be well advised to cover up any tender plants that they set store by. Here is how the thermometer looked the past two days.

Walking Along Track was Struck by Train

Arthur Bolyea, Formerly of 155th Battalion, Badly Injured

BROUGHT TO CITY

Was Given First Aid at Madoc By Drs. Harper and Beatty

Arthur Boyles, of Toronto, former member of the 155th Battalion C.E.F., was seriously injured about four thirty o'clock on Monday afternoon while walking on the track of the Canadian National Railway near Crookston, as he was struck by the Canadian National train going north. He was taken aboard the train to Madoc where he was attended by Dr. W. S. Harper and Dr. R. R. Beatty after which he was placed on the train and brought to Belleville hospital for treatment.

Drs. Harper and Beatty found on their examination of his injuries that his left leg was fractured below the knee, a gash was cut below the eye and he was suffering from severe shock. The seriousness of these could not be determined at the time until X ray examination at the hospital when he was given treatment at Madoc before he was brought to the city.

Boyles is well known here. He has been living in Toronto. He is married and has two children both of whom were visiting his mother at Crookston. He had come on Saturday to visit his parents and was walking back yesterday afternoon when the accident occurred on the C. N. R. line near the C. P. R. bridge.

A possible explanation of the accident is that Mr. Boyles has been suffering from deafness of a certain degree, for which he said he has been receiving a small pension.

Boyles was resting a little more easy today at the Belleville Hospital. An examination here showed three fractured ribs, two bones in the left broken and a cut on the face. Dr. Beatty of Madoc accompanied the man in the train.

The injured man will recover, the chest injuries not being of such a character as to cause anxiety.

Moose Breed in North Hastings Reeve Saw One Near His Door

Belleville, with her animal stories from northern Hastings, will soon be as justifiably famous as the Sault with its yarn of fierce and ravenous wolves. From Limerick comes Wesley Brett, the reeve of Limerick comes the statement that a few nights ago a moose came within twenty feet of his home. The moose breed right on my land," Mr. Brett told The Ontario Intelligencer yesterday. "It was the first time that one has come so close to my house, though." Moose are not so plentiful as deer in this county, but Mr. Brett has seen many of them in his time.

The condition of Mrs. Thomas Reeves, who was carried some twenty rods in the mouth of a bear-bear on Friday last, is satisfactory, Lorne R. Reid, reeve of Bancroft, told the press yesterday. Mr. Reid, who was in Belleville for the County Council banquet to the Honourable George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, last evening said that Mrs. Reeves although suffering from shock and the harrowing experience which she had gone through, was not seriously injured. She was quite badly scratched and one side was a little mauled. "It was very fortunate for her that the cubs were attracted to whimper," said Mr. Reid. "There is no telling what would have happened to her if the bear had not dropped her to rush over to her cubs."

It is rarely, indeed, that a bear will attack a human being and residents of the north country are wondering what ager for the Belleville distributing district. Both young men are well known and their many friends will be glad to learn of their appointments.

Market summary and quotations by Jamieson Bone and Company.

Although New York and Toronto markets were irregular today, and Grain Markets weak, the Mining Market came to life in great style, with more interest and activity than has been seen for months. Albert College will have lost the three best players on the team through graduation. These are Jack Youill, Byron (Red) Jackson and Howard Purchase, the last a stellar player for three or four years. The high school will have lost the services of "Si" Williams but have nearly all of last year's squad back otherwise. It looks like collegiate's year.

Ventriloquist at Capitol Theatre

H. L. Dexter, the great Australian Ventriloquist and his wonderful mechanical doll "Casey" are making merry at the Capitol Theatre. This master ventriloquist kept the audience in screams of laughter Saturday night with clever dialogue and well deserved the enthusiastic applause from an appreciative audience.

The large doll is invested with a personality and one is led to believe he is listening to a human being instead of an automatic doll.

H. L. Dexter hails from Australia and has appeared in almost every country in the British Empire. This clever performer has the real power to throw the voice. No sooner has a question left his lips when the reply is delivered by the doll, with no apparent movement of the lips and the yodelling is a masterpiece of technique. That is the greatest novelty the town has witnessed for some time.

"Highwayman" in Talk to Rotarians

Honorable C. S. Henry Says Good Roads Are Good Business

"CUTTING IN"

Minister Calls Practice Absolute Bid For Suicide

Good roads are good business, a fact which was ably demonstrated to Belleville Rotarians at their regular weekly luncheon gathering in the Hotel Quinte Monday by Hon. George Henry, who described himself as the "Chief Highwayman of Ontario." He proved himself a genial highwayman, however, and didn't even hold up the dinner. Some problems of the Ontario government touching the highways were discussed by the Minister of Highways who touched the entire organization of road building city, town, township, county and government, and the relation of the government to each problem involved in fifty thousand miles of roads in this province, forty thousand of which were under the jurisdiction of municipalities. Some motorists complain of motor taxes but the government only receives about ten million dollars from this source, and spends twenty-two millions on the roads. Maintenance of the roads already constructed costs two and a half million dollars per annum, an average of one thousand dollars a mile which illustrates the magnitude of this problem of provincial government.

Hon. Mr. Henry spent some time on the subject of the reckless motorist and the laws enacted by the government to curb them, the best cure being suspension of driving privilege, a penalty which would be used to a greater extent in the future than in the past in order to make the highways safe for careful drivers. The greatest crime of all, in the opinion of the minister was "cutting in," while other dangerous practices included speeding and passing other cars on curves and hills "an absolute bid for suicide." Care and courtesy in motoring was the aim of his department and the Minister spoke scathingly of those motorists who introduce danger into what should be a pleasant pastime and promised that his department would use every effort to drive the careless drivers from the highways.

Witchcraft Charge Blamed For Attack

London, Sept. 9.—A case of alleged assault, which had its foundation in fears that a child was under the spell by an Indian woman on the Muncey Reserve, west of London, was aired in county police court, before Magistrate F. C. Betteridge Saturday. Mrs. Esther Schuyler, said to be an Indian princess, was the complainant, and the defendant was Mrs. Elsie Kennedy, a member of the Baptist congregation.

Mrs. Schuyler charged that when she small child of the minister, Rev. Jacob Nicholls, fell ill, Mrs. Kennedy declared Mr. Nicholls was caused by the evil machinations of the plaintiff and on Aug. 11 she went to her home and assaulted her with a stick, after hooking her of being a witch and to put a curse on the tribe. Magistrate Zaphe allowed Mrs. Kennedy to go on suspended sentence, but she had to pay the costs of the case.

Corporal Ted Weeks of the Mounted Police, who prepared the charges for the plaintiff, stated that as a result of the stories circulated about Mrs. Schuyler she has lost many of her friends, and is generally shunned by the superstitious members of her tribe.

BROCKVILLE HYDRO RETURNS $17,000

Brockville, Sept. 8 — At a meeting of the Public Utilities Commission today the manager was instructed to rebate to all electric power and light users in Brockville one-sixth of all moneys paid to the Commission on electric account in 1929. This action was taken in harmony with instructions received from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and is based upon the surplus accumulated by the Public Utilities Commission on the past year's operations. The Commission further decided that, for the present year, there would be no change in the electric rates throughout the community. The rebate will result in the return to the electric consumers of about $17,000.

LETTERS to the Editor

Belleville, Sept. 8, 1930

To the Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer:

I notice in the Editorial Column you state that last Saturday at Washington the suggestion was made for a three day week for labor, with a six day pay. Now I want to know where the man who tills the soil comes in? Will he get six days pay for three days labor or will he get twelve days pay for six days labor? The man on the land has to work six and a half days per week "half a day Sunday doing chores". The farmer today works on an average of ten hours per day the year round and when we consider the capital invested and the risks he takes, and the responsibility and care and worry he assumes in consequence the farmer is the poorest paid man per hour for his labor by long long odds of them all. If this labor scheme is carried out then everything the farmer buys will double in price and he will through up the sponge and quit and, say we will only raise enough produce for ourselves and let the rest of the world starve and who can blame him when he comes to be made the goat. Every sensible thinking man knows that all labor both in time and wages must be regulated in accordance with what the man on the land is getting, so what about it? please let some one else give his view.

Yours truly,

D. H. Ackrill, V. S.

SPEED LIMITS GOING?

Will motor speed restriction be ultimately removal in Ontario except insofar as agrees with human safety? The reason for this query is that Great Britain has removed the last vestige of speed limits, due to improvement of the highways, the mechanism of motorcars, and the skill of the general driving public. The Ontario Motor League is in favor of such removal of restriction in Ontario.

It is not so far back that some of the older residents cannot remember when ten miles an hour was the top limit. That law held in Belleville as in other cities and towns of Ontario in 1903. In those days Belleville had very few cars, less than could be numbered on the fingers of one hand. No one was caught speeding in those days. A good horse could trot as fast as the cars would move. At this same time fifteen miles was the speed in the country and on some roads it was unsafe at that. Eighteen years ago the fifteen mile limit for city and twenty mile for the country was permitted by the law, and then came the twenty miles in cities and twenty-five miles in the country. Three years ago came the thirty-five mile an hour enactment in the country districts.

The progress of speed was slow at first, but the past few years which witnessed an unusual development in the motor industry and the rounding out of the road system have seen the speed go up by leaps and bounds. The speed has mounted as traffic mounted.

A large element in the driving public has always looked upon the advancing of the speed limit upwards as a menace but soon grows used to it. Abolition of limits would meet with opposition but it might disappear as quickly.

Few would agree to the removal of restrictions on city limits. There as everywhere in crowded areas it is felt limits should remain.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Some comment has been heard as to whether the signal lights at the corner of Front and Bridge streets should not include a momentary appearance of yellow for the sake of the pedestrian. Many cities use but two lights, green and red, without intermediate light. On the side of the pedestrian it may be pointed out, however, that he may step out into the roadway just as the light is ready to change to green. There he is in the midst of traffic.

SIDELIGHTS

FOR DISCONTENT

Not for content I pray, but discontent,
The fretful, nagging murmur at my ear
Which urges me to try the steep ascent,
To leave safe ways, accustomed paths and dear.
I would be harried by that harping voice,
Would wander, restless, seeking, ill at ease,
Finding no port wherein I might rejoice;
But driven ever to unquiet seas.

Content is for the sluggard, one who sits
And drowses, letting all the world go by
Until, as year on year unheeded, flits,
He finds time leaves him nothing save to die.
Though Discontent is but a shrewish wife,
I would take her alone for all my life.

STOP before leaving a side road for the main road, as wise traffic regulation, but you don't have to stop there indefinitely as some of the road hogs on the main stem seem to think. On the authority of the Minister of Highways himself, Hon. George Henry, the motorist coming from a side road has as much right on the main road as the motorists already there and need not stop at the intersection indefinitely. It is up to the traffic to slow down and let him across or merge with the traffic on the main road. That's a point that many motorists have not considered, apparently, for they seem to think that the motorist coming from the side road has no rights whatever on the main stem.

ready to receive patients, as he has a large and lucrative medical practice in that city. Mr. Jeffery was at the wheel with the doctor riding in the front seat an arrangement agreed on leaving Kingston. The party leisurely proceeded westward, and coming over the brow of the hill near the brick school house, some distance east of the scene of the accident, Mr Jeffery stated to a press reporter, who visited the scene, a car was noticed passing over the railway tracks coming east and travelling pract cally in the center of the road. "Thinking the driver would stay or go over to his own side of the highway," said Mr. Jeffery. "I continued on my own side and when close to the car, seeing he was not pulling over to the front. One front wheel was torn off, the windows broken. Dr. Wiltong was apparently thrown against the top of the car and when it turned over was crushed, when the front part of the top caved in. When found he was trying with his feet out of the car by the driver's seat and his head just past the steering wheel, close up to the front. The upper part of his head was crushed to a pulp. Jeffery and Sisson were able to extricate themselves from the wreckage and went to Cuthbert in the other car and pulled him out laying him alongside the road until the ambulance arrived. Dr. Wiltong is a married man with no children.

Council Will Enter On Special Session Upon Bridge Problem

signs of distortion. The abutments are of such a nature that during flood conditions in the river there is a decided possibility of water getting in behind them and ultimately seriously damaging the abutments on which the bridge rests.

We have found the bridge as a whole in a most unsatisfactory condition and we unhesitatingly advise you to have this bridge replaced as soon as possible. In the meantime we are of the opinion that all vehicular traffic over the bridge should be immediately stopped and until such times as a new bridge is about to be erected that the existing bridge be used only for foot traffic. Such foot traffic should, however, be stopped during the flood conditions on the river.

We have always been against the construction of concrete work in bridges such as the design of your new bridge calls for, under severe winter conditions and unless this bridge can be placed under construction at an early date so as to be completed before the heavy frost conditions set in then we are of the opinion that its construction should be left over until the spring of next year. Under any conditions, however, all vehicular traffic should be immediately stopped on the bridge.

If there is any further information which you require regarding this matter we will be blad to let you have same.

Yours very truly,
Gore, Nasmith and Storrie

COMPLIMENTED ON HER COMPLEXION AT 65

Tells All Women How She Does It

20 YEARS OF KRUSCHEN
20 YEARS OF HEALTH

Just fancy! A grandmother and still being complimented on her complexion! How does she do it? Her sister explains. Kruschen keeps her young and fit. That's the secret of the whole matter.

"When I was on holiday this Summer I was asked what gave me or what I used for my fresh complexion. For 20 years now I've used as directed Kruschen Salts, the finest and only medicine to my knowledge. Before this I was troubled with my liver and biliousness and rheumatism in my arms and shoulders. I just take it regularly as you prescribe, with the above result. I tell everyone this, also my family, who are now men and women, for I am over 65." — E. B.

Don't be content to worry her. Follow her example. Kruschen will keep you young, just as it keeps her young. The little daily dose keeps you young inside: you wake up every morning as fit and fresh as a schoolgirl, and before the first month is out the wonderful difference is written in your complexion and your eyes. Kruschen will restore the liver and kidneys to proper activity. Waste products will be naturally expelled by those eliminating organs as Nature intends. The blood will be refreshed and will course in a cleansing stream to every fibre of the body, reinvigorating your whole system, brightening your eyes, clearing your skin. You feel—and are—a different person. Thousands are proving it daily. Why shouldn't you? Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

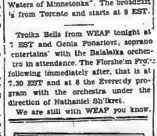
Radio Fans Corner

Reception last night was of the best, the cooler weather possibly had a lot to do with it and the fact that it should be good this evening too, but of course the weather is unchangeable as a woman. Check and double check.

On the Can. Nat. Transcontinental hour tonight the featured guest will be the famous Indian Chief Redwing. He is an internationally famous exponent of Indian folklore and the possessor of a well-trained baritone voice. The Chief's program to-night will include as well as the aria Credo from 'Otello', an invocation to the sun god 'Zuni,' a hunting song, a Najavo love song and a scalp dance song. We think that'll be many miles away from the usual singing this last number. He also includes on his program tonight that beautiful number "By the Waters of Minnetonka". The broadcast is from Toronto and starts at 9 EST.



Trotks Bells from WEAF tonight at 7 EST and Genia Fonarlow, soprano entertains with the Balalaika orchestra in attendance. The Fletcher Peggy following immediately after, that is at 7.30 EST and at 8 the Everedy program with the orchestra under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret.

We are still with WEAF you know, and here are some more good prospects this station offers for tonight. Happy Wonder Bakers at 8.30 EST and this always means lot of fun. Cuddles and Monty at 9.15 EST and then at 9.30 the Radio Keith Orpheum program from the Theatre of the Air.

Vincent Lopez at 11 EST and at 11.15 EST Uncle Abe and David about finishes the list. WJZ presents Hoppin' Bells a story of two bell hops, at 7.45 EST, Westinghouse Salute from Boston tonight, at 9 EST. Outside of the list I've given you I really don't think there is much on the air.

Next Saturday, September 13, the America Cup Races off Newport will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System, from the Yacht Enterprise, Defender, the coastguard cutter Champlain and the United States destroyer Kane. Surely we can pick it up from one of these points at least. Ted Husing and Harry Vennell will be the staff announcers while Herbert Outerbridge, manager of events will broadcast and give a running account of the race. Husing will be on board the blimp which will cruise parallel to the yachts and stay with them from start to finish. An announcer on the Champlain will view the races from the port and the destroyer Kane will be on the starboard side. This is the first time an event of this nature has ever been broadcast from the air.

Austria has only one aircraft builder. His 1929 production was five planes.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

MOORE ON STAND

"Well, she was being careful. Her eyes wandered over the courtroom. The Moores sat in a tight little group. Big-old uncle, The genial, weather-beaten brother. The blind aunt, silvery haired, dressed all in gray, her beautiful, slightly sightless eyes gentle and sweet.

"How they must hate me. All of them," Cathie thought. "How they must wish that he'd loved that Mrs. Willoughby instead."

She stole a look at Gordon. How good he was to look at. Not handsome, really. Too thin and brown for that, too careworn, now. But nice. Oh, so wonderfully nice. Strong and true and kind. Lean and muscular like Indians are supposed to be, and usually aren't. ...the kind of man girls dream of..... And there he was.... here..... sitting through all this for their sakes, suffering for her.....

Cathie pulled herself together, remembered what Mr. Allan warned her ...Must't show what she felt..... ...mustn't let her love shine out of her eyes.....

She looked around the courtroom again. People didn't look inimical now. They looked friendly. That was Gordon's doing .....he was making such a good impress on. Explaining what had happened to him after he left her, making it all seem so matter of fact and natural;...looking so open and honest..... being as courteous and different when Mr. MacMillan tried to make him contradict himself ..... WOULD PROTECT HER

Gordon wasn't pretending that she was nothing to him. He was showing in every answer, in everything he said, that he cared for her. Once when he made what Mr. Macmillan thought was an evasive answer, and the district attorney followed something about him trying to protect the defendant, Gordon just looked at him and said in his clear, even voice, 'Of course I'll protect her if I could. There's no one in the world I'd rather protect. But the girl doesn't need protection—all she needs is a chance to tell her own story—she's innocent!"

And that was out of order, and there was another squabble, but what of that? Cathie glowed with inner happiness. The still, beautiful look that had always been hers when she thought of Gordon settled over her again. Love.....yes, that was what it was....no mistaking it. But Jean Allan, seeing it out of the corner of his downcast eye, didn't worry. He wouldn't do the prosecution any good. It wasn't guilty love. It was love triumphant, love trusted, perhaps, but trusting, and hoping .... love alive and lovely, in a miserable, dirty courtroom.

DEFENCE SCORES

Pat sun in the court room gaped at the stark loveliness of the girl in black, the girl with the look of a Madonna in her eyes. the defendant..... When the district attorney said something ugly there were faint cat-calls, boos from the back of the room, menacing shuffling of feet, whispers:

"They're all right!" ....'Why don't he lay off them?" ....The girl's innocent.... ought to let her go....."

In his corner at the table Mr. Allan saw it, took it all in with his tired eyes that he kept partly hidden under lowered eyelids. His red face perspired, his sandy thatch of hair stood on end under his restless fingers. His pink bald spot shone. This was his day.....his triumph.....

A romantic figure in the jury nudged the lady in the next chair. "Isn't it beautiful, his testimony?" she whee'ed.

Cathie heard. So did Mr. Allan. Their glances met, hers bright with wonder and hope, alight with love. His slyly and calculating.

"Mr. Chester Farnsworth!"

The light went out of Cathie's face. They were calling Chester. She looked at Mr. Allan again. His expression had not changed.

CHAPTER 49

Chester Farnsworth mounted the stand. He looked more than usually callow and there were dark circles under his eyes, as though he had not been sleeping.

Cathie thought he shot a malevolent look at her, and she passed back at Allan hopefully. She wasn't afraid any more. Cheeny and Gordon had given her courage.

Chester spoke in a low monotone. Frequently he had to be asked to speak louder. He'denied all of the accusations he had been charged against him, denied any illicit relations with Marguerite.

"Impudent," he said. "If it were possible to find the woman who has been plrirted away by some one——"

"Just what do you mean by that?" ACCUSATIONS DENIED

Chester declined to answer. He did not mean anything, he said, but if it were possible to produce the woman he felt sure that any doubt would be dispelled. "She was untidy, slovenly, a creature of offensive habits and miserable disposition. Certainly not one who would appeal to any man of fastidious taste. Her treatment at the hands of my father, my dead mother and myself was the kindest. It is gross ingratitude on her part to spread slanderous tales about us. If she were here I could make her admit it."

If she were here.....A long, bitter argument between the attorneys, Mr. Allan tactfully suggesting that the district attorney might know her whereabouts the district attorney, with equal tact and bitterness suggesting that Mr. Allan should be the one to find her.

Then Judge Kist put a stop to it, and Chester's testimony was resumed.

TELLS OF LOVERS

Yes, Chester admitted, he had discussed his father's second wife with Enid, his own wife. He had had no reason to suspect his maid of listening.

No, he did not know that Marguerite was ever a visitor in his home. He would not have allowed such a thing. He reiterated that his father had agreed to a divorce, had decided to change his will. He told of the party at the home of his friends, of his determination to walk over and talk to his father about the matter.

"I had accidentally burst in upon the lovers—Catherine Farnsworth and Mr. Moore—twice," he stated. "I could not bear to have my father made such a fool of. I also hoped to save what was left of the family fortunes. My father had already made this woman a marriage settlement and squandered many thousands of dollars upon her. I hoped to save something out of what was left."

Cathie stared at Mr. Allan in amazement. Why didn't he do something? Why didn't he jump up and say Chester was lying? She plucked at his brief, timidly—Mr. Allan, we ought to—"

What was that Chester was saying .....charge this woman with the murder of my father.... convinced..... saw everything but the actual shooting.."

SEEN IN WINDOW

Mr. Allan was objecting now, but what good was it doing him? Chester was going right on, speaking in his low but very clear voice..... "I saw her in the window as I came up the street. I wondered what she was doing in my father's room.....I had gone into the garage to look up and call to him, to see if he was awake. The lights were out, but he often lay awake in the dark, at night long."

"You saw your— the defendant, Catherine Farnsworth, lean out of the window. Did she have a gun in her hand?"

"Not at that time. She merely leaned out and looked up and down the street."

"You were able to identify her positively? There is no doubt in your mind that it was the defendant?"

"No. The moon shown full in her face, and her face is familiar to me, naturally."

"Describe her appearance."

"She was wearing a silk and lace negligee, with long flowing ribbons from the shoulders. I remember that particularly because when I came face to face with her in the room some two hours later she was wearing a nightdress of entirely different cut and trimming. I was struck with that at the time."

"Describe what you did."

GRUESOME PICTURE

"I did nothing. I remained where I was in the shade of a tree, looking up. She did not see me. While I was wondering what he'd brought her to my father's room, I heard a shot. I ran half way around toward the front door. Then I turned and looked up at the window again and as I looked she came to the window again and leaned heavily against the side of it—it was open. do you understand it is a very long window, and for a second I thought she had lost her balance, and would fall out. Then she righted herself and leaned one arm against the window ledge. In her hand she held a pistol. I watched, fascinated and horrified. She did not see me, although I was clear standing in the open lawn. She seemed suddenly to see the pistol in her hand. She opened her mouth and made some kind of a gesture. Then she threw the pistol back into the room, and staggered from the window."

"Then she did not do this?"

STUNNED BY SHOCK

"I did not know what to do. I wished out to the constable, but ran down. I think I was there for the better part of two hours. I was frightfully shocked. I knew without any doubt that it was my father who was killed with that gun, something seemed to tell me so. I was partly stunned I think, for it did not occur to me to go to him, or to call for help. I was tremendously relieved when I heard the coroner's statement that my father died in his sleep and almost instantly, for otherwise I could not excuse myself for my weakness in giving way to my grief instead going to his aid. I knew even then that Catherine Paige had killed my father, even before I went into the house and saw Enid dead and her guilty face, and her changed gown, and she crying maid, Marguerite, who was trying to be kind and comforting her.

"Mr. Allan —was holding on to Cathie's arm, forcibly keeping her in her chair. Mr. Chandler was questioning in her ear. The Judge was tapping for order, the bailiff was shouting, two newspaper men were fighting to get out of the door first with the news.

But Cathie didn't see them, she did not see anything but Chester, and hear anything but what he was saying.

CATHIE REVOLTS

"It's a lie!" she cried above the noise. "It's a lie, Chester Farnsworth!"

"No, no—calm yourself, Keep quiet, Mr. Gunther was begging.

"Shh—for God's sake!" from Mr. Allan.

Somebody held a bottle of smelling salts under her nose, she pushed it away, pushed everybody away, struggled to her feet, her face white and set, eyes blazing.

"It is! I don't care! You can't make me keep quiet, anybody! It's a lie. I didn't kill Mr. Farnsworth—I didn't —I didn't—I didn't—"

CHAPTER 50

Court was adjourned. People began to file out, crowding back to get another look at Cathie. She was broken. She sat with her limp white hands clasped in her lap, her head bowed over them. Chester Farnsworth had taken the oath like everyone else, he had mounted the stand and sworn to tell the truth..... and then he'd lied...he'd she killed his father..... and, why, why had he done it? Even if he did hate her how could he do it? How can anyone swear away another's life? And when they can.... when God lets such things to do, what hope is there? What help is left?

"There, there," Mrs Crooned, close beside her. "Don't cry, darlin', it will come out all right. They'll have him for perjury, the low snivelin' thing..... there, there, darlin'—ma's here—ma'll stand by you."

BACK TO JAIL

Ma with her sweet tired face lit with love. ma hoping still.....ma believing.. "If I were keyed up on the highest hill... I know whose love would follow me still....."

Oh, how true that was.....how true ....ah thank God for Ma, for dear, dear Ma.....

"Come Mrs. Farnsworth!" A cold, authoritative voice; at her elbow. the deputy sheriff and the policewoman to take her back to jail.

"Good-by, Ma!" Cathie opened her mouth to say the words, but only a broken sob came out.

The policewoman and the sheriff took her each with a firm hand on her elbow, and marched her back to jail.

It was almost over. Mr. Allan and Mr. Gunther had thundered questions at Chester, and they couldn't trip him. they couldn't shake his testimony. He stuck to the story that he had first seen Cathie in the window, and that then seen her come to the window with the gun in her hand, after he heard the sound of the shot.

And there was Alfred Seib, the elevator operator, to verify the first sight of a woman in the window, and two more men, one a passerby, and other a butler in a house across the street, who he'd passed and seen Chester climb up on the curb, his head in his hands.

MUTE EVIDENCE

"Why didn't you come over to investigate?" Mr. Allan asked.

"I thought he was drunk," the butler said.

And then they brought out the blood-stained garments . . . "People's exhibit number "I" and Inspector Horgan told about finding them, hidden away in the bottom of an old trunk in the attic.....the silken things that were Cathie's that Marguerite had hid them.....But Marguerite was gone, and nobody knew where she was. Who'd believe Cathie's story? Who'd believe anything she could say, after Chester's damning evidence, and the grisly exhibit on of the clothes?

"The People rest." the district attorney said softly.

Ma wept silently into her handkerchief. Cathie hardly heeded. She thought, "it isn't true.....things don't happen like this....."But she knew it was true....It had happened.... Her dead husband's son had sworn falsely against her, and there was no help, no hope for her now.

Allan and Gunther decided to put Cathie on the stand.

TESTIMONY REHEARED

They groomed her for it. They rehearsed it. They told her just how she was to answer, and what she was to wear. The new lustreless black silk dress with the touch of creamy crimp to the collar, black oxfords, with the sheerest black hose she had. a small black hat with a fold of white under the brim, and a black crepe veil that she was to throw back from her face, and let flow back over her shoulders.

Cathie fingered the crepe sadly. She had thought that widow's weeds were out of date, that only a few old fashioned women like Ma clung to the fashion. And here they were making her wear them, to fasten the jury.

Point Anne Highway Opened by Minister

Silken Cord Cut Which Opens Two and Half Mile Roadway

OFFICIALS HERE

Municipal, Provincial and Company Chiefs Attend

Another link was added to Ontario's great system of highways yesterday afternoon when the Honorable George Provincial cabinet cut the silken cord were grouped and presided the ribbon at Point Alide, officially throwing open to the public one of the finest pieces of road in the entire province. Although it is only two miles or a little over, in length, the road is concrete, is decidedly permanent, and all the material came from our own county of Hastings.

Phenomenal speed was displayed in the building of this short highway. It Mitle over two weeks from the day it was started, in the beginning of July, the road was all finished and today it did not present quite that. It will be a standing monument to the quality of the work done by the Dufferin Construction Co. In one day, for instance, thirteen hundred feet of cement was laid. This was averaging at the speed of one hundred feet an hour and better.

Modern Roads

The Canada Cement Co., of which J. H. Legate is superintendent, had long wanted a good road into its monster plant at Point Anne. The old gravel highway was a good example of its kind, but the cement highway is as far ahead of the old road as an automobile is ahead of a horse and buggy. There is no comparison. Finally, through the co-operation of the township council, the county council, the county aid and the Honorable George S. Henry the new road was made possible.

Yesterday saw one of the most distinguished gatherings that ever graced the cement village of Point Anne. The majority of the members of the County Council, the warden, colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, R. M. Mitchell, reeve of Thurlow, members of the Thurlow township council, J. F. Hill, M.P.P. for Hastings east, W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. for Hastings west, James A. Bell, chairman of Road, officials of the Canada Cement Company, the Honorable George S. Henry and many others all graced the patriotically-decked platform that was erected in the centre of the village. All had a few words to say and all were of the opinion that the County of Hastings might well be proud of this new addition to the provincial highways.

Most Minister

It was an auspicious occasion. The Hon. G. S. Henry, driving in his large car, met at the entrance to the new highway, off the King's Highway No. 2, by a fleet of cars gaily bedecked with flags and welcome signs. The entourage proceeded slowly up the highway until it reached the outskirts of the village, where all the children of the Point Anne school were grouped and preceeded the procession to the platform. The road itself was hung all the way with welcome signs, Union Jacks and bunting, presenting a fine appearance. The entire village must have taken a holiday, judging from the huge crowd that was on hand. And to cap it all off the distinguished visitors were treated to a spiel that would make Barnum, the father of showmanship, turn in his grave. Two hundred yards of pyrotechnics, what residents of the Point characterize as a "good-sized blast" is distinguish it from mere children. Consider the fact these children can be heard in Belleville, it can be imagined what the blast was like. Needless to say, the officials were amply protected.

War Saw a Chairman

Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., was the chairman for the afternoon. In a few brief words he welcomed the visitors to the county and to Point Anne. "There is," he said, "one feature of this road that should appeal to everyone in the county. The man behind that used to be the engineer of this highway was manager, hired and produced in his entirety in Hastings county." Belleville, and I might be said, within sight of this road."

R. M. Mitchell, reeve of the township of Thurlow, was the first speaker called by the chairman. "There isn't one in this gathering more pleased at the finishing of this road than is the Reeve of Thurlow," said Mr. Mitchell in his few remarks. "It is only through the co-operation of the township council, the county councillors, J. F. Hill, and the department of Highways that the road was built at all. I appreciate being able to attend to it of you a welcome to this gathering."

James F. Hill

James F. Hill, M.P.P., was given the honor of introducing the distinguished visitor, the Honorable George S. Henry, Minister of Highways. "I wish," he said "to say that it affords me great pleasure to be here today. It affords me great pleasure to see a road in the King's highway and to see the county the possessor of such a fine road." Mr. Hill explained the many difficulties that had to be overcome before the road became a reality. For instance, Point Anne road had only been a part of the provincial highway system for a short time and therefore it was hard to get a grant immediately for the construction of the highway. But it was done through mutual co-operation, and now the result is apparent. "Everybody got together," said Mr. Hill, "and now you have a road that is a credit to everybody, is of reasonable cost and is the first permanent highway in the county of Hastings to my knowledge."

Honorable George S. Henry

The Minister of Highways in the provincial government, Mr. Henry, was slated to do the official opening. After he and several other speakers had brought the arrayed down from the platform and with a pair of special presentation scissors cut the silk cord that ran across the highway, cut it into many pieces and gave them to the schoolchildren, first of all however, keeping one piece carefully for himself.

"The County of Hastings," he said in his few remarks, "is one of the most progressive in the province. This county was planning and building roads long before there were any such things as grants from the provincial government. I know that the people of this county, and of Point Anne especially will appreciate the piece of road for many years to come. You have one of the best types of road that are using in Ontario. You will find it most serviceable and a road of decidedly long life."

"We taught the Dufferin Construction Company to build this type of road. This highway is one of the best that this company has ever constructed."

"We, in the government, use a great deal of Point Anne's product. We find it up to standard in every way. The department of highways is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, purchasers of cement in the province."

"I would like to congratulate the citizens of Point Anne, the Canada Cement company and the county of Hastings on having one of the finest pieces of highway in the province that I have inspected in some time. I know that the whole community will appreciate the value of this road and the use it will be to you. Doubtless, in the future, there will be types of this kind of highway in other parts of the county. We are only too pleased to co-operate with a community in the province when it wishes to better the condition of its roads.

J. H. Legate

J. H. Legate, superintendents of plant No. 8, Canada Cement Co., had a few words to say anent the new road. "We are pleased to have you with us today," he said. "I wish on behalf of the employees of the cement company and the citizens of Point Anne to welcome you to the village."

"If Point Anne ever had a Santa Claus he is certainly here today. He has bought us more gasoline and groceries than any other. He buys our product and to make him more of a Santa Claus than ever he presents us with 50 per cent of the cost of this road. I refer to the Honorable George S. Henry. The county, too, deserves the thanks and appreciation of everybody for the quickness in getting this road for us and the type of road they gave us. We have a standard rural highway. I particularly wish to thank the warden, the road committee and our own reeve, Mr. Mitchell."

Mr. Holgate

Mr. Holgate, a representative of the Dufferin Construction Company thanked the Canada Cement for the co-operation that had been extended to his company. He hoped that the new Point Anne road would influence the county to build more of a like nature.

W. C. Macdonald, one of the oldest residents of Point Anne and a well known citizen of that village, expressed the appreciation of the whole community for the new road. The meeting was closed with the singing of God Save the King.

Included among other prominent visitors were V. C. Meynes and J. B. Breez of Toronto, officials of the Canada Cement Company, and D. B. McCoy of the Steel Company of Canada, Toronto.

IRON FIREMAN saves millions

Users' fuel savings alone aggregate over $4,000,000 annually

IRON FIREMAN is saving millions of dollars annually to industry and homes. Fuel savings alone total over $4,000,000 annually. Average annual savings of $493 each are reported by 392 typical users of industrial sizes. These users are earning an average of 39.44 per cent every year on their investment in Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burners.

The secret of these extraordinary savings is in fuel costs centers in Iron Fireman non-agitated forced underfiring. Iron Fireman burns smaller sizes of coal, which cost less per ton: And it burns the coal. Air and coal are fed to the fire from below, and volatile gases that ordinarily escape as smoke are distilled off scientifically and consumed by the flames. Application of this scientific principle produces firebox temperatures 500 to 1000 degrees hotter than through hand firing, automatically maintains even heat or boiler pressure, saves labor, and abates the smoke nuisance.

In sizes for homes, apartments, and large commercial heating and power plants; sold on convenient terms.

An Iron Fireman engineer will call and survey your plant, and render a report that fairly and accurately contrasts your present results and costs with results and costs you may expect from an Iron Fireman. Ask us for this service. It is free.

SCREEN HITS SUMMIT OF STYLE ARRAY

Fashion Sequence Climax of Display of Gowns in "On Your Back"

The wardrobe department of Fox Studios, under Sophie Wachsar, outdid itself in the creation of fifty exclusive first model gowns for "On Your Back," ultra-modern drama directed by Guthrie McClintic, now playing at the Belle Theatre today and Wednesday—matinee daily.

Not since Hollywood became a style centre, have the studios turned out anything quite so modish, so chic, so extremely fashionable as these gowns.

Irene Rich as the fashionable model, wears a number of becoming ensembles, each a distinct style creation ranging from tea and formal gowns to exquisitely tailored suits for street wear.

Marion Shilling, the ingenue, has seven individual style changes, each created especially for her personality and radiating in every line the mode to be in vogue one year hence.

The high light of the story is reached during a parade of mannequins in an exclusive New York modiste's salon. Lavish gowns and wraps, negligees and intimate wear, are displayed by fifteen beautiful girls. This sequence was done with such care as to style advances that every detail is correct.

In the notable cast are H. B. Warner, Raymond Hackett, Ilka Chase, Wheeler Oakman, Charlotte Henry, Rose Dione and Arthur Hoyt.

Also Graham McNamee Newscasting for the Universal Newsreel "The Blimp Mystery" a clever, Monkey comedy that is different and Benny Rubin in "Gems of 1930. Make this an outstanding programme of merit.

On Friday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of Regiopolis College, the students of the College gathered to say farewell to their former Dean, Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, who assumed his new charge at Belleville, on Sunday. An address was read to Monsignor Nicholson by the students and Rev. Father Clancy, newly-appointed Dean of the College, thanked the Monsignor on behalf of the students for his many kindnesses and the affection shown them. He also referred to the splendid progress made at Regiopolis during the eleven years that Monsignor Nicholson had been Dean there and said that he would always remember the students.

Monsignor Nicholson replied very feelingly to the words spoken and thanked the students for presentation of a handsome gift to him. He assured them that he would always recall his Deanship at Regiopolis College with pleasure and would remember the students with whom he had the pleasure of association during his years as its head.

The drouth is responsible for the scarcity of the product. Melrose, Reds, the nine-to-a-peck apples brought 25 cents a basket while tomatoes found a ready market at seventy-five cents a bushel. The tomato crop is at its height now. Golden Bantam corn was displayed and easily disposed of at fifteen cents a dozen ears. New potatoes which were small but tempting went for a dollar a bushel.

NATIONALS MUST SEEK MATERIAL FOR REBUILDING

Says Fred Craig, Sports Scribe in Peterboro Examiner

Belleville Nationals passed from the baseball pinnacle under a barrage of blows from the bats of Toronto Bell Telephone players on Saturday afternoon at Peterboro. Fans have already been given accounts of the game by Toronto and Belleville scribes and now we present the version of the game by Fred Craig, a neutral witness who journeyed to sport in the Peterboro Examiner. He has some pointed things to say in regard to the Nationals and you may be interested in the report.

"The remnants of a once powerful baseball machine passed off the O.B.A. stage for the season at Jamison Stevenson Park Saturday afternoon when the Belleville Nationals were defeated 12 runs to 5 by Bell Telephone of Toronto in the rubber game of their senior series.

"It was a hollow victory for the hard hitting outfit led by the redoubtable Harry Bateman.

"The Nationals, only a shadow of that fighting club that used to ride roughshod over its opposition looked like a beaten team even before the battle began.

"The old fight was lacking and even in a three-run start in the first frame when a powerful wallop by Alex Weir converted a trio of charities into as many runs failed to inspire the General Ontario League winners.

"The Telephone crew came back with five in their second frame and the ball game was over except for the formalities of playing out the nine frames. There was nothing in the development of the Belleville gang to warrant hope that they would battle their way back into the lead again. It is only a question of the margin by which Bell Telephone would win.

Need to Re-build

"Ball club scouts have been forever and the Nationals with their veterans slipping and their new material with one exception not even enough for practice, to the stage when they would have to rebuild. In addition they have been handicapped by having only one pitcher of class and it was asking too much of Alex Weir who beat the Belmine gang on Wednesday to expect him to hold such a hard hitting bunch of hombres in subjection twice in succession who had only tried rest. Weir stuck to his guns manfully and made a better job of it than the score indicates for he had the ill-fortune of having his team mates fail down flat when he most needed help and sharp infielding and miserable judging of fly balls by the outfield were the factors in piling up the Telephone lead. Daly's triple with the bases full in the second frame should have been an easy out and a long high fly from Batstone that went for a double was the result of slow work by the gardener."

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By R. B. Martin

LEFT HAND ALSO HAS HITTING STRENGTH IF USED PROPERLY

Golfers who believe that the left hand does a major portion of the work should at least place it in the right position on the club. If the back of the hand is turned to the hole there is no power to be utilized as this is not the hitting side of the hand.

The surest and easiest way to make the left hand useful is to place it more over the top of the shaft with the flat side of the wrist facing the ground. This means that the V of the hand formed by the thumb and the first finger will be pointing to the right shoulder instead of the left.

Now the left has real hitting strength. One need only try this to ascertain its real value. This is a very old theory and a very good one.

Cemetery Crossing Subway is Mooted At Highway Dinner

Hastings and recently built a new bridge and another is contemplated to be built. The Ontario Government has assisted in the Bay Bridge matter and the Hon. Mr. Henry may be asked to give more assistance," he said.

Crossing Stressed

His Worship hoped the Minister of Highways would consider the level crossing, referred to by the Warden and he hoped an overhead crossing would soon take the place of the level crossing. The mayor said he was in favour of a new upper bridge, being built in the city and he would like to see it a cement bridge.

"We want all to trade in Belleville and goods roads and bridges will help it. This city is going ahead and as long as I am mayor of the city, I desire to have the cooperation of the members of this and the adjoining counties to assist in the construction of more highways leading from Belleville to Maynooth and other parts of Hastings County", declared the mayor in closing.

Subway on Bridge

Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. for West Hastings, introduced the Hon. Mr. Henry and stated that it was a pleasure to be present at the opening of the new highway to Point Anne, also a pleasure to be present at this function. The Hon. Mr. Henry was well known in this locality and Mr. Ireland said advised the minister of highways, that a subway or an overhead roadway be built at the level crossing west of the city of Belleville limits. Mr. Ireland referred to the construction of permanent roads in Hastings County and he was ever ready to do what he could for the County. Hon. Mr. Henry has displayed his ability in the construction of highways and he had much pleasure in introducing the minister of highways.

Road Information

A hearty reception was accorded to Hon. Mr. Henry, when he arose to speak and in his opening remarks referred to the pleasure it was to be present and speak to members of the County Council. His address was replete with informat on relative to road building of various types. In the Province there are many good roads, some are fair and some poor. The problem in regards to roads is varied and it is not always possible for the Department to live up to promises which may be made. Generally speaking, however, the people of the Province are well pleased at what the highway department is doing in providing good roads for the travelling public. "This year we have been building miles of roads daily and we are giving fair consideration to the Province as a whole. In some cases it is hard to determine just which type of road is best suited to the locality. It is my desire to do something for each County each year, but with thirty-seven counties it is sometime hard to please all. The exact mileage per day this year is not definitely known at present. The King's highway and the County system are one as both the Province and Council assist in the construction of them. As we go forward in the construction of the King's highway we relieve to some extent the conditions of municipalities and county council."

Gravel Roads and Traffic

The traffic on roads was referred to by the minister and on a road where the traffic is under 1,000 vehicles per day a gravel road would take care of the traffic that road is properly treated. Another type of road has been established costing some $6,000 and $7,000 per mile which is capable of taking care of considerable traffic. Roads of a macadam material have been made and that type of road costs in the neighborhood of $12,000 to $15,000 a mile. These roads are made and treated in a manner that makes them capable of standing up under rather heavy traffic. A tar penetration road is another type of road. A cement road is a good type of road. Various types of roads and the mode of construction of same was referred to by the minister. The department buys all the material for the contractor, all the cement and asphalt for roads is bought by the department, at so much per tonnage per mile. With our development of the road system we come across many small bridges, bridges that were built some years ago and are inadequate for the traffic of today. These bridges are replaced by larger and wider bridges and gradually these narrow bridges are being eliminated.

Subways

Speaking of level crossing Mr. Henry advocated that the most dangerous crossings be eliminated one year. The Dominion Railway Board will assist in this matter. The department will take its share of the county's expense by eliminating a grade crossing even if it be an expensive undertaking. A 25 foot subway if such is built is of sufficient width. If one grade crossing is eliminated a year, upon highways in a few years these grade crossings, will eventually be eliminated. Two overhead crossings are to be a year being constructed by the department and one was the dangerous crossing west of Trenton. Three checker boards placed there did not seem to prevent accidents at this point of the highway."

Highway Commission

The minister referred to a commission of five which had been in vogue in a county and this road commission is responsible to the county and not the municipality any member of the commission may represent. The members of the commission are five and they are appointed for five, four, three, two and one years respectively. The committee may consist of three members only and the County Council should cooperate with the department in this matter, which will prove beneficial in road building in the county.

In concluding his address the speaker referred to compulsory insurance being taken out by those who drive cars. The cost of insurance is small compared with the consequences which may follow if an accident occurs.

Canada Cement Co's Aid

Mr. V. Moyne, sales manager of the Canada Cement Company, said the Company would cooperate with the County of Hastings in road construction. He referred to the new road leading to Point Anne, which was opened today, as a fine type of road, and hoped more would be built.

Hall M.P.P. Speaks

Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings, spoke a few words in reference to the new road which had been built to Point Anne. It was a road all were proud of and the representatives of Hastings' County Council were to be congratulated on its construction.

Mr. C. Johnson, a representative of the Dufferin Construction Company, which constructed the road, congratulated the county, on having built such a road and hoped the company would have the opportunity of constructing more such roads in the county.

Mr. R. M. Mitchell, reeve of Thurlow Township, spoke briefly, referring to the fact that he was proud of the cement road, which was opened Monday afternoon. It was a fine type of road and a credit to the county and township of Thurlow, alike, and hoped it would be but a forerunner of many more such types of road.

No Debentures on Road

Warden Vanderwater in concluding the speech making, stated that the Point Anne road would be paid for this year out of the appropriation with no debenture issued, in fact no debentures had been issued by the County Council since 1914. He appreciated the instructive address of Hon. Mr. Henry and he moved that a vote of thanks be extended to the minister for the information imparted, which was duly carried. Thanks to those who had sung and to Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Thomas Montgomery, reeve of Elzbing village, seconded the vote of thanks, which was heartily received and acknowledged.

The pleasing affair was brought to a close by the singing of "O Canada".

Leaders Clash

Mr. Bennett's announcement came in the midst of a slight ruffle which swept the House at adjournment, and was characterized by a clash between the Prime Minister and Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. King protested that no notice had been given of the Government's intention to bring down such important resolutions at such short notice, and he objected strenuously to "steam roller tactics." No one, he

CREDITS SICKNESS TO FRUIT, VEGETABLES

Despite the warning of the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. C. S. Cronk, about the same amount of water is being used, according to reports issued from the pump-house today. "We haven't noticed any decrease in the amount of water being consumed by the city. It just runs about the same," the engineer in charge of the pump-house stated.

Dr. Cronk told the press today that so far he did not know of any connection between sickness and the drinking water. "I warned them," he said, "and they seem to have observed the warning, however, at the present time, nearly every season there is some sickness. I attribute this to the eating of too much fruit and vegetables. It is really just a mild case of intestinal infuenza, not serious. There is quite a lot of it in Belleville at present."

Two Fires Four Hours Apart at Cannifton Road Address

A Happy Royal Mother

Two fires within a space of four hours last night totally destroyed a barn owned by Mrs. F. L. Patterson, 53 Cannifton Road, and the roof of another barn owned by Percy McColgan, 49 Cannifton Road, was destroyed as well as the paint on the house being blistered, also a car owned by Bruce Elliott, a roomer at the Patterson home and employed at the National Grocers. The car and the barn of Mrs. Patterson are insured and will partially cover a loss estimated at $1500.

The first brigade, under Chief Lynch, was called to Mrs. Patterson's home about nine o'clock last night, the car of Mr. Elliott catching fire in some unknown way. The brigade made a quick run but Mr. Elliott, who was home at the time, had the car out in the yard and was using the water from a garden hose. The fire was extinguished as far as known when the brigade arrived. Mr. Elliott told the firemen the fire was out and there was no smoke. The brigade examined the barn and then left for the halls and the car was placed back in the barn. The family did not retire until late and an inspection was made before retiring and everything appeared to be in order.

Shortly past one o'clock this morning fire was broke out this time in the barn and before the flames could be brought under control the barn and car were totally destroyed and the roof on the barn of Mr. Mor-

Toronto Boys Admit Theft of Tires, Rims and Gasoline at Tweed Village

Hon. Wesley Gordon

Minister of Immigration and Colonization and Minister of Mines, from his most recent official portrait.

Leaving Toronto with an old used car for the country and visit relatives in the district, brought Woodrow Haller, 9 Bowes avenue, Toronto, and Farley Haley, 29 Roxboro street, same address, in the clutches of the law. The car needed gas and oil and the tires were not good and they had no money.

Provincial Constable Hill received information from Felix Rashotte of Tweed that two auto tires and rims had been taken from his garage and that a quantity of gas and oil had also disappeared.

Working on the assumption of strangers in the district being responsible, the constable made an investigation and found the tires on the car used by these two boys. They were arrested and brought to the county jail.

Today they appeared at the County Chambers before Magistrate Casement and after hearing preliminary trial pleaded guilty. At first B. C. Ireland, K.C., counsel appointed to ask for a stiff sentence but on questioning the young boys, found out they were in hard luck. It was their first offence for either of them and finally the magistrate remanded them for one week in order that he could think over the case. The boys at the time of their arrest had in their said, carrying firearms, but no charge was laid in this respect. The boys explained to the court that the taking of these articles looked so easy they did not hesitate. Magistrate Casement commented that the thieving was the one objection to motor cars. They are easy to obtain, but they generally need a stimulant.

HEAVY PACK OF TOMATOES MADE

Cannery in Belleville Packs Nearly 2500 Cans Per Day

Belleville Canners are running at full speed, canning tomatoes and corn. Each twenty-two hundred to twenty-five hundred cans a day are being packed at the cannery on Albion street. "We are packing more tomatoes this year than last, I believe," an official of the canney told The Ontario Intelligencer today. "However, we do not expect the season for the tomatoes to last quite as long as usual." The canneries have been working at top rate for the past high days canning tomatoes, and expect to continue for about the next ten days.

Anywhere from thirty-five hundred to five thousand crates of tomatoes pour into the cannery every day, a huge output. Canning tomatoes and corn, there are working about one hundred and fifteen employees on hour work and about one hundred and ten employees on piece work. The season will average from about two hundred and twenty-five to two hundred and fifty employees having steady work.

There does not appear to be as much corn this year as last, the press was told. The factory has only been packing corn about five days and does not expect to continue for any great length of time. "So far as I can see, the official said, "for some reason or other there does not appear to be nearly as much corn as usual."

The factory is working on ten-hour shifts.

"A spectacular high line trail ride about 7,000 feet above sea level from Banff to Lake Louise has just been inspected and found feasible by J. Murray Gibbon and Jim Brewster. It is 70 miles west of Banff over timber line to a ridge looking down on the little known glacier-fed Taylor Lake and following the 7,000-foot contour to the Consolation Lake trail leading to Moraine Lake. It commands a view of some of the most glacier country North of the Canadian Pacific Railway west as far as the Bow Lakes and south to Mt. Assiniboine. It is 40 miles long and will probably be used for the annual official camping trip of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies next year.

"I do not believe that the talking films will ever take the place of the legitimate stage. . . People still appear to be building ordinary houses," said Lady Diana Manners, famous English society beauty and equally famous as the heroine of a film starring Jesse Lasky New York and Boston productions, who arrived at the Windsor street station, Montreal, recently, on her first visit to Canada.

The Quebec Festival of French-Canadian Folk Lore and Handicrafts, at which talented artists born and bred on the soil of Quebec province, and well-known artists from far and wide rival one another in recovering the spirit of Old France, and old New France and its age-old customs of the Gaelic race, will be held this year October 16-18, according to an announcement made by the Canadian Pacific Railway, organizers of the Festival.

Travelling in two Canadian Pacific special trains, about 240 of the British delegates to the 23rd British medical world left Montreal for Toronto on the second leg of their convention of the British Medical Association, on Wednesday morning. They were preceded by a group of 25 members of the British Medical Association, who attended a convention of tuberculosis specialists at Saranac, Malone, before going to Winnipeg.

"In view of the fact that this is the last year in which Canada has a seat on the Council of the League of Nations, I could not resist the request made to me by the Prime Minister to represent the Dominion at Geneva," said Sir Robert Laird Borden, former Prime Minister of Canada, as he sailed for Europe recently aboard the Empress of Scotland.

Every activity of the Canadian Pacific Railway was stressed this year at the National Exhibition at Toronto, which was opened formally by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the road. An outstanding feature of the company's exhibit was the model of the new 42,000 ton Empress of Britain, greatest interocean passenger vessel, launched by the Prince of Wales last June and to start service between Quebec and Great Britain next year.

More than $100,000,000 will be spent in each of the next three years on power development in Canada. Although there are other fields for important building projects none will have a more intimate bearing on the industrial development of Canada than the water power activities directed by the power industry.

The maiden voyage of the new Canadian Pacific flagship of the Pacific, the Empress of Japan, from Yokohama to Victoria, was completed to the slight delay, in 10 days and 23 minutes, beating the Empress of Canada record for the run, established in 1918, by four hours and twenty minutes. E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the railway company, received congratulations to Captain E. Aikman, general superintendent of the Company's Pacific steamship fleet. Congratulations also fell on the Atlantic when the company's liner Duchess of York travelled between Greenock, Scotland, and Quebec City in 5 days, 14 hours and 20 minutes, even beating the time hung up by the Duchess of Richmond on her previous trip from Belfast to Quebec, which is a hundred miles shorter.

Speaking at a banquet given by the Saint John Board of Trade in inaugurating the service of the new Canadian Pacific steamer Princess Helena on the Saint John-Digby route, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the railway said he thought Canada would respond more quickly than other countries, even wealthier than herself, to measures taken by responsible governments and large industrial organizations to alleviate unemployment. He added that in his opinion the Maritime Provinces were particularly favorably placed in this respect.

In the provision of telephone communications in cities of 50,000 and over and in conversations per capita, Canada leads the world, according to statistics recently published. In these cities Canada has 24.2 telephones per 100 inhabitants against the United States' 21.8. In 1929 Canadians made 201.7 long distance conversations per head of population as compared with 200.7 in the United States, her nearest rival.

THIRD OF TRIO SENT TO PRISON

George Bailey, Involved in Break Attempts and Assault, Sent Down

The attempted jail-break at the County Jail on August 24th and the assault upon the turnkey at the time was disposed of as far as the law is concerned when George Bailey, the third member of the gang, who made the attempt, was sentenced by His Honor Judge Deroche to two years in Kingston penitentiary for the attempted break and three years for assault, sentences to run concurrent.

Bailey was first brought before Magistrate Casemore Graham for preliminary hearing with B. C. Donnan prosecuting and R. E. Arnott acting for the defence. Only the evidence of Tom Ketcheson the warden of the jail was given and a substance it was the same as had been given at the trial of Gordon Aselstine and David Little. Mr. Ketcheson stated that Bailey had the part of a metal pipe in his hand at one time and that he struck either Mr. Colling or his son Kenneth.

Magistrate Casemore found sufficient evidence to commit the man for trial and immediately he was taked before Judge Deroche for his trial and pleaded guilty to the charges. His Honor had the fact brought to his attention by defence counsel of the home life of the accused but Judge Deroche, wishing to give the man a chance could not overlook the fact that the boy had helped another in the attempt and was equally guilty with the other two. His Honor told Bailey that he hoped life would be brighter for him after he came out and there was nothing to be gained by trying to relieve one's way through life.

the minister and Rev. Dr. Stephen, Kingston, to address the people. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Rev. O. M. Dunn, Toronto, who is still Secretary of the Budget Committee of the General Assembly gave a very forceful and illuminating address on the Budget. He stated that the situation is by no means discouraging as the Presbyterian Church in Canada has held her own with every institution in the country. We are passing through a season of depression, but even so the total contributions are only $585 less than at the corresponding date last year. Mr. Dunn is of the opinion that if the people know the facts they will not fail to respond.

On motion of Dr. MacTavish, seconded by Rev. B. M. Scott, Picton, Mr. Dunn was accorded the hearty thanks of the Presbytery for his stimulating and illuminating address.

New Moderator

Rev. A. N. Reid, B.A., Stirling, was elected to be next in order for the honor of Moderator, accordingly on motion of Rev. C. K. Nicoll, seconded by Mr. George West, he was unanimously called to the chair. In a brief speech Mr. Reid thanked the brethren for the confidence reposed in him and promised to attend during his term of office to guide the affairs of the Presbytery.

After partaking of a bountiful lunch served in the church parlors by the ladies of the congregation, the Presbytery resumed business and first item of interest by a fine report by Mrs. Scott on the work of the Kingston Presbyterial of the W.M.S. The report covered the operations of the society for the half of the present year, and it was a very encouraging one, showing that much work has been accomplished.

The next business was the consideration of a call to the Rev. W. Harold Reid, M.A., of Belleville, from the congregations of Foxboro, Rawdon and Hillier. The call was signed by 82 communicants and 20 adherents. Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., who has acted as moderator during the vacancy reported that the call was perfectly unanimous, and that the people were most desirous of having Mr. Reid settle among them. The call carries with it a salary of $1,800, two weeks' vacation and three weeks' holidays. The conduct of the moderator pro tem. was approved the call was sustained and placed in the hands of Mr. Reid. Mr. Reid asked leave of Presbytery to defer his decision for a fortnight and this was granted him. But the Presbytery proceeded to make provisional arrangements for his induction which was fixed for Rawdon, on Sept. 30th, at 8 o'clock the Moderator of Presbytery to preside and Indoct. Rev. B. M. Scott to preach, Rev. D. A. McKenzie to address the minister and Rev. T. G. Marshall the people.

Wilton Manse

The congregation of Camden East through Mr. Alex Dickson asked for advice in regard to the share it should have in the manse at Wilton and it was agreed that Messrs. Nicoll, Scott and West visit Wilton and associated congregations to form a judgment on the question and to report at the next meeting of Presbytery. Rev. Dr. Seymour reported that St. Andrew's, Belleville, were making improvements on the Church property to cost in the neighborhood of $28,000 and asked permission of the Court to place a mortgage not exceeding $13,000 on the property.

Salvation Army Not Among Modernists

Commissioner Hay Declares S. A. Will Not Belittle Christ

STREET MEETINGS

To Double Members From Two to Four Millions in 25 Years

Yesterday was a red-letter day in the annals of the Belleville Salvation Army Corps when Commissioner James Hay for Canada East territory, paid his first official visit to the city, since he succeeded Commissioner Maxwell. The citadel was packed to the doors last night for the occasion which was marked by several choral numbers as well as vocal solos by the songsters. A number of prominent Army officers of the district took part in the reception for the Commissioner who was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss (Staff Captain) Hay. Assisting were Ensign Hoviett of Belleville, Col. Adby of Toronto, Brigadier Culvert, Property Secretary, Divisional Officer Burrows of Montreal and Capt. Mundy of Toronto. The band which has reached a high state of efficiency under Leader David Wardle, rendered a number of selections while Thomas Adams lead the songsters.

Commissioner Hay was introduced by the Chairman J. O. Hertly, who congratulated the army on the necessary work they have been doing. He stressed the fact that the Army does not seek publicity and the results of the efforts of the Army people are noted among the poor and needy. "You have a band here of which you may be proud," Mr. Hertly observed. "We have a distinguished visitor here who is held in high regard in the service of the Salvation Army. He has worked in the old land, in Australia, South Africa, and is now in charge of the district between Port Arthur and Nova Scotia."

Not Among Modernists

Commissioner Hay in his own inimitable style delivered a masterful inspiring address touching on the future of the Salvation Army. "The Salvation Army will not be among the modernists in trying to discover what a little Jesus we have," said the Commissioner. He stated that the street gatherings hold a great obligation for the Army and these must not be forsaken at any cost. He predicted that within the next twenty-five years the present membership of two millions will be doubled.

"The Commissioner voiced his earnest regrets that a great many dramas the Salvation Army lightly from their minds. He went on to point out that the subject is a deep one, which requires considerable study. "We must examine the work, nature and foundation of the movement which is recognized by reformers and political leaders the world over. The future of the Salvation Army makes an interesting study and you who belong to the movement must devote yourselves and your sympathy to its welfare."

Early Days in S.A.

The history of the openings provoke a real thrill within anyone who has studied the Salvation Army," he declared. The Commissioner pictured the crime, disorder, riots, and trouble which faced those who pledged their allegiance to the Army forty-five years ago. A challenge was thrown out to those young men and women who were inspired to go out and do the work which has resulted in the realization of the world-wide movement.

He informed his listeners that the Army is expanding not only in the British Empire but in many other parts of the world. He spoke of the sacrifices made by many in furthering the work in Oriental countries. "The great mass of the Army is vigorous and is producing. God inspired those early pioneers to tackle the problem and through the years these inspirations have continued." The speaker warned the Belleville Corps that the future of the Salvation Army depends upon the leaders' aptitude for Evangelism. "Messages must be poured out to the downtrodden and weak from the street corners where the ability of the youth to teach and to preach must be cultivated."

The Commissioner spoke of the growing needs in connection with the declining crime. "There are tremendous problems concerning the prison populations of this country and Army leaders have been called into conference to offer suggestions in dealing with the question."

Commissioner Hay pointed out that everyone should attend open air meetings. "When the whole community is Christianized we will then remain in our citadels to worship," he declared.

Lose Itself in World

"The Salvation Army must be an answer to the spiritual hunger of the world, it must lose itself in the service of the world. I see no indications that the women are going to take a back seat in the Salvation Army". In closing the Commissioner urged that the Army cherish that spirit of friendliness and unity on which the movement was founded.

FAVOR $25 BEER IN U. S. IN RELIEF PLAN

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 10.—CP — The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today stood on record as favoring the manufacture of 2.75 per cent. beer in an effort to bring relief to unemployment. It was argued such a move would give employment to 2,000,000 persons and provide markets for 65 million bushels of farmers' surplus grain.

KEEPING THE LEFT BAR OR THE NO. 2 ANOTHER WAY OF SAYING "HIT UNDER THE CHIN" OR HIT PAST THE LEFT TOE.

DO NOT GET BODY INTO SWING TOO QUICKLY

Some experts insist that the only way to make a golf shot is to hit out a ball by what is known as lifting past the chin. Not a bad idea if one can remember to keep the chin in a position to hit past it. If one cannot remember this he may remember that there is another trick just as good "Keep the left ear on the ball" or still another good idea, "Hit past the left toe."

One can employ all of these ideas and it will merely mean that he has followed a very old golfing rule "Keep the head down" or still another one of the early tips "Keep the eye on the ball". There will be no temptation to look up if one is not tempted to get the body into the swing too quickly.

other car involved in the collision, will be sufficiently recovered to give his version of the fatal crash.

Chas. L. Jeffery of Chesterton, Indiana, driver of the death-car stated that the party which included Dr. Wiltong, and Perry Sisson entered Canada at Sarnia, on Sept. 2rd and proceeded to Montreal. They were returning westward when the accident occurred. Wiltong was in the front seat while Sisson occupied the rear. Jeffrey stated that the car was travelling at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour previous to the accident. Picturing the events which lead to the crash, Mr. Jeffrey said that when the Cunnington car was about one hundred and fifty feet away the driver suddenly swerved to the right after having travelled on the left side. Jeffery said that in order to try and avoid an accident he swerved to the left side. "Had you succeeded in getting to the left side before the crash occurred?" asked the Crown. "No". Mr. Jeffery was of the opinion that Cunnington did not see the approach of the other car until it was a few feet away.

"Did you have any liquor in the car?" "Yes". The witness stated that the party had a small drink each at their hotel in Kingston at six o'clock in the morning, after they got up. "Were you at any time under the influence of liquor?" "No". He said they expected to arrive home on Friday night of this week and relatives had been notified to that effect.

Perry Sisson, who was a passenger in the rear seat corroborated Mr. Jeffery's story of the movements of the Cunnington car, stating that it had been travelling on the wrong side and had suddenly swerved to the south. He testified that he assisted Jeffery out of the wreckage when he found that Wiltong was dead.

"At the point where Mr. Jeffery turned to the left, was the other car travelling far enough to allow the former to continue on the same side and avoid the crash?" He said the accident occurred in a flash and he could not answer the question. "Do you recall the speed of the car having been retarded prior to the accident?" "I don't know."

Mr. Sisson admitted that a quantity of beer and ale in the car belonged to him. He said they had one drink of gin in the morning early at the hotel in Kingston.

"Had Mr. Jeffery given any indication that he was under the influence of liquor?" "No."

At Tickell and Browne's undertaking parlors yesterday afternoon an inquest was opened for the purpose of inquiring into the circumstances regarding the motor accident on the Provincial Highway yesterday morning, whereby Dr. Charles O. Wiltong, of Chesterton, Indiana lost his life. Dr. W. W. Boyce, coroner presided and Mr. B. C. Donnan, County Attorney, was present to exam ne witnesses.

Ald. W. A. Woodley was chosen foreman of the jury and other members were C. L. Walters, R. D. Black, Dr. Herriman, E. O. Brown, F. Gill, H. W. Wrightmeyer, S. J. Wedden and F. O. Diamond.

After the jurymen had been sworn the body of the victim was viewed and evidence taken as to identification of same.

Mr. H. L. Sisson of Valparaiso, Indiana, who was in the car with the victim of the accident, in his evidence stated that the body was that of Dr. Charles O. Wiltong, a physician, who practised at Chesterton, Indiana. Deceased was born in 1867. Witness in company with deceased and Mr. Charles J. Jeffery was in the auto when the accident occurred. He identified the body as that of his friend Dr. Wiltong.

This was all the evidence submitted at this sitting of the enquiry and at the conclusion the jurymen were conveyed to the scene of the accident to make observation of the marks upon the pavement where the two cars met head-on.

Paints Horrors of War, Glory of Peace

Rev Harold B. Neal Tells of Almost Diabolical Trend of Science

REGARDING WAR

Religion in Widest Sense and Service Organizations to Bring Peace

"Universal peace aim has persisted through the ages and in some generations fell in bad company but still it is the only method by which war can be abolished", said Rev. Harold B. Neal, Pastor of Holloway Street United Church, speaking to the Kiwanis Club yesterday at the weekly luncheon in the Queen's Hotel. The address was the inaugural one, the speaker being introduced by Rev. Earl McCutcheon and Kiwanian appreciation expressed by R. C. McGarvin.

The activity of the club at the present time is the putting over of the annual fall carnival but absorption in this did not deter the members from voting to buy the material to build two more cabins for the use of the boys' camp at Lake Moira. These cabins will be built in sections during the winter and be placed on the grounds early in the summer. All the committees functioning for the carnival are at top speed and it is expected the largest and best of the series will be given. Something novel in the way of entertainment will be given each night and they will be no repeats. A fine program will be given later in the week. Joe Imlah presided as chairman and Ernie Fisher supplied the music. Visitors being present, the members could not enjoy their community singing but the executive promised an orchestra for the next meeting.

War More Cruel

Rev. Harold Neal in opening his address spoke of the warmth and hospitality, that had been extended to him since his coming to Belleville and he congratulated the club on its interest in under-privileged children, believing it to be a fine investment. Speaking on the subject of promotion of goodwill and wider fellowship, Rev. Mr. Neal state that in the far gone years, people thought for themselves and would rather hurt than help their neighbour. When barriers and mountains were overcome by means the people of one district tried to overcome those of another by cruel warfare and when communication between points was made broader, and science continued and more cruel. "We as a people are slow to understand," said Rev. Neal and "the people are the ones along with are probably our best friends if we made it a point to know them better. The tragedy of the case is that we do not know each other and clubs and organizations such as the Kiwanis are bringing people more fellowship and better understanding. There is always talk of international relationships but the fellowship must start in one's own community."

War's Future

"War," continued the speaker, "has caused the tragic price we are paying by some passing on, through the sacrifices they made at the front, 'Study of more potent implements of war has not diminished since the Great War and today a gas is known, that penetrates the blood stream of the human and life is snuffed out in an instant. In three hours the whole city of London, England would be wiped out by dirigibles dropping bombs of gas on the city." The greatest arguments for peace were cited by the speaker in reciting a tale of the Prince of Wales visiting a hospital in war time and kissing one of the soldiers, blind, deaf, and mutilated beyond recognition and of the German and French students meeting on the Main Landing, the Frenchman shooting the German and later to become demented in a French hospital.

The economic parts of the rival armies did not have a quarrel with each other but they were drawn into a machine which was devilish and diabolical.

"The question arises how can war be abolished? Some thought that science would abolish war but it has made it more diabolical, then some turned to higher education, then to international law and the great competitive interests entered and later industry but none were the cure-all. The speaker believed that the forces of religion in the widest terms and the by-products of the churches such as Kiwanis Club assisting the renewal of good will and better fellowship would in time bind all nations of the earth into one great people of peace.

BLACKBIRDS SAY FAREWELL TO CITY

Blackbirds by hundreds assembled early this morning in the grounds of Mr. James A. Roy with great clatter and rattle of tongues. As short stop the aerial fleet started on the voyage to the far south.

Here is a never-chilling sign said by a Belleville ornithologist, who has watched the movements of birds, "when you see blackbirds gather and start south so early in the morning, it is a sign of an early spring."

Is it also a sign of an early winter?

Reception was just about ordinary last night. Nothing outstanding. To my mind although we got the programs we wanted until plenty loud enough, we got so I guess we can be satisfied. Couldn't ask for anything more or less? Somehow or other it just didn't seem to be extra.

CHINA IS PASSING THROUGH STAGES OF DEVELOPMENT

Story of China's Rebirth Told By Chinese Bishop at Christ Church

BATTLE "REDS"

What proved to be the largest gathering of divines of the Church of England, perhaps, to gather in the city of Belleville in some time was present at Christ Church parish hall last night to hear and to meet Bishop F. Lindel Tsen, the first Chinese Bishop ever to visit Canada.

From all the surrounding territory Anglican ministers and members of their flocks came to Belleville last night to hear the inspired address that this Chinese Bishop made. There were present, Reverend F. Heywood of Trenton, Rev. Canon McVear, of Wellington Rev. F. O. Kirkpatrick, Ameliasburg, Rev. B. F. Byers, Stirling, Rev. William Wright Tweed, Revs. Smith, Goslin, Rev. A. B. Caldwell (Marmora and Rev. A. L. Green of Bay of Quinte as well as the Reverend E. Clarke, pastor of Christ Church and host for the evening.

So anxious were they to hear Bishop Tsen, that visitors had to have their suppers in two allotments. The parish hall was jammed to the doors before seven o'clock and even the gallery upstairs was utilized as a dining room.

Has Fine Command

What was a great surprise to the majority of those present was the magnificent command of the English language by the Bishop. He spoke nearly as perfect English as any Canadian, with but a slight accent, a man of small stature, with a pleasant face for forty-five minutes he kept his audience enthralled as he outlined the present trouble in China and the work of the Church of England there or as the church is better known, the Holy Catholic Church.

"China is today" said Bishop Tsen "one of those very few old countries with a history of at least four thousand years. During her past history she did make some contribution to the influence of civilization. But she was loosened in that part of Asia confined by great seas on the east and south coasts and as she grew up in that way natural that she arrived but soon at a cultural and moral development." The Bishop mentioned just two things that were discovered by the Chinese long before they were ever heard of in Europe—the compass, for instance and the printing press; the manufacture of paper. "The manufacture of paper was already in development in China some centuries before the Arctic flying discovered the process," he said. "However, being surrounded physically and otherwise she made herself the Middle Kingdom of the human race. She began to realize later that there was a great deal to learn. She began to learn, for instance, just how west she was."

Contact with World

"Somehow," continued Bishop Tsen "her closed doors were forced open, not only by a houseful of our own members but by thousands of others, outsiders. This contact of people of other races in China has done a real good in the awakening of the Chinese people. But she will have to gather experiences both painful and unattractive by far."

"Many of my friends in western countries have asked me questions on the present situation in China. They have asked for a concise explanation, I cannot really do that. People who have acquainted themselves with the history of all nations will not be puzzled. One hundred years ago had similar happenings in the history of other nations when they were being "reborn."

One Party Today

"There is today in China only one political party. This party is the Nationalist party. It is composed of groups of individuals of this party. They have failed to achieve harmony and agreement even through ordinary processes of debate. The whole disturbing atmosphere is not only of a materialistic and political character; it is equally of a psychological character. China has come now to need new ideas and to are new things. So, these new ideas, in a number coming from the west, have given rise to a change in the minds of the Chinese. The Chinese are not merely copying the west, but with what they have absorbed they begin to have changes within themselves.

"The present China we have all kinds of organized efforts directed to one purpose or another. They are doing a constructive job. Amongst all the new organized forces is a great deal of destructive character. There is a great deal against religion and general and Christianity in particular. It is just a movement of the Chinese people in connection with other nations of anti-Christian movements.

"Our task is to open our vision and wider than we used to. This movement needs the guidance and need the direction that can only be given by those who came to the earth to save sinners.

United Against Reds

"Communists are united all over Europe and the United States. They are moving more conspicuously in China than in other countries. Air Marshal Sir Nicholson are fighting amongst themselves, they all unite against the "Reds."

Following Bishop Tsen told of the Church of England in China and the great work that it was doing there. Many more will received. Archdeacon Stobbs acted as song-leader and rendered a solo, as did Mr. James Thatcher. Mr. Leo Biggs presided at the piano.

The Reverend O. E. Clarke introduced the speaker in a few words of appreciation. Rev. Canon Allen,

How Can He Be A Good Husband?

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Are we on the verge of a social revolution the like of which the world has never before seen?

If a letter I've just received from a young man who is going to be married in September is even the faintest of straws, showing which way the wind blows, we may look for a startling change in the ancient institution of marriage.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," he writes, "I expect to be married in September to a lovely girl I've been trying to persuade for the past three years to marry me. At last she has consented and I am looking forward to an ideal life. I want to make her happy and I want to stay married to this girl—what d'y you think is the best way of avoiding those misunderstandings, those ugly family jars, scenes and tussles that make family life a caricature of what it should be?

"How, in other words, can I make this girl happy—how can I be a good husband?"

Please let me say that in all the years I've been running this column, this is the first time I've ever had a letter from a man asking how he can be a good husband!

Countless girls have written asking how they can be good wives. Where have asked how they can keep their husbands in love. What can they do to fend off rivals. What to do with a husband who is getting bored with home and then there is that naughty man who has divinely endowed them from the beginning with every qualification for being perfect husbands.

If they contemplate a business partnership nothing is overlooked to make it "go" or it doesn't.

If a house is bought, the same care is exercised. And, every man knows he can't run an automobile, an aeroplane, even drive a horse and wagon, or sail a boat, without some knowledge of the way these things are done.

But your average man will tenderly stride up the church aisle to the inspiring strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, or some other such classic of the Peace and make the necessary responses without ever giving a thought to those little things that make of marriage a success or failure.

Therefore, half the success of the new school of husbands who feels he doesn't intuitively know all about women—that he is not divinely inspired with complete understanding of that half of the race that is fearfully and wonderfully made.

His humility has about it almost the wisdom of Solomon. He's like those wise young men who, after four years of college, begin to realize how little they know.

No one really knows anything about women but certain rules to which they invariably react may be set down as a good working basis for matrimony. First, there is a complete understanding about financial matters. Let your wife know what your salary is and then establish the budget system. Decide what's to be spent for rent, food, clothes, amusements and what's to be put by for emergencies and the possible rainy day.

It's unbelievable the number of women who write me they do not know their husbands' incomes.

Secondly, equally important in married life, after a thorough knowledge of one's money matters, is courtesy. This is as essential on the part of the wife as the husband.

Politeness, as our most cynical American writer-satirist, Ambrose Bierce said, is the most indispensable element in marriage.

And lastly, a sense of humor is essential to all successful marriages—the ability to see the funny side—to make merry over the things that go wrong. Remember that.

What do you think about it? Write me, husbands and wives. What do you think are the qualities that go to make a good husband?

WEDDINGS

LAPP—CARSCALLEN

The rooms and spacious corridors of Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, formed the setting for the pretty wedding which occurred there on Friday at 4 p.m. when Rev.Dr. C. R. Carscallen, dean of the college united in marriage his niece, Constance Enid Carscallen, of Calgary, to Mr. Clarence Gordon Lapp of Toronto, formerly of Brighton, Ont., and Calgary. The ceremony took place in the chapel of the college in the presence of about 70 guests, intimate friends of the bride and groom.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Myrtle Crang Clayson of Toronto, and during the signing of the register the bride's cousin, Mrs. Marion Carscallen Crang, sang.

The bride, who wore a wedding gown of pink dotted Swiss net, with pink satin slippers, and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses, lily-of-the-valley and maidenhair fern, was given away by Mr. A. P. Horner of Calgary.

She was attended by Miss Marjorie Wrigley of Toronto, who wore jade green georgette and carried Sweetheart roses. The flower girl was little Miss Marilyn Crang, who wore a yellow frock and carried a large basket of flowers. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Donald Lapp, of Hamilton.

Following the ceremony the bridal party, assisted by Mrs. C. R. Carscallen, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. R. M. Lapp, mother of the groom, received the guests in one of the drawing-rooms. The Misses Kathleen Helen and Alice Carscallen and Miss Helen Sutcliffe of Trenton assisted at the wedding tea, and Mrs. George Bond of Toronto and Mrs. A. P. Horner of Calgary poured tea and coffee from a table trimmed with pink ribbons, tall pink candles and roses and centred by the stately wedding cake. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. J. R. Poole of Toronto, secretary of the provincial Education Council of Canada. Mr. William Andrew of the Hamilton Conservatory of Music rendered violin numbers.

Later as the bride went to change into going-away costume, she threw her bouquet from the stairs, and it was caught by Miss Margaret Jamieson of Toronto. The bride travelled in brown suit and hat, with accessories to match. Mr. and Mrs. Lapp left by motor for Belleville, to entrain next day for a trip to Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax. On their return they will reside in Toronto, where Mr. Lapp holds the position of field secretary with the Ontario Boys' Work Board.

McCONNELL—WELLINGTON

The marriage of Miss Irene Wellington, youngest daughter of Mrs. S. Wellington and the late Mr. Stephen Wellington, of Meaford, to Mr. Lewis McConnell, of the Bank of Commerce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McConnell, of Cannington, took place on Wednesday, September 3rd, at 10.30 a.m. at the home of the bride's mother, Durham street. Rev. D. W. Rivers, minister of the United Church, officiated. Mr. J. Finch and Miss Francis Finch, of Cheltenham, niece and nephew of the bride, were witnesses.

The bride's wedding gown was of beige lace with gold slippers and she carried a shower bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Her travelling dress was of flowered ninon with hat to match. The couple left for a motor trip through the State of Michigan, also visiting Sault Ste. Marie and Thessalon.

The little son of Mr. and Mr. Vernon Reid, of Owpah, Stephen Arthur was christened after the wedding ceremony.

LARMOUR—ROGERS

John Street United Church, Bramford with Autumn flowers, made a beautiful setting for a smart September wedding today, when Margaret Ellen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers, became the bride of Dr. Russell Larmour of Glasgow, son of the late Rev. Dr. James and Mrs. Larmour of that city. The ceremony was performed at three o'clock by Rev. Robert Hall, pastor of the church.

Golden glows and marigolds in rich yellow tones, with ferns, were used to carry out the decorative scheme. The chancel and pulpit were banked with these Autumn flowers, and a golden glow caught with yellow ribbon marked the guests' seats. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, made a lovely picture in her French gown of beige lace and georgette which was fashioned on slim fitted lines, with flowing skirt that reached the floor; the long sleeves were tight to the elbow ending in 2 wide flare of the lace. The bride was worn a hat of golden brown velvet, in off-the-face style, with brim that drooped at the back. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow mums.

Miss Dorothy Boyle, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a charming frock of apple green georgette made in princess style, and a hat of deeper green soleil. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of autumn blossoms.

Dr. Ross Larmour, Ottawa, brother of the groom, was groomsman, while Mr. Arthur Rogers, and Mr. Jack Andrews of Belleville acted as ushers.

Wedding music was played by Mr. Leo B. Riggs, and during the singing of the register, Mr. Jack Andrews sang "My World".

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents: 312 Foster Ave., Mrs. Rogers, mother of the bride, setting a gown of black lace, with corsage of roses and lilies of the valley and Mrs. H. P. Hudson, of Aylmer, Que., aunt of the groom, received with the bridal couple. Buffet luncheon was served in the dining room, which carried out the yellow and green colour tones in flowers, and candles.

Later, Dr. and Mrs. Larmour left on a motor trip through Quebec, the bride travelling in a mantilla brown tweed suit, with long coat matching skirt and eggshell satin blouse. A little toque of mantilla brown chenille and a stone marten scarf completed the costume. On their return they will reside in Ottawa.

The out of town guests present at the wedding included: Dr. and Mrs. Hudson, Aylmer, Que., Mr. Graham Hudson, Aylmer, Que., Mr. Hugh Rogers Hitchener Mr. F. W. Falls Shore, River Junction, Vermont, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Slater, Kingston, Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Braden, Ottawa.

Fashionably Speaking

BY LUCILLE

DEAR READERS:

The princess silhouette which charged the style in dresses almost overnight, and caused countless stiff straight line frocks to be discarded, has at last found its way into fur fashions. The season will see many revolutionary ideas in fur wraps, whose styles of recent years shows little change beyond different treatment of collar and cuff.

Now, however, Fashion has decided that what is stylish for dresses and cloth coats is equally smart for fur coats, and has introduced the fitted lines. Advance fur fashions indicate many changes to correspond with the mode.

To begin with, the fur coats are to be a bit longer. Some have flared skirts, others droop more in the back than in the front. But they all are longer.

Style changes include bloused back effects, and fitted lines about the waist. In fact, fur coats this year will take on the variety of cloth models, with the added distinction that luxurious fur gives. New style details concentrate on the cuff and sleeve which show great elaboration. Collars, too, follow the general trend for a change, and there are many ways in which fur stylists have given them a new charm.

Among the leading furs for winter are caracul, beaver, wolf, Lapin, muskrat, and broadtail. Lapin utility coats are new, and very becoming to those who can wear to advantage the more swagger models. Wolf which made its appearance last year, in rather still looking coats, is to be used in more supple-appearing wraps.

Yes, the fur coat mode has undergone a change. So graceful were all the costumes that showed the new silhouette that furs couldn't resist the appeal of the new fashion. Sport coats of raccoon and beaver still cling to the straight lines, but mostly all other fur fabric will be seen this fall in many original versions.

If you have been wavering between choosing a fur coat now, or waiting a while, it is a good plan to get one when the fashions are long. It is an easy matter to have fur cut from the length of a coat, when shorter styles come in, but it is an expensive thing to have to add inches to a fur coat!

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

LIBRARY ACTIVITIES

At the meeting of the Corby Public Library Board on Friday evening, the following report of library activities during the summer months was submitted by the librarian, Miss Wilkie:

Corby Public Library Board,
Belleville.
Gentlemen:

As this is the first meeting of the Board since June, the following statistics cover the last three months.

Circulation of Books.

During June, 1930—8086 books were issued including 977 from the Boys' and Girls' Department. This is an increase of 416 over June, 1929.

July records show an increase of 126, over the previous year. The total circulation was 8009, which is exceptionally large for the slackest month of the year. Of this number, 849 were Juvenile. The daily average for July was 308 books as against 263 books circulated in July, 1929.

8534 volumes were circulated during August, of which 853 were Juvenile. This is a decrease of 205 under last year's 8749. However there was one less library day in the month this year, so that the daily average is slightly larger than last year.

Thus for the three summer months of 1930 there is a circulation increase of 1412 over the same period in 1929.

Membership.

Our records show that 221 new members have enrolled during the past months. The large number of 192 withdrawals is due to the fact that the files have been gone over and all non-active memberships cancelled. The total number of active members is now 3866.

During the summer 259 new books have been catalogued and added to the shelves, and 31 books have been recatalogued.

The Ontario Intelligencer has very kindly allowed me space each week for short reviews of new books. The purpose of this column is to inform the public of the new titles added to the Library and to stimulate interest in non-fiction reading.

I have instituted a second desk to function during the rush hours on Saturday night. This means that all the in-coming books can be received at one desk and the outgoing books charged at the other. The stamping operation is thus simplified and the result is that the patron gets better and quicker service. This should prove especially helpful during the very busy winter months.

I believe that you will all agree that the question of the reference books is the most pressing one at the present moment. We cannot render adequate service, or invite use of the very good material which we now possess under existing conditions, where the books are crowded into one stack and if they are, to be consulted must be carried into the general reading room. Miscellaneous pamphlets, government documents, maps, clipping materials and magazine articles form a very important part of reference work, and these should be arranged in such form as to be easily available for the staff and accessible to the public. At the present time the greater part of this material is unused.

May I take this opportunity of thanking the members of the Board, collectively and individually for the friendliness and consideration which they have shown toward me.

I beg to remain,
Yours very truly,
Margaret E. White
Librarian.

BREAD

Wheat is still. It makes no sound
As it pushes from the ground.

As it runs its slow, serene
Course in rows of tender green.

Wheat is quiet; as it grows
It only whispers what it knows

Wheat is mute—till it is fed
To children as a loaf of bread,

Then it is laughter; it is song;
It is clamor all day long.

New Parish Priest Greeted at School and By League

Monday morning Monsignor Nicholson, accompanied by two members of the Separate School Board, Mr T. Hurley and Mr. J. M. Trusiach, made his first visit of inspection to St. Michael's Academy, visiting each class room where he was warmly greeted by the scholars. An address was read on behalf of the pupils by Francis Langton, as follows:

Reverend Monsignor Nicholson—

"On behalf of the children of St. Michael's Academy permit us to welcome you to your new parish and particularly to our new school. Since our school was destroyed, we have housed in different sections of the city, and, of course, we are delighted to be together again and to be reunited in this magnificent building, where we can lay the foundations of a life that will reflect credit on our people, parents, teachers and country. Permit the only note of regret today to that our much lamented and dearly beloved Father Killeen was not spared to see us assembled here, for we know that this was a desire most dear to his fatherly and priestly heart. However, we know that you will take the same kindly and paternal interest in our work and welfare and on our part we promise to be obedient, respectful and loving children.

"Signed on behalf of the children of St. Michael's Academy."

Catholic Women's League Welcome.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League, held last evening in St. Michael's Academy, the women of the parish had the opportunity of welcoming their new pastor, Monsignor J. P. Nicholson. On behalf of the League the President, Mrs. J. M. Trusiach gave the address of welcome. In reply, Monsignor Nicholson gave an inspiring speech, basing his remarks on education, and the importance of mothers to co-operating with teachers in the education of their children.

During the evening Miss Helena Lynch who was the delegate for Belleville subdivision of the League at the annual national convention at Shawbury, gave an interesting account of the meetings.

THE BEAUTY BOX

BY HELEN FOLLETT

Pallor may be due to malnutrition or poor circulation. No reason why little Pale Face shouldn't start a war at the rates, aiming to get some red ones in her cheeks. She must stir her stumps, and run, run, run from around in the open. Fill the lungs with fresh air; then the blood corpuscles will carry it to every part of her body, to nourish tired nerves, build up fiber and muscle to create appetite and to awaken capillaries just under the surface of the skin that provide good color to the complexion, sticking in the house all day is a no-good habit.

Special attention should be paid to ventilation of the bedroom, if one wishes to have one's beauty sleep. There should be a current of air to wash away stale air caused by the lungs. Windows should be wide open all the year round.

The last touch to the fastidious toilet is the application of a sweet, intriguing perfume. Strong odors offend the public nose; and nice, thoughtful gals don't use them. A sachet bag placed in the drawer of the hat imparts a pleasant scent to the hair and it is a grand idea to attach them to frock and coat hangers, to tuck them in glove and handkerchief boxes and among one's scarves and other accessories of dress.

LAMPMAN

A cairn in memory of the late Archibald Lampman will be unveiled on Saturday of this week at Morpeth, Lake Erie, where he was born in the year 1861. He died in 1899.

Lampman was probably the Canadian poet who has used the most coloring. He has been called the "Keats of Canada" for the beauty of his expression and his conceptions for both were worshippers at the shrine of beauty. His earliest references to his calling read like those of Keats. "Poetry has seized me and enveloped the whole field," says Lampman and Keats tells of fairy shapes dancing across his pages at school. They were born to sing. Both died young, Keats at twenty-five and Lampman at thirty-eight.

It must be remembered that Keats was born in an age of beauty while Lampman was born in a country where art has not yet reached the pinnacle and culture is not as general as it is in the older lands. Lampman did marvelous work though some of his verse is not marked by excellence. He did not reach the stature of John Keats, the modern efflorescence of the spirit of classic Greece.

Lampman was the poet of nature and its beauties, Keats was the poet of beauty material as well as intellectual.

Canadians should study their native poetry and that of Lampman should not be forgotten.

THE BRIDGE

City council would wish for no more definite report on the upper bridge than that presented by the firm of Gore, Nasmith and Storrie of Toronto after an examination by Mr. Gore last week. Coinciding with that of Highway Engineer Sedgwick, the report points to but one course—immediate action.

The Gore report appears even more pronounced as to the risk in the upper bridge. It would prevent immediately further use of the bridge for vehicular purposes and the use of the bridge by foot traffic during floodd season. Mr. Sedgwick in pointing out the menace, placed the limit at three tons, but Mr. Gore would allow no vehicles to cross.

The report brings to a decision the question of the bridge with a new angle thrown in—that the work should not be started with construction to be carried on in severe weather, this meaning interruption of vehicular traffic in all probability from now until next summer.

In securing this report council cleared the atmosphere as to condition of the bridge, of which now there can be no doubt. Their attitude towards the report is the next matter of great importance. Tonight's meeting of council will prove of interest to the public.

LEVEL CROSSINGS TO GO

Encouragement for municipalities in getting rid of level crossings was given those who hope for the removal of the Cemetery Crossing and Gibson's Crossing when Hon. G. S. Henry was entertained here the other evening in honour of the opening of the Point Anne highway. The Minister of Highways and Public Works made it clear that municipalities ought to take steps to remove at least one of the level crossings each year with government aid, provincial as well as federal. He pointed out that apportionment of the costs would throw but a light burden on the municipality. For instance a fifty thousand dollar subway would entail only $7,500 burden on the municipality. Other costs would be borne by the Governments and the railways concerned

Those who heard this took the matter to heart and action in the not distant future is looked for by which the level crossing at the cemeteries on the Trenton highway will be eliminated. Gibson's is another crossing that ought to go. Then there are others which are due for removal.

If the opening of the highway at Point Anne did no more than open a good road to the people's use and lay stress upon the need of preparing plans for the removal of level crossings as fast as feasible, it accomplished much.

SIDELIGHTS

THE ROVER

There are long ways untrodden
That wait by the farthest sea,
There are sands where the winds are never still,
And the waves weave melody.

And the far lands and strange lands
Are the ones with call most clear
To the man who waits with a roving heart
For their cry in his eager ear.

For never path went winding
Along Earth's utmost shores,
As far as the roving heart's desire,
As high as its longing soars.

And ocean and sky were mastered
By the conquering dreams of man
Ere ever a ship put out to sea,
Or a plane bridged heaven's span.

COPY OF WEEKLY CHRONICLE, dated July 31, 1885, has reached this desk and was perused with interest. Its leading articles refer to the return of the troops who took part in the Northwest Rebellion, the death of General Ulysses Grant, ex-President of the United States and hero of the Civil War as Commander-in-Chief of the Northern armies. Two editorial pages distinguish the Weekly Chronicle indicating that folks in those days were fonder of comment than they are today. The advertising patronage was large and among other business announcement of note appears an adv. for James St. Charles, manufacturer of fine Carriages, Phaetons, Buggies, Carts, etc. with a picture of buggies and cutters. It will be news to many, perhaps, that vehicles made in the Belleville factory of James St. Charles were shipped all over Canada, especially the type of bus used by hotels to transfer passengers from trains and boats to the hotel, in fact the St. Charles bus had a virtual monopoly of the trade. All kinds of delivery wagons were also made and are still made and St. Charles milk and bread wagons became a standard type all over the continent and still are, for that matter. James St. Charles travelled from coast to coast in the interest of the business and every year had an exhibit at Toronto Fair. Folks who have travelled in St. Charles busses in days gone by will remember the pictures which adorned each bus. These were done in oils by an artist and as a general rule were landscapes.

CUTTING IN, passing other cars on curves and hills, were denounced by Hon. Mr. Henry, Minister of Highways, in an address before Belleville Rotary Club, as the worst evils of careless driving. The minister indicated also in no uncertain tones that the government intended stamping out these evils if possible and convicted careless drivers would have their driving permits taken away.

MOTOR MADNESS is a fearsome thing and can be witnessed any day on any highway. The mad rushs to get some where or nowhere, the dangerous cutting in to get ahead of the traffic even when the traffic is doing fifty miles an hour is amazing in its utter insanity, rushing around curves when there wouldn't be a chance in the world of avoiding an accident if another car had to use the curve at the same time, passing on hills, and other crazy stunts. How come? What is it places the speed demon microbe in ordinarily sane people's blood so that they do these kind of crazy things with machines made almost perfect and comparatively fool proof if handled with sanity?

CHINAMAN VICTIM OF MOTOR CRASH

One Chinese is dead and five other Chinese are in hospital critically injured as the result of a motor crash on the Gananoque highway about two miles east of Kingston late Monday. The Chinese had been spending the day in Kingston and were on their way home to Brockville when the car in which they were riding collided with one driven by an American tourist, W. Ingram of Gouverneur, New York. Ingram was also critically injured.

The dead man's name is given as Lem. He was terribly hurt when the two cars crashed and was rushed to the Hospital.

PEACH TREE GREW IN FLOWER POT

To Mr. Harry Bryant goes the credit for the planting of the peach pit from which was grown the peach tree described in yesterday's columns regarding the harvest of peaches this year at the Simon home on Queen street.

Twenty-three years ago said Mr. Bryant, I had eaten a particularly nice peach and I thought I would see if the pit would grow and I planted it in a flower pot. After it grew, I set the plant outside on the south side of the house."

DEAD TOTAL 4000

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Sept. 8—Santo Domingo spent another period of horror in seeking out the bodies of Wednesday's hurricane dead and burying or incinerating those already recovered.

Troops stood sternly on guard over the food and medical supplies under masses of wood, stone and mortar for those who are swelling the great toll of dead.

When a body is found a pistol shot is sent into the air, and the shots are heard frequently. So far the death toll is estimated at 4,000, with a promise that the number will be increased when all are accounted for.

LIBERATION

ONE does not have to go back many years to reach the time when most of the water used in the house had to be carried from the spring or well, not always situated close to the house.

Even the introduction of the hand pump, which brought water to the kitchen, did not dispense with the backbreaking work of pumping and lifting heavy pails.

Woman's work on the farm, and indeed in the city, involved an enormous expenditure of strength and vitality. Among other tasks she was dependent on her own hands to do the family washing, a good deal of the milking, the filing and cleaning of lamps, ironing; taking care of the poultry (which meant also the poultry house), to say nothing of innumerable minor tasks, and at the same time had to rear, feed, clothe and otherwise provide for her children.

Today she is liberated from much of the drudgery of household tasks. The washing, ironing, lighting, cooking; and on the farm, milking, poultry work, dairy work, and the pumping of water, can now be done by electricity.

The electrical servant also relieves the man of the household from many tasks which he used to take as a matter of course.

The Northern Electric Company is pleased that in the manufacture of wires and cables, and in the distribution of many electrical household appliances, it has been able to assist in the liberation of woman from some of her work, that so frequently overtaxed her strength and endurance.

DO YOU KNOW

That as a result of experimental work carried out by the various agencies which had been enlisted, more than 250 practical, profitable and general uses for electrical current for farms have been developed, all of which are in everyday use?

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

... those people who sat in the box, all filled with their own thoughts and decided your life for you, out of scraps of things that attorneys let the witnesses say, and not all of it true..... Wearing widow's weeds ..... She, Cathie ... who was young, too young to wear anything but misses' things, less than a year ago.

FAITH SHAKEN

"All ready!" The deputy sheriff and a policewoman came to take her to court.

"Good luck, and don't you get nervous now!" Mrs. Evans, the matron waved her a cheerful goodbye.

"They'll wave me happy goodbyes when they take me to the gallows to hang me!" Cathie thought cynically. She didn't believe in anyone but Ma and Gordon any more, and they would not let her see Gordon. Gordon was to be kept away ..... he was to be a cool, well, wishing, devoted, but not too devoted friend; ... ...

So the only person in the world except Ma who loved her unselfishly, must be denied her.

"Come, don't drag back, please, Mrs. Farnsworth," the policewoman said sharply.

Cathie picked up her heavy feet faster, she let them lead her into the courtroom. It was full of people. There were people out in the halls, too, whom policemen were sending away. So many people who really don't care what happens to you, like to watch you while your fate hangs in the balance, dipping first this way, then that way ... until the trial is over, then hurrying home to their safe homes, their husbands, their babies, their loving lighted lives.....

"Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth!" CURIOUS EYES

Cathie did even on her. Hundreds of eyes. Curious, morbid eyes. She made a supreme effort. Got up and walked without stumbling to the witness stand. And then, while the room swayed, and dipped and whirled all around her, she took the oath, and seated herself on the stand and he'd have to be hurt enough later.... Nice he could save himself for that.... You can only stand so much. .... That was what was the matter with her. She'd stood all she could. She couldn't stand any more. That was why she was failing poor Mr. Allan now. She ought to try to make her story sound more plausible, but it was too old. she had told it too many times. It no longer sounded real, even to herself.

DUTIFUL WIFE

"And why did you go to your husband's room, after you had decided that she also was only a tramp?" Mr. Allan got out, after you had gone to bed, and tried to sleep?" he was asking.

The answer to that one was that she was worried about her husband —it would show her a dutiful wife, she opened her mouth to begin the little prepared speech....but what was the use? Besides it wasn't quite true.....

She said, "Because I was frightened."

"You were frightened for your husband's health?"

Mr. Allan was prompting her, but she couldn't help it. Then I was frightened——of the dark—of the house, everything!"

That made quite a little sensation. People looking at her! Fancy, a grown woman being frightened of the dark. Well, let them then, they'd already thought worse of her than that.....

She told again of going into the room in the moonlight and finding her husband dead. She thought while she was telling it "This sounds like a lie but it's the truth. Chester's lie sound a lot more convincing than my truth. It's all very mixed up ....one shouldn't blame the judge and the jury .... LINGERIE SHOWN

After the district attorney began flinging questions she did not have time to think. One thing he answers back, fast; excited by his fast questions They didn't always fit, and they sound ed rather foolish. even to her. Well she didn't care now.... she'd given up.

Only once did the district attorney make her care.... That was when he showed her the blue, pleated night dress and negligee that she took off in Maguerite's room and Marguerite had hidden away.

"These garments are stained with your husband's blood?"

"Yes—"

"They are your garments, yes, or in part they are your own?"

"Yes—they are mine. I've already explained why I took them off!" But she shrank back.... she didn't want to look at them.... and one woman in the jury nudged her neighbors.....

"You see?"

KNEES WEAK

"Yours! You do not deny them. You do not deny that they are stained with your husband's blood?"

"No, that's true, only I——"

"That will be all, thank you."

Somebody helped Cathie from the witness stand. "Im all right," she said. She wasn't the least bit nervous. Her knees wouldn't hold her, up, that was all. They bent. If Mr. Allan and the policewoman hadn't held her up she would have gone down.

"Isn't it queer," she told the policewoman, whose name was Mrs. Brophy, and looked like Lillian Hennessy, only older and not quite so.... so soft.... "I never had rheumatism before. It must be damp in jail."

The woman smiled, "Nonsense, my dear, "it's just nerves."

"I'm not the least bit nervous," Cathie repeated indignantly. She said to her mother, "It IS rheumatism!"

"Hush, darlin'. You're all wrought up. Don't worry, darlin' ....hush .... the judge...."

Cathie looked up. The closing argument were over. Mr. Allan had said his last word for her. The judge was giving instructions to the jury. Cathie leaned forward....She wanted to hear what he said. But she saw Mr. Allan's back ..... his very eloquent back..... and she forgot to hear what the judge was saying.

HOT ANGRY

When the jury had filed out and the judge had left the room, and most of the spectators, too, Cathie wanted to talk to Mr. Allan. She reached over and touched him.

"I'm sorry," she said gently. "I know I was a disappointment to you."

He didn't seem angry with her. He reached down and took her cold hands in his. "You've been very brave," he said. "And now you must be brave just a little while longer."

"I'm glad its over," Cathie said. "It's been so long .....so long."

"Will the jury be very long?" Ma asked.

Mr. Allan didn't know. "It might be a hung jury. I rather expect that," he said compassionately.

"And have all this over?"

"Well ,we must be prepared for anything."

Cathie looked at him sharply. "He wants it to be a hung jury," she thought intuitively....."Oh, why does he dislike me so? I COULDN'T go through it again"

They sat .....hour, or minutes, Cathie didn't know. She was thinking about Mr. Allan, still. It was too bad to disappoint him the way she had. He had counted on her to make a great impression....to sway the jury....She hadn't.

SILLY CRYING

The tears welled in her eyes. She blinked them impatiently. Of all the silles, crying because Mr. Allan was disappointed! After all it didn't matter much to him, he'd be paid anyway. It was her fate that hung in the balance .... Her neck.....her neck.....

She began to laugh, hysterically. To think about Mr. Allan's case, when soon she'd be meeting God, and Ma and Gordon would have to suffer.....

"Shh!" The policewoman quieted, her sternly. "The jury are going to take a recess for lunch."

"They won't decided until after lunch?"

"No. You can come with me and have lunch, too."

"They won't decide whether to hing me or not until after lunch. ...and I can come and have some lunch, too! ...ooh, it's so funny....so funny.... I can't help but laugh!"

One fainted out of the almost deserted courtroom. Catherine Farnsworth, who used to be Catherine Paige, laughing and crying, on her way to lunch.

The jury were coming brck.

"Tricky 'B.O.'. It fooled me all right.

"Yet, I perspired. But in a healthy, normal way. I didn't notice any unpleasantness.

Her Backache Trouble Quickly Disappeared

Ontario Lady Tells of Benefits Derived From Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. W. H. Garretson Now Sleeps Well and Feels Fine

Ridgeway, Ont., Sept. 8 (Special) "I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for pains in my back and kidney trouble" writes Mrs. W. H. Garretson, who is 71 years old and a respected resident of this place. "They certainly are a wonderful medicine. My backache is entirely gone. I can rest good at nights and always feel fine. I keep a box in the house at all times. They are a fine remedy for kidney trouble."

Dodd's Kidney Pills hold their popularity not because of the promises they make, but because of the good they do.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys so they can do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

Pure blood coursing through the body carries to the different organs the nourishment they need to keep them sound and healthy.

BANK, 2 HOTELS, CHURCH, STATION 20 HOUSES BURN

Village of Herbertville Station is Almost Wiped Out

$200,000 FIRE LOSS

Chicoutimi, Que., Sept. 9 (CP) — Fire early this morning practically destroyed the small village of Herbertville Station in the Lake St. John district.

The church, the railroad station, the branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, two hotels and about twenty dwellings, were burned to the ground.

The loss estimated more than $200,000 partly covered by insurance. Fanned by a high wind the fire, the origin of which is unknown, swept the village in about four hours. The fire fighters were handicapped with only one supply of water. The fire spread so rapidly that the fleeing families were unable to save any of their belongings, not having time to leave the burning houses with their lives.

City Firemen to Step Gay Measures

Shades of a departed past! That grand old fabled institution of history, the Firemen's Ball, will be introduced in Belleville in the early autumn of the year of this 1930. For the first time in Belleville's history the firemen are going to give a ball. On November 3rd next it is planned to have one of the biggest parties that was ever held in the city. Preparations are to be the place and King Joy and all his courtiers will be on hand. Already the firemen have begun their time about and those who are to be off duty on that night are jubilant, while those who have to stay at their posts will do so cheerfully, and gaily.

The idea of the ball is to raise funds in order that the convention of the Firefighter's Association of Ontario may be held in this city in the year 1932. The firemen have promised that many prizes will be given away at the ball.

PARLIAMENT GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 9 (CP) — Parliament will get down to the serious business of the second day after the formal opening ceremonies of yesterday. The display, pomp and color of yesterday will be replaced by earnest efforts to deal with unemployment. It is possible that the government may introduce its tariff measures before adjournment tonight.

Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition, will lead off the debate this afternoon on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

CARPET MILL FIRE TRAPS THREE MEN

Palleron, N.J., Sept. 9—At least three persons were reported trapped today in the burning Lamond Robertson Carpet Mill here.

Eighty-five were employed. Two others were seriously burned and one fireman was injured.

Spontaneous combustion is believed to have started the fire in a pile of waste. Hysteria among the huge crowd of spectators became pronounced as the walls of the building began to wobble. Firemen were restrained from entering the inferno by superiors.

SUGGESTIONS MADE TO HELP WORKLESS

Toronto, Sept. 9—Six recommendations, suggested by the Unemployment Council of Canada, were put forward for consideration by H. C. Hudson, president of the International Association of Employment Services, at the 38th annual convention of the Association, now being held here. The recommendations are mainly concerned with the provision of work for the jobless by the co-operation of private companies and Federal and Provincial governments.

MOTOR HIT TROLLEY HEAD-ON, ONE DIES

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 9.—CP—One Canadian was fatally injured, another probably fatally injured and a third seriously hurt, here today when the automobile in which they were driving collided head-on with a trolley car.

The dead were Cecil Little, 30, Merriton, Ont., Joseph Russell, 34, Niagara Falls, Ont., who expected to live. The third man, Larry Ness, 30, Stamford, Ont.

RADIANT YOUTH

Louise Peple Armstrong

"You don't think this chiffon too youthful for me?"

Mildred Ramsay looked up wearily from the sewing machine. "No indeed Miss Lou. Just your color. It'll be lovely."

"It is becoming," Miss Lou Walters surveyed herself approvingly in the cheval glass. "I'm going tonight on the moonlight excursion with Mr. William Martin, Mildred," she said blushing.

The girl's face lit in sudden animation. "Isn't anything too, Miss Lou. With Tom Burroughs....it Mother's well enough to be left. Tom works in Glemon's Garage, you know. They've offered to make him partner if he can borrow five hundred dollars."

"Yes, he's mechanic there," Miss Lou dismissed Tom and his future at Stenson's with a gesture. "But don't you think Mr. Martin's striking-looking, Mildred? So well informed, too. But then he's traveled and held executive positions in Boston and New York." Miss Lou's faded gray eyes were dreamy, her work-worn fingers faltered over the folds of the sheer frock. "He's interesting, she'll find. Last week, before I took that trip to Richmond he suggested....but there I'm not to mention that! Merely a matter of business, Mildred."

"Doesn't Mr. Harford look after your investments, Miss Lou?"

Miss Lou sniffed. "Harford's old fashioned in his ideas of finance even if he is president of the bank. He's so conservative that since the short time he's been engaged there. Oh, Mildred, there's the blue satin slip in them. I'd almost forgot. Couldn't you stay a while longer this evening, and....."

Mildred caught her breath, glanced nervously at the cot on the dim, living-room wall. "I suppose I could," she said.

Having put the last stitches in the satin slip, the girl pressed it while Miss Lou rested. Her thin face flushed with the hot ironing-board, she was dizzy with fatigue. If she could get home now, put on her rose voile, snatch a bite to eat....

"I'm ready, Mildred, too short and hopelessly out of style. Tonight the kindly darkness would make it passable. She'd wear it. Would be happy wearing it on the moonlight as Miss Lou would be in her cerulean frock. silk hose and rhinestone slippers.

The snake-skin slipper held a charm for Mildred which almost annointed to an obsession. Miss Lou had bought them in Richmond. "The latest thing in footwear." Hanging up the new frock in the spacious closet, she gazed with longing to peep into the green card-board box where she knew they reposed.

Mechanically she lifted the lid, stifled an exclamation and shut it quickly, as Miss Lou entered the room.

"I don't know what you're thinking of me," Mildred faltered.

"Only that you're a brave, noble friend," Miss Lou said quietly.

They were sewing that day for the Orphanage, but somehow the work did not go so well. Miss Lou was silent and abstracted. Early in the afternoon she closed her work-basket abruptly and went into her bed-room. In a few moments she returned with a package.

"I want you to go home early today, Mildred, pretty up for your ouing man." She handed the package to the surprised girl. "The flowered chiffon....really too youthful for one of my years. You make wear it. And the snake-skin slippers too, since you're such a hankering for them," she added with a smile. "You must really wear them tonight. I'm dismissing you early as I've some matters to arrange with Mr. Harford at the bank. My investments will have to be....rearranged." She flushed a little. "And I'm going to put about five hundred dollars into Jamison's Garage. When I do, I'll suggest a change in the management: there ought to be young Tom Burroughs is quite popular with the trade."

Mildred stood very still, holding the dress gingerly in her arms. There were tears in her eyes. "I don't know how to thank you, Miss Lou!" she finally blurted out.

Miss Lou patted her affectionately. "Don't try."

From the window she watched the radiant girl hurry down the street toward her humble home. "There goes Youth....to meet Love," Miss Lou Walters sighed wistfully.

"I won't be able to do any sewing today," she said dully, "I've had a terrible misfortune. Thieves broke in last night....."

"Oh, but I must tell you, before you say another word...."

"The police have been here." Miss Lou ignored the girl's insistence, "and the gem-dealer....If I'd missed anything I told them...nothing! After Mr. Martin was suddenly called to New York, I realized....and I couldn't bear for them to know....."

From beneath the cape she wore, Mildred pulled a green card-board box into Miss Lou's hands. "Not....your snake-skin slipper, Miss Lou. You said you'd wear your patent-leathers last night....and I borrowed them. I was going on the excursion, and I hadn't any good shoes to wear. Only mother was sick, and I couldn't go after all....so I've never even opened the box."

Miss Lou caught her breath in, eyeing the card-slip. Her hand's hatching the box trembled. She walked over to her old secretary, in the corner as though in a daze, and locked the box away carefully in the top drawer. When she turned back to the girl her face was very hard, her cheeks very pink, and she held her head, with its faint tinge of grey, very high indeed.

"I....don't know what you're thinking of me," Mildred faltered.

"Only that you're a brave, noble friend," Miss Lou said quietly.

CONCRETE BRIDGE WILL BE CONSTRUCTED THIS AUTUMN

REPLACE UPPER BRIDGE DURING FALL WITH REINFORCED CONCRETE

NEW TENDERS CALLED FOR AT ONCE

Bridge Discussion Absorbs Attention of City Council

HOW VOTE STOOD

Intention to Have Bridge Built in Next Few Months

A new concrete bridge along the same line of architecture as the present new bridge over the lower Moira River will replace the present upper bridge and be completed this year according to a recommendation passed by the City Council last night at which date the council will again sit excepting Aldermen Pinkston and Walker. Tenders will be called at once and opened on September 17th at which date the council will again meet to consider the tenders received. New tenders were necessary according to Mr. Archie B. Crosbeck, consulting engineer, as probably the bridge will not be completed before the heavy frost sets in and it will be necessary for the contractors to bring up their original tender price to meet the requirements of the engineer.

EXPECT RAPID WORK ON NEW UPPER BRIDGE

Work on the new lower bridge took about three months when the contractor got fairly started on the job. With that he was held back for some time by unusual dewatering conditions about the east side abutment.

The rapidity of the work on the lows rbridge leads the city engineer to believe that the construction of the new upper bridge can for various reasons be completed even more expeditiously so that the structure will be completed before the severest weather sets in.

Hospital Accounts Coming in Well, According to Statement

An invitation will be sent from the city council to the Canadian Clubbers Association to hold their show in Belleville next August. The invitation will be forwarded to Cobb, the home of the secretary, through a request received from those interested in Gladioli in this city and members of the Parks Board. This is one of the largest flower shows, excepting the annual rose show, held in this Province and would be interesting to the layman and also provide incentive to others to culture this beautiful flower.

Light Highland Ave.

The chairman of light, Ald. Harold Armstrong, laid on the table a recommendation to place a number of lights, about the city and also to purchase from the Hydro 25 new lights of the style, that will eventually be used all over the city, to be placed on West Bridge St. and Highland Avenue. This recommendation carried without dissent.

No Case Infantile Paralysis in City

Dr. G. Samuel Cronk, local Medical Officer of Health flatly denied rumors that a case of Infantile paralysis has developed in Belleville. Dr. Cronk stated that one case had been reported to him but a subsequent probe revealed that the youngster died of intestinal influenza and there were no indications of infantile paralysis. The M. O. H. has discovered that should there be the slightest indication of an outbreak here, the public will be immediately notified through the press.

He added that the latest report indicates little improvement in the condition of the city water and advises all housewives to boil it before used particularly for drinking purposes. The fountain in front of the Belle Theatre which it is feared may lead to contamination, has been closed by Dr. Cronk. There is, however a variety of contagious diseases in the city.

Business Revival is Babson's Prediction

More Advertising, Circulation of Money Will Be Factors

NO 1931 FORECAST

Over-Production Talk Was Largely Hysterical, He Says

Wellesley Hills, Mass., Sept. 11—Prediction that the current business depression may be relieved this Fall was made here by Roger W. Babson, famed statistician in an address at the 17th National Business Conference.

"With the haughty spirit prevailing a year ago," Babson said, "a decline was inevitable, but with the humble spirit existing today, a turn for the better is sure to come.

"Under the existing circumstances it is very possible that there may soon be a stampede of orders and congestion of freight in certain lines and sections."

Babson said he would make no forecasts as to 1931, but added he was "certainly optimistic" regarding this Fall.

"It is just as evident today that business is now bound to improve as it was evident a year ago that the high rate of early 1929 could not be kept up," he explained.

Talk about over-production, Babson declared, was "largely hysterical." The real solution of the problem, he said lay in speeding up the circulation of money. To accomplish this, Babson made the following suggestions to industry:

1—Reduce overhead.
2—Give better measure.
3—Increase research work.
4—Advertise more.

Three Cars Damaged in Crash Accident Occurs on Bleecker Ave.

City Traffic Officer Bert Frink investigated an accident involving three cars at the corner of Station street and Bleecker avenue last night shortly after seven o'clock but no charges have been laid as yet. Jack Johnston, 11 Charlotte street, was proceeding east on Station street in his car, when he struck the left front fender of a car owned by Gordon Wright, 178 Dundas street east and then ran into the rear of a car owned by Ray Hamilton, 237 Station street, breaking the bumperette slightly and bending the tire carrier.

The traffic officer stated it appeared that Wright was somewhat over the centre of the pavement and Hamilton had his car parked less than 20 feet from the corner of Bleecker avenue on Station street and it is alleged there were no parking lights lit. Johnston failed to produce a driver's permit and after testing the brakes on the car, the officer found it took 35 paces to stop the car going at 20 miles per hour. The damage to all three cars was slight.

ANCIENT MERCER HAD EARLY FIRE

Hundred and Sixty Prisoners Cheer Firemen Who Conquer Blaze

Toronto, Sept. 11.—All inmates of the Mercer Reformatory on King Street West were released from their rooms and marshalled to fire escapes and porches early this morning, when a fire started in the laundry located in the basement of the institution.

Responding to a second alarm, firemen had the flames subdued in fifteen minutes and inmates were recalled without confusion.

According to Miss Jane Milne, superintendent, the prisoners behaved well. They carried out the fire drill with coolness and when the roll call was taken none was missing.

Property loss will be small, according to the superintendent.

Excitement drew large crowds from the Parkdale district when word flew about swiftly that the old building was on fire.

Started in Motor

The blaze is believed to have started from a defective motor in the drying room of the long, two-storey brick building which is in the rear of the old penitentiary. It was brought under control by firemen under Deputy Chief Duncan McLean and Platoon Chief Charles Fox, who arrived in response to the call.

Sir Robert Borden Declares Armaments Have Proven Oppressive

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—CP—Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, went before the Assembly of the League of Nations today to propound his scheme for a federation of European nations in the interests of economic and political co-operation and maintainence of peace. A packed house was present to hear him.

His address propounding the plan was listened to by delegates from fifty-one nations in the world. The French Minister argued the necessity of some closer federal bond between the states of the old continent but he left it to the nations themselves to establish its definite form. He asserted emphatically that no national or international body would find the proposal inimical. Armaments Oppressive

Sir Robert Borden, first delegate of Canada, addressed the assembly just prior to M. Briand. He praised the "wonderful concrete results" of the league operations during the first ten years of life and declared that world armaments were oppressive.

This afternoon, Arthur Henderson, British Foreign Secretary, will take the rostrum in response to M. Briand.

Kills Bear Without Rifle After Fist Fight with Beast

Quebec, Sept. 11.—Gerard Fournier of Ste. Perpetue, in L'Islet, killed a bear after a fist-fight with the animal in the woods near his home. Fournier, who had gone hunting with some friends, left his companions on after some deer, while he picked berries.

While stooping down to pick blueberries, Fournier heard a noise and saw a bear coming toward him at full speed. Grabbing the rifle which he had laid down to pick the berries, Fournier took aim, but the bear, standing erect on its hind paws, knocked the rifle out of his grasp, leaving him unarmed.

The bear had only one fore-paw, having apparently lost the other in a trap, and after knocking the gun out of Fournier's hands, prevented the hunter from regaining his weapon.

Fournier struck the bear a violent blow on the snout, and then followed it up with another blow, these causing the animal to back up, and giving the man an opportunity to pick up his rifle and fire point-blank at the beast.

The Hunter's complacency, hearing the shot, hastened to where they had left him, and found the bear dead, with Fournier standing over it.

FACTORY SOLD

A deal which has been pending for some time closed when the Associated Quality Canners purchased the new factory of The Eastern Canners at Deseronto. The latter, a splendid new building, just erected this spring, is sixty by one hundred and twenty feet and is situated on the waterfront on the old gas plant property. It was built by Mr. William Scales who prior to its erection was manager of the Associated Quality's plant after it's purchase from E. C. Metcalfe. The two plants will be kept running, and in the meantime Mr. Scales will look after the factory he has sold to the Association, says Deseronto Post.

DUCK HUNTING

The duck season opens on Monday and it would be well for the hunters to remember several important matters commenta the Deseronto Post. The bag limit this year is fifteen ducks to each hunter per day. No wood duck must be shot or taken in any way. There is a close season for plover of any kind, but jack or Wilson's snipe may be taken. The law in regard to moniker, sunken punts, shooting before sunrise or after sunset, holds good the same as last year.

TWO MINOR FIRES

The fire department was called out last night to extinguish two minor blazes and the members met with little trouble at either of them. Someone reported that a fire was smouldering in the trunk of a tree in front of Bridge Street Church. The department was soon on the scene and the fire was extinguished with ease. One hour later the fire laddies answered a call to the corner of Main and Colborne streets where smoke was issuing from an empty house. An investigation revealed that flames were coming from a drum of oil in one of the rooms. A quantity of refuse was also commencing to burn. Little or no damage resulted.

SPLENDID CATCH

Splendid reports have reached the city of results obtained by fishermen in North Hastings this month. Jesse Barlow, George street, and his son Evan a member of the Ontario Intelligencer staff, were fishing at Eagleneat Lake on Monday of this week when they hooked twenty-one bass, which is not considered a bad day's catch. "Wally" Embury and Ralph Bailey were members of the party. Mr. and Mrs. Embury were guests at the Barlow camp for some days. This is but one instance of the splendid luck enjoyed by disciples of Izaak Walton in the waters of Hastings County.

VISITS IN WEST.

George N. Symons, local real estate agent, has left for North Battleford, Sask. Mr. Symons has gone West to look after his extensive farm interests in the Manitoba district.

SMALL MARKET.

Today's market was small. There appeared to be little interest evidenced in the produce offered and the majority of farmers returned home with little of their offering sold. Tomatoes were selling at seventy-five cents a bushel, while corn still held at fifteen cents a dozen. Pumpkins made their bow in larger numbers today, selling for ten and twenty cents each. There were quite small, however. Red peppers were forty cents a dozen and green peppers fifteen cents the dozen. Squash were offered at twenty cents a piece and onions at sixty cents and one dollar and a quarter a peck.

CHEESEMAKERS GATHERED.

Cheesemakers and patrons of the Belleville district gathered in the offices of J. L. Irwin, dairy produce expert, last night, for an informal meeting. Local business conditions were discussed and an address was made by Mr. Irwin and Mr. Brown, also a cheese grader in this district.

1819 PAID ENTRANCE

The official attendance figures at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Tuesday show that 1,819 people paid to get into the grounds. As Tuesday of last year was listed as "free," it is not possible to compare the figures on the corresponding days of the two years, but the officials appear to be satisfied with the showing.

Vivid Tale of Sir John's Burial Credited With Starting Search

Edmonton, Sept. 11—After 80 years the search for Franklin is still unlocking the secrets of the North Country. Seeking to dispel the last shreds of mystery from the greatest of Arctic tragedies, Major L. T. Burwash has surveyed 3,000 miles of coastline by air photography, charted many unknown islands, and mapped reefs which have been a peril to navigators since before Franklin set out to find that geographers' puzzle—the northwest passage.

Franklin, in death, accomplished all his objectives. Expeditions searching for him mapped practically all the Canadian Arctic Archipelago. In 12 years 39 different expeditions combed the whole Arctic coast from Atlantic to Pacific. And 50 years later the same search has added valuable information to the long list directly resulting from Franklin's fate.

Thursday night as a rule brings the Fleischmann hour featuring Rudy Vallee, don't be alarmed to-night is no exception Rudy will be on the air as usual No featured artists are announced but nevertheless they will likely be there. For last week's star of the night was the guest artist and to-night some thing of the same sort will likely be presented. WEAF at 7 EST.

Jack Frost's Melody Moments at 8.30 EST topped and heard over WEAF also. Later from WEAF at 10 EST a rather unique program called the Latin-American Music concert and features Ed. D.B., Navy Band, Marguerita Cueta, Mexican soprano, Carlina Gutierrez, pianist, Argentine Trio, Birley Gardner, cornet, and Louis Gouther vibraphone. I'd say it was going to be a mighty fine program.

Uncle Abe and David of course at 10.15 EST from WEAF as a climax to WEAF's programs. WJZ presents B. A. Rolfe and h's Lucky Strikers at 7 and 8 the Knox Dunlop orchestra. Guy Lombardo at 10.30 EST from WABC tonight. Don't forget.

Mrs. W. H. Garretson, New sheps Well and Tells Plea

Ridgeway, Ont., Sept. 8 (Special) "I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for years in my back and kidney trouble" writes Mrs. W. H. Garretson, who is 71 years old and a respected resident of this place. "They certainly are a wonderful medicine. My backache is entirely gone. I can rest good at nights and always feel fine. I keep a box in the house at all times. They are a fine remedy for kidney trouble."

Dodd's Kidney Pills hold their popularity not because of the promises they make, but because of the good they do.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a Kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys so they can do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Dolan the Druggist and leading drug stores sell lots of it.

BAR ASIATICS

Ottawa, Sept. 11—The complete prohibition of all Asiatic immigration into Canada except from those countries with which the Dominion has a special treaty, agreement or convention regulating immigration is decreed in an order-in-council passed on August 14, and tabled in the House of Commons here today by Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration.

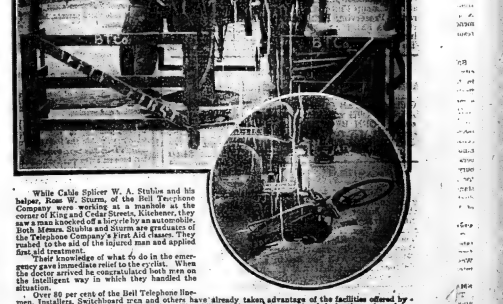
Almost as Good

Fred King found that he couldn't get home for his holidays this year. His mother was terribly disappointed. But Fred has made amends—he calls his mother by long distance every Sunday evening. His mother declares the weekly talk is the next best thing to a visit. And, of course, it's much less expensive

The way to get the best of an argument is not to talk any part in it.

A Cracelens Messenger

Over 5,000,000 times a day residents of Ontario and Quebec turn to the telephone. More than 70,000 daily calls are for out-of-town friends. These people have learned the wisdom of letting their telephone "go there and back" for them.



Millions to Call

There are over 900,000 telephones in Quebec and Ontario alone. This means that literally millions of persons in these provinces are at the other end of the telephone line. What a mighty group of neighbors! Over 70,000 times a day they place calls for friends in other towns.

DREDGE AT WORK

The dredge is at Telegraph Light, where it will widen the channel. The work which began last week is now well under way, says Deseronto Post.

A Public Benefit

While Cable Splicer W. A. Stubbs and his helper, Ross W. Sturm, of the Bell Telephone Company were working at a manhole at the corner of King and Cedar Streets, Kitchener, they saw a man knocked off a bicycle by an automobile, Both Messrs. Stubbs and Sturm are graduates of the Telephone Company's First Aid classes. They rushed to the aid of the injured man and applied first aid treatment.

Their knowledge of what to do in the emergency gave immediate relief to the cyclist. When the doctor arrived he complimented both men on the intelligent way in which they handled the situation.

Over 80 per cent of the Bell Telephone linemen, Installers, Switchboard men and others have already taken advantage of the facilities offered by the Company to secure a first aid training. The ability of these men to render help in time of need is every day proving a boon not only to their fellow workers but to the public whom the Company serves.

New Roadway Opened West of Rednersville

Seventeen Miles Total of Permanent Building in 1930

COUNTY'S RECORD

Ceremonies Held to Mark Modernization of Road System

Official ceremonies for the inauguration of the new cement highway joining Rednersville and Carrying Place took a unique form when a fowl supper was held at Albury United Church last evening. The event was well attended, residents of Prince Edward coming for many miles to take part in the affair. The ladies served a sumptuous supper in the basement which was followed by a short program in the auditorium.

Rev. G. R. Ross, pastor of Albury Church, acted as chairman and first paid his tribute to those who worked tirelessly for the accomplishment of the new highway system. Mr. Ross said that the road was appreciated by those residing along the northern fringe of the County.

Reg. Brockhurst's Serenaders rendered a number of popular selections during the course of the evening. Earl Bonter, chairman of the County Roads Committee and Reeve of the Township of Ameliasburg, was commended on the part that he played in having the new road built.

Mr. Bonter submitted that there is but one side of the Bettermint-Carrying Place road to be completed, when seventeen miles of permanent road will have been built in the county this year. "This is more than in any year in the county's history," Mr. Bonter said.

Mr. Austin Fellows, District Engineer of the Department of Highways, congratulated County Road Chairman Bonter as well as Warden Kinnear on the completion of the new road. "Mr. Cullmer has worked with the Department of Highways on this problem and I would ask you to give credit where it is due, to the local representative and to the Township and County Road Committees."

J. R. Dunkerly, County Road Supt., emphasized that co-operation is the key to success in any community. "This road has been built through the united efforts of all, and I only hope that such co-operation will manifest in the future as it has been in the past."

The new road is a credit to the Township of Ameliasburg," said Donald Breen, Reeve of Bloomfield, who paid particular tribute to Mr. Bonter's work.

Jas. Monahan, Reeve of Wellington noted that he was a member of the first County Road Committee when the system was started. "I advocate the building of permanent top roads which are always a great improvement and provide for travel for years to come."

Mr. Dulmage, Reeve of South Marysburgh, said the highway is a credit to the Township.

"You may feel proud of the new road," said John Hubbs. "The cement road appeals to me. This one is somewhat narrow but it may be widened if occasion demands."

Horace Cullmer, M.P.P., said the completion of the road is the culmination of a splendid achievement. "You have a great farming area here and good roads are needed. The by law for fourteen miles of road in one Township required a great deal of manoeuvring and after it was finally passed, the Ontario Government was not slow to confirm it. Mr. Bonter, your present Reeve, and Mr. Montgomery, the former one, were both so greatly interested in this road." He eulogized Mr. Fellows of the Dept. for the fine co-operation. "The plea sure and commercial licenses are increasing every year, and we must build our highways to take care of the increasing traffic.

"More money must be spent in the upkeep of the system. Prince Edward County enjoys a remarkably low tax rate in comparison to adjoining counties. The Council has given you competences and good highway system at the lowest possible rate," he declared.

The meeting closed with another selection from the orchestra and a word from Rev. Mr. Ross.

TRENTON MAIN STREET EN FETE

Occasion of Rotary Club's One-Night Carnival Program

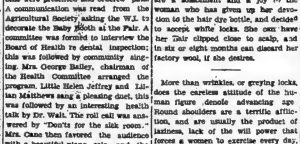
Trenton's main street last night was in fear as the Rotary Club of that town presented its annual one-night Carnival. The main section of Dundas street was roped off and booths, built by various merchants, were erected. From eight o'clock in the evening until the early morning hours Dundas street was crowded. Street dancing, games of chance, clowns 'n everything were among those present and King Revelry held sway.

An added attraction last night was the presence of Jack Guest, winner of the Diamond Sculls this year and popular Toronto athlete. Jack proved to be just as popular in Trenton as he is in Toronto and received a rousing ovation from the hundreds that attended the Carnival.

The Rotary Club of Trenton reported today that it had had one of the most successful Carnivals in its history. A good-sized sum of money was taken in, which will be used for charitable purposes. A number from Belleville attended the affair.

PREPARATIONS FOR KIWANIS KARNIVAL

The sound of hammer and saw with lumber being moulded into booth reminded those passing the Armouries last night that another Kiwanis Carnival was in the making. Members of the club started on the first night and when the doors are opened on Monday night next, they will see the Armouries in a new dress and with fun and amusement for both old and young. The club has spared no expense this year to make the Karnival better than the proceeding ones. Novel entertainers including many of the stars of Pantaki's Merrymakers will be seen while the mannequins for the Style Show will be brought from out of the city. The games will all be new excepting bingo, the ever popular pastime while the features of the entertainment will be personages in the sporting and athletic world. It is the peoples Karnival, the money derived going to help the underprivileged boy and girl and all are expected to do their share.



GLOOMY DEAN OFFERS TWO TYPES MARRIAGE

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Reception of two forms of marriage — "Limited Contract", under state laws, and lifelong, under the blessing of churches—is advocated by the Very Rev. W. R. Inge, the "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's Cathedral in a book to be published today.

Dean Inge proposes that the first sort of marriage should be for persons who do not recognise lifelong vows of fidelity, and should be entered into under state laws.

The second form, in which the contracting parties would take life-time vows, would be recognized by the church.

A Happy Quartette at Empire Games

It was a great day at Hamilton, Ont., when the British Empire Games were opened; a day of sunshine and smiles, as is shown by the above picture of four distinguished Canadian citizens in the vice-regal box. Whatever the smile is born of, it is unanimous. Left to right: E. W. Beatty Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway; His Excellency Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada; Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of the Dominion; and Hon. J. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario.

Women's Institutes

The September meeting of the local Women's Institute was held on Thursday, Sept. 4th in the Community with a fair attendance. After the opening Ode and the Lord's prayer, several bills were presented and ordered paid. A communication was read from the Agricultural Society asking the W.I. to decorate the Baby Booth at the Fair. A committee was formed to interview the Board of Health re dental inspection; this was followed by community singing led by Mrs. George Bailey, chairman of the Health Committee arranged the program. Little Helen Jeffrey and Lillian Matthews sang a pleasing duet, this followed by an interesting health talk by Dr. Wait. The roll call was answered by "Don'ts for the silk room." Mrs. Cass then favored the audience with a beautiful piano solo, and the president completed the program with a splendid paper on "Canadiana." The hostesses, Mesdames Corrigal, Spry, Meiklejohn and Tulloch then served a dainty lunch which was heartily enjoyed.

BEAUTY BOX

Bobbed wigs are so cleverly made these days that even the trained eye can detect fact that they are counterfeit. They are a nuisancment and a joy to the woman who has given up her devotion to the hair dye bottle, and decided to accept white locks. She can have her hair clipped close to scalp, and in six or eight months can discard her factory wool, if she desires.

More than wrinkles, or greying locks, does the cautious attitude of the human figure denote advancing age. Round shoulders are a terrific affliction, and are usually the product of laziness, lack of the will power that forces a women to exercise every day, even though the exercise is nothing more than a brisk walk.

NO BRIDGE AID

Hamilton, Sept. 9—Depressing news was received at the city hall over the week end. Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, notified the Board of control that the federal government would not financially assist the city in the construction of bridges over Desjardins Canal.

School plants of New York City have doubled in cost since 1922.

A cure to his parents. Hard to manage. Not inclined to submit to discipline Some wise person suggested that his eyes might have something to do with it. An examination proved this true His defective vision was corrected. He became obedient, and started toward a successful manhood.

Premier Says Canada Faces Condition Not a Theory

RELIEF MEASURE

Charges Aired By Hon. Peter Heenan Over Voting Tactics

Ottawa, Sept. 11—Work within three weeks for between 25,000 and 30,000 unemployed and sustenance for twice that many dependents will be provided, Premier R. B. Bennett believes, by the $20,000,000 relief resolution which he introduced today in the House of Commons.

Declaring that the Government proposed "work, not charity," for the unemployed, the Premier informed the House that the $20,000,000 would do.

It would be used he said, to complete the trans-Canada highway, to cover snow coats in the construction of federal, provincial and municipal public works, and possibly of railway branch-line construction and for any necessary assistance to the marketing of fibre products of land, forest, sea and mine.

Canada, the Premier said, was faced with a condition, not a theory, and this was the time for action, not for discussion of the causes of unemployment. He characterized the relief resolution as a palliative measure, designed to meet promptly an acute situation. It would be supplemented by two steps intended as permanent solutions—the anti-dumping amendments to the Customs Act and the forecast tariff revision.

In administering the fund, Mr. Bennett explained, the Government proposed to adhere, strictly to the lines laid down by the recent meeting here of the Non-partisan Employment Service Council of Canada. As far as municipalities were concerned, their request would be handled through their respective provincial governments with which the federal authorities then would deal.

Thousands Not Compiled

Charges of large scale vote in intimidation by the Ontario Government were hurled by Hon. Peter Heenan, Liberal faderer for Nelson-Rainy River, and former Minister of Labor.

The former Labor minister charged that on July 28 last, men engaged by the Ontario Government on New Ontario roads were lined up at the polls and called out by their payroll numbers to go in and vote. "The Conservative candidate, the engineer and the foreman all were there." Mr. Heenan continued, "and as each man went in to vote, he was asked if he wanted to keep his job."

"I lived in tropical countries before I came to Canada but I never saw the peon of the tropics treated as these men." The people of his riding, said Mr. Heenan, had elected him in protest at such "rotten politics."

Says Few More Rotten

"There was no more rotten politics in the world than that played by the province of Ontario," he declared. "If we are to give money to a Government keeping men in slavery—for these men are paid 25 cents an hour and their board for a ten-hour day—then we should see to it that that Government pays fair wages and gives an eight-hour day."

Mr. Heenan further charged that Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, had promised in northern election speeches three different routes for the trans-Canada highway. The Kenora member asked Mr. Bennett whether the Federal Government would not have a say in the route.

"I am not in a position to discuss," said Mr. Bennett, "what provincial minister may or may not have promised. As far as the other matter is concerned, I would say that the Federal Government would have something to say as to route though it might be a limited say because we have no right to interfere with the jurisdiction of the province regarding highways."

Boy Bicyclist Fatally Injured

Broadworth Corners, three miles north of Stirling, is regarded particularly dangerous and young Barron shot out on the bike from a westerly direction into the path of the car. Mr. Potter had no chance to avoid an accident. The rider was dragged underneath the car for a short distance and when it was brought to a stop he was pulled from the tangled wreckage of the bicycle unconscious. He lived but a short time.

Mr. Potter was accompanied by his son Grant and he is known as a careful driver. He was well within the speed limit when the fatality occurred.

The community has been thrown into the deepest gloom by the tragedy as the young victim was popular in the district. He passed his entrance examinations at this year and attended Stirling High School last week. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Lionel and John and one sister Mona. His mother and father are prostrate following the loss of their son.

Immediately after the accident he was taken to the home of William Broadworth and Dr. Alger was called. There was practically no hope held out for his recovery as he suffered heavy loss of blood from severed arteries while there were several visible bruises in the skull.

The following men composed the jury which exonerated Potter of all blame: William Broadworth, Merle Spencer, Blake Ketcheson, Jas. Warren, John Farrell, Sam Elliott, Roy Welborn.

Interment will be in Rawdon Township tomorrow morning and it is expected the funeral will be one of the largest in the district for some time as keen sympathy is felt for the stricken family.

New Lamps Are Ordered By City

When the council arrived at enquiries, the chair was flooded with questions for a few minutes. Alderman Tye wished to know what was being done to repair the fountain in front of the Belle Theatre. "This is a disgrace to the city," said the Alderman, "and it is unsanitary. I understand some public-minded citizens were going to repair this fountain and I would request, that it not started at once that the Chairman of Public Works take the matter in hand."

The same alderman wished to know if the dog catcher Mr. Thos. Thorne was still in the employ of the city and the mayor replied in the negative. The chairman of Public Works asked the chairman of Waterworks if any report had been brought in respecting the monies due the city from the Budweiser Brewing company with respect to water. Ald. Wouters explained to the questionnaire that a meeting had been held of the committee appointed, and that the Brewing Company had been notified to pay $100.79 each week until the account was paid and at anytime if they missed a payment for a week, the Waterworks manager was instructed to cut off the water.

Hospital Accounts

Alderman Charles L. Hyde, asked if Mr. Mulvey, collector of hospital accounts, was still in the employ of the city and Alderman Woodley, chairman of the executive explained that he was and that he was earning his salary and the books as regards indigent patients for which the city was responsible were in flawless shape. The city is making about 80 cents on the dollar in these old accounts.

Local Labor

The chairman of waterworks was also asked if the complaints about the city with respect to local labor not being entirely used on the new filtration plant were true. "I believe," said the chairman, "that local labor is being used wherever possible There are many sub-contracts given by the main contractor and over these neither the city nor the main contractor has any control. Mr. Patterson, I believe, is using local labor entirely on the work that he is doing." When adjournment was called a motion was made that the council meet on September 17th at eight o'clock, which will save notices being sent out to the members.

Bridge Decision By City Council

Recommendation

The recommendation as presented to the council after the Gore, Nasmith and Storrie report published on Tuesday in the Ontario Intelligencer had been thoroughly discussed in committee was "that in view of the report of Gore, Nasmith and Storrie we proceed to construct a new concrete bridge to replace the present upper bridge and that tenders be called for same, said tenders to be in the hands of the City Clerk not later than five o'clock, September 17th. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted."

When the vote was called, all present excepting Aldermen Hyde, Woodley and Tod voted for the recommendation.

Rules Cement Grade

A heated discussion took place in the committee room judging by the loud conversation which came from the room, the council being closeted for more than one hour and a half, but no discussion was held on the floor of the council. From what could be learned after the meeting the contractors will be instructed, that the grades of cement to be used in different sections of the bridge will be raised a grade in order to ensure a perfect structure. If the frost is heavy while the work is in progress, the cement will be heated to the proper temperature for pouring. It is believed that a major part of the work can be completed before the heavy frost strikes the country.

The deceased's maiden name was Elizabeth Wright of Stirling before she became the second wife of Mr. John Rodgers fifty-one years ago, three children blessed this union viz: Mrs. C. Bell of Belleville; Mrs. Henry Bell of Stirling and John A Bell of Long Beach, Cal. The deceased had reached the ripe old age of 87 years, 4 months and 11 days, for five months she had been staying with her daughter in Belleville but was only confined to bed a few days.

Saturday, September 6, was a unique date in the Rodgers' family, not only was it the date of Mrs. Rodgers funeral but it was also the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Bell and it was also the twenty-first birthday of her grandson Maurice Bell.

Great sympathy is expressed for the family especially the aged partner in life who has reached the age of ninety-seven years.

St Paul's League met on Monday evening for reorganization with a goodly number present. After the singing of two hymns the president, Mrs. Harry Fluln, read a chapter from Nehemiah and Mr. Hoje Joblin led in prayer. The members of the different sides were then read by the secretary, Mrs. Nora Wescott, the different groups then met in conference alone for plans regarding the coming Programs, etc. Later all joined together again and the president made a little speech saying the members to be faithful in their duties, their attendance, etc. Miss Florence Bailey then put on a "Parlez" contest and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

CAPTAIN JANNEY'S CASE IN COURT

Kingston, Sept. 11—The case of Captain E. L. Janney, charged with obtaining $414.06 under false pretenses, came before Magistrate J. W. Bradshaw yesterday. The evidence of one witness was heard, and the Court reserved decision as to whether or not the accused would be committed for trial. On being arraigned, the accused pleaded "not guilty." The case arises out of business relations Captain Janney, as head of the Janney Aircraft and Boats Limited, had with one Colonel Harry Scullan of St. Louis over an order placed for four boats, it being alleged that Captain Janney received a cheque for $414.06 and that he did not deliver all the goods according to contract.

BROADWAY SHOP OPENED BY RUTH

Arrive With Rickard, Gallagher and McNamee to Find Big Crowd

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Babe Ruth downed his hat, stuck a pencil behind his ear and started selling hats last night at his new haberdashery on the corner of Broadway and Fifty-second street. Technically the establishment will be known as Babe Ruth's Shop for Men, Inc.

For an hour a crowd which grew to more than 600 persons had congested the sidewalks at the intersection. With mingled awe and good humor, those directly in front of the brilliantly lighted display windows had peered in to the interior, resplendent with silver paint and red and black trimmings.

A shout went up when the Babe alighted from his automobile, accompanied by Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach Bob Shawkey, manager of the Yankees; Lou Gehrig and Graham McNamee.

The Babe looked as brand new as his store; a blue coat, white flannels and black and white sport shoes. He promptly clapped a hat four sizes too small on the top of his head and struck up a family reminiscent of Charles Ray at his best.

Mr. McNamee talked to the crowd through a megaphone. He said the Babe intended to sell "hats shirts, pajamas and things of that kind, all good stuff." "Ruth," he said, "used to be the leading slugger," and then even the florid Graham McNamee stuttered "Knute is here," he said, and then has informed me he expects his team to be no good but it will win every game." He assured his audience that the hats in which Babe Ruth will specialize will bear a stamp indicating their origin.

Mopping his forehead with a handkerchief already damp, for the big store was crowded, the Babe pressed the button which turned on the purple green and blue exterior signs bearing his name and declared himself officially in business. But his crowd had only begun. Between spattering studio lamps he sold hats too small, too big and just right to his four companions, while a motion picture camera recorded the event. When the show was over, his collar was wilted and he had started business by selling four hats for nothing.

"Whew!" complained the Babe, grinning and mopping his brow some more.

The store, he said, was just what he had imagined it should be. The show cases were ample and contained "good goods", and there was the cash register waiting. Asked if he would be found on duty during the Winter, he replied with an air of surprise, "Sure! But not all the time. That would kill me."

PICTORIAL Ggolf INSTRUCTION

Proficiency with Irons Keeps Scores Down

The long iron shot to the green is of great importance to the golfer. Without a stiff shot one has little chance of making a low score. When the ball is played off of the left heel there will not be as much of a follow-through as there will be if it is played further back, giving a longer hitting space.

In making a short mashie shot the average good player prefers to play that with a fade, in other words a slice, but where longer distances are required, it is necessary sometimes to play a very high shot to clear any trees or bunkers one needs a firmer shot with more actual power. This can only be made with a longer follow-through. There must be no body effort in the shot, that is until after the ball has been hit. The club more than in any other shot must be permitted to do the work.

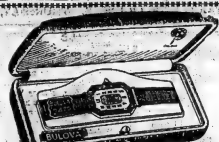
YACHTING

Kingston yachtsmen had their revenge yesterday afternoon when three teams from the Limestone City came right into the Belleville Yacht Club's territory and beat the best the locals could offer by forty nine points to thirty nine. Belleville dinghy sailors won in Kingston last week.



Major Grant, of Kingston, won the cup for having the highest individual score and George Graham and Robert Martin tied for second place. A coin was tossed to decide the winner and Mr. Martin won. After the races, of which four were sailed, Commodore George Graham was host at dinner at his home on the Trent Road.

Is that the correct number of the sealed BULOVA Watch displayed in our window?

Frankly we do not know! In fact no one in our organization knows. The watch was sealed, boxed and shipped to us by the Bulova Watch Company of New York and they alone know the secret. We will present this beautiful watch to the lucky person guessing the number nearest the exact one, which is somewhere between 600,000 and 700,000. The contest will begin on Monday night at the Carnival. You may cast your vote at the Carnival Booth, or at the store between Monday night and Thursday night. The winner will be determined Friday night by three prominent judges, members of our store or their families not eligible to compete.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

Word had flashed into the court-room. It was mysteriously filled again. People were sitting up straight, expectant looks on their faces. Bunconsied policemen were at the doors pushing people out, trying to have everything decent and quiet, when the judge came in.

VERDICT READ

Ma had resumed her prideful stare. Chin up, hat slithering back, showing all these people how sure she was.

Ma whispering. "Cathie be brave darlin'. Listen darlin' hold on to your self just a little longer. We'll soon be out of here and putting it all behind us forever. .....shh..... .he.....he's speaking!"

The foreman of the jury. It was the man with the spots on his coat. Now why ever did they make him the foreman, when he was so sloppy looking? Shh! Listen to him.... He's nervous, too.... his voice shakes. Listen to what he's going to say.... Oh my God, he's said it.....he's said it.....

GUILTY OF MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE!

Guilty .... of course .... It was what she expected, what she had said along they'd do.... Guilty. She Cathrine Weir.... but no, no....it could not be like that. They'd find their mistake. The judge would tell them.... somebody tell them.... Cathie opened her mouth to say something..... somebody have to tell them. You can't sit and let them say you're guilty when you're not, just because somebody has lied, and people are stupid! They're harrying it too far....Why they'd hang her.....hang her.....

What was that Oh yes.....by the neck until dead. Hats what they'd do, and then it would be too late to do anything about it..... Oh, they couldn't mean that.....Guilty!

The judge was in comment on. People fighting each other to get out..... tsss, buss....Guilty! Guilty! Oh, why didn't somebody send for Gordon? He would help.... he would know what to do.....

A soft thud.

It was Ma. Crumpling up. Going down, down, down .... striking her head, and everyone standing by letting her do it..... .

Cathie flung up her arms. "Stop!" she cried, to the judge who was saying something. "Stop! It's my mother.... oh, don't you care? Won't someone help me?"

CHAPTER 53

It was noon of the following day. Cathie had had so many visitors that her head ached. Not that it hadn't ached all night. It had, but this was a new kind of ache. It throbbed. It pained and throbbed, keeping such perfect time that she found herself talking in time to its rhythm. Her voice probably sounded very funny. And what of that? She was a lost soul.... one found guilty of murder in the first degree....so a little thing like a funny voice is just nothing.

Ruth came and told her not to worry about Ma. Ma had a twisted nurse, and Doctor Brown said it was only a shock, thought, of course, at her age—

"It will probably kill her." Cathie said.

"Cathie!"

"I'm sorry," Cathie said humbly. She hadn't meant to frighten Ruth. She had passed so far beyond being frightened, so far beyond pretending, that she had forgotten for the moment, that everyone else hadn't.

"NUMB INSIDE"

Ruth red-eyed and indignant left as soon as she could. Cathie watched her go without feeling of any kind. She thought, "Unless I change I won't mind walking to what do they call it...the death chamber....I won't mind anything, because I'm all numb inside....."

Mr. Allan and Mr. Gunther came. They had filed a petition for an appeal. That meant it had to be done all over.

"Don't you think it's rather a waste?" Cathie asked, nodding her head a bit in time with the ache.

"My God. we can't give up now!" Mr. Allan roared. "They found you guilty. Don't you know what that means?"

"Yes, they'll hang me," she said indifferently.

"No, no.... Dont please, for God's sake, breathe that thought! The worst will be life—"

"Life?"

"Prison for life."

Cathie looked around her little white washed room. "Could Gordon come to see me whenever I want him?"

Mr. Allan looked frightened. "No, no, you don't understand. It would be prison for life. San Quentin, Not here. You'd get parole eventually but my God, girl—aren't you innocent?"

"Yes. Oh yes."

"Then have you no fight in you?"

"No," said Cathie.

WILLING TO QUIT

Mr. Allan paced the floor. He wiped his perspiring head with the fancy handkerchief in his coat pocket. "Don't you want to prove to the world that you are innocent? If you don't care for yourself, think of your mother. Do you want her disgraced?"

"She's disgraced now. She's sick. Maybe she'll die before they hang me—or shut me up for life, or whatever they decide to do." Then, more gently, "I think you'd thought of this before...I mean, of ma, and clearing me. It's too late now. I'd have given anything—even my life, to spare her.....but you don't understand. It's done now....I've killed her, broken her heart, she won't want to live....Oh, no don't, try to comfort me, because you can't .....Nobody can.... that's why it doesn't matter.... what they do to me....because I'm dead already.....inside....."

"Nonsense. You're depressed, your nerves are all shot. But you're young. Years of life ahead. Try to think. Surely you don't want to go to prison for life?"

PLEADS FOR HELP

Cathie tried to think. Prison for life. She, an old woman in San Quentin, that place with the grey walls, that you pass when you're driving to San Rafael on a picnic....And time going on ....and other girls driving by in cars on their way to picnics, and you inside the grey walls.....

"Mrs. Farnsworth, I beg you, help me as I'm trying to help you!"

"You're very kind," Cathie said gently, and smiled.

Mr. Jesse Allan could not bear to see her smile. To see that thin pain-wracked face with its dark shadowed eyes and cloud of fair softly shining hair, suddenly light, as if from some inner radiance. So he found an excuse and went away.

It was evening when Gordon came. She had been waiting for him all day. She couldn't see why they kept him from her now, when she was lost anyway, and this was the only comfort that was left.

But she didn't wait with her heart in her ears....listening....looking....impatient as she had been once. She waited dully now, because nothing really mattered. She couldn't even feel impatient for Gordon. She could only sit and wish he'd come, and wonder if her head would ever stop aching.

GORDON WEARY

"Cathie..... Cathie, sweet!"

Cathie lifted up her head and some thing inside her seemed to melt. Oh, ache?" she asked him. Her hand stole up and touched his tanned cheek. How thin he was ....how lined.... he looked so old. She thought of that first day she met him..how handsome and boyish he was then .... how well they looked together she hid thought when she saw their reflections in the window....and now....and now.... in a little year....

He held her in his arms, comforted her, whispered silly, madcap love names in her ear, so that she smiled a little through the gentle tears that were coming now, and hurrowed her head closer into his shoulder....rest....rest.....He was giving her rest.

Afterwards.... was it soon? She knew she had been sleeping, and that the pain in her head was gone, and there was peace in her heart again.....He was still holding her in his arms, rocking a little, backwards and forwards, and Mrs. Evans, the matron, standing there with a glass of milk in her hand, watching.....

"Now dearie, drink the milk and you will be all right." Mrs. Evans was saying.

FAITH UNSHAKEN

Cathie drank it gratefully. Put her head back on Gordon's shoulder. Fanny Evans walked away..... poor thing, left her to be with him for a while .....little enough left you can do for her.....

Twice Gordon tried to talk.

"Don't talk. I can't bear to talk. Just let me put my head on your shoulder. That's all—that counts—"

So he held her silently.

"I'm sorry sir. You'll have to go!" Fanny Evans was kind, but rules are rules.

"I'm sorry sir. You'll have to go!" Fanny Evans, was kind, but rules are rules.

"Goodbye, Cathie. And Cathie be brave, because a new angle Gunther and I have been working on is looking up. New evidence. I think."

"Why?" she asked.

"Marguerite. We've been combing the country for her. There's a new lead at last. I think we'll have her before morning."

Cathie looked her disappointment. She had thought it was something about Chester. Something to make him admit he lied. "That's awfully nice," she said, without any spirit.

"She can make it decided unclemant for Chester, do you see? Even if we can't get any help on the shooting she will be a most valuable character witness for you. Between her and Cheung Wen she's to prove there was no motive, do you see?"

WORRY FOR CHESTER

Cathie didn't see. But she knew since she had lain in Gordon's arms again, that she wanted to be free.... oh, she didn't want to get its imprisonment or be hanged....

"You'll help me, Gordon? You won't let them put me in jail for all my life?"

"Mydear lIthey take youthe y'l

"My dear if they take you they'll have to take me, too!"

"Really, Gordon?"

"Really," he smiled.

"And if they hang me?"

"I'll go with you!"

"Truly?"

"Truly!"

"Then I'll find a wy to go free—to be with you. You will! You'll see!"

"Come, Mrs. Farnsworth!"

"I'm coming, Mrs. Evans. Goodbye, Gordon! She blew him a kiss, and the smile that went with it didn't hurt you to see this time. It was her old smile, defiant, lovely.

And that night, after the lights were out, she sang a little tune under her breath.

CHAPTER 53

A woman cried all night. Her waiting tore at Cathie's heart. The pain—it was that, and seemed here for a few minutes blew away in the still, dark crevices .... She must have been crazy to feel happy.... to feel happy on the day she was found guilty of murder.....

Mrs. Allan thought there would be another trial. He said he was sure of it. But he had been sure she'd be acquitted in the first trial.....and she wasn't.....You have to learn not to depend on people.....not to depend on anybody but Gordon and Ma.

And Ma was sick. Sick in bed, with a trained nurse.....broken down by the worry and the shock of the verdict.....Gordon ....Gordon was more than half sick. He looked so tired .....so tired.

That historic departure of Loyalists from New York in 1783, was one of the great migrations of history. It was not like the migrations of tribes who moved in the shove for food and new pastures, as did the races in Europe in most of the countries of the early Christian ages but this was a case where men and women left their own kindred in pursuit of a political ideal. It is no wonder that Police Magistrate Mikel calls for recognition in the schools and by the public of the eighth of June 1783 the day when the migration began.

Today a trip from New York to Maritimea or the Bay of Quinte is a picnic, an outing. In 1783 it was no picnic, it was the wrenching of ties and the severance from the lands they owned. It was a bitter drama.

But tragedy in pursuit of the ideal is a triumph and so it has proven. Had the Loyalists not been forced as they were to leave, the whole course of Canada would have been changed. What Canada would have been today no one can state. Loyalists did much better for their name and their descendants by coming north.

ARE OUR JUDGES

Because some few snakes are poison ous, why kill the gentle viper, asks Dr. Howard A. Kelly of John Hopkins University. Speaking in Toronto he said: Snakes are not to be killed ipso facto because they are snakes. There are only twenty varieties of poisonous snakes in all North America and sixteen of these he said, were gentlemen and carried rattles. "There is one snake you have up here which you people think is very poisonous and kill. Yet he is one of the nicest, most gentle snakes you could have for a pet. That is the blunt nosed viper."

The point of Dr. Kelly needs reiteration. Why destroy life of creatures unless marked benefit results? Why kill snakes, birds, game, unless to the good.

Unfortunately man has been taught to hate and fear snakes, yet most of them in this country are as harmless as eels.

There are certain popular notions which are hard to remove, but are quite unfounded—that certain things are to be killed. Ruskin said in regard to human character and man's reactions to the life about him that the insects he crushes under his feet are his judges. According to Dr. Kelly snakes we kill are likewise our judges.

HAPPY FOLKS

The Cemetery Association is not gloomy at all, though dealing with necrologies, tombs, the designing and planning of cemeteries and the maintenance of sanitation.

Cemetery Association is not sad. Toronto the other night saw the officers, regular madcaps decked with paper hats at the ball in conjunction with the annual convention. There was not a sign of the ghoulish attire, shrouds and lilies in the hand, closed eyes, and funeral clothes, or even the undertakers' long black coats. They were very human, happy folks there.

MAKING NEW THINGS

Synthesis is the result of science. Poor old Roger Bacon slaved away in his lab, seeking the touchstone which would make all things gold but if all things had been turned Midas-like to gold, what good would it be. Science goes better than that, it makes what people need for daily living, not necessarily gold for princes and potentates' hats and cars.

Today what have we instead of the midas stuff—sugar made out of peanut shells, paper from banana trees.

Efforts are being made to bring about economic production of levulose sugar from the Jerusalem artichoke. Synthetic rubber is coming, say experts, meet ing at Washington. A commercial mill has been constructed in Siam for the making of paper from banana trees, rice straw and lalang grass.

Paper suits were talked of during the war. That is nothing strange. Greater things are to be and will not be strange.

CONFESSIONAL

I've scattered a bridge set
All over the floor;
I've sampled the milk left
Just outside the door;
That dish of fresh strawberries
Is all gobbled up—
(Permit me to mention I'm Brownie, the pup.)

A coat has been slept on?
A glove you can't see?
The chesterfield's shipwrecked?
A rug's all skew-gee?
Who's been at that work-box
And plowed it all up?
(Perhaps it's connected with Brownie, the pup.)

The folks try to scold me,
But somehow they fail;
When they wag their fingers—
I just wag my tail.
They threaten to train me—
That's long given up!
(They all know who's boss 'round here,
Brownie, the pup.)

BRIDGE STREET RESIDENT calls attention of Sidelights to dangerous condition which has arisen since re-opening of schools. Motor car traffic is very heavy just at the noon hour on Bridge street and Dundas street, and when the traffic is heaviest the children of Ann street school are scampering joyously homeward, some along Dundas and some along Ann to Bridge, meeting the heavy motor car noon traffic on both streets. To this is added the scholars from the Ontario Business College from St. Agnes Manor. The correspondent suggests that the scholars be dismissed earlier so as to get home before this noon motor car rush starts. The suggestion is passed on to the Board of Education, and it might be a good idea to enquire into this situation at all the schools.

THE SUN DO MOVE. A ship recently sank in the South Seas and the passengers and crew were rescued after a trying ordeal of many days at the pumps. The story had hardly moved from the Front Page before movies of the shipwreck were being shown in New York City. The French fliers landed in New York a few days ago and moving pictures of their landing were shown in Belleville within a day or two after—we're sure living in a grand and wonderful era.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, at a political meeting in Chicago, was talking about divorce.

"So many wives," she said sarcastically, "don't realize that one of their most important duties is that of a scapegoat.

"Two women were discussing at the Colony Club the sad case of a financier who had failed.

"Poor George," said the first woman, "did he accept his failure like a man?"

"Exactly like a man," said the second woman. "He blamed it on his wife's extravagance."

World Baseball Series Opens October 1st

First Game Will be Played In American League Champions' Park, Probably Athletics.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The first act in the 1930 world series will be staged Wednesday, Oct. 1, in the park of the team winning the American League championship, undoubtedly the Philadelphia Athletics. This was decided today at the annual pre-world series conference in the office of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The second game likewise will be played at the home of the American League pennant winners, with games three, four and five at the park of the National League champion. If two more games are necessary they will be played in the American League champion's park.

Prices will be the same as last year, said ticket applications will be accepted effective next Monday, Sept. 15. The price scale, including tax, will be: Boxes, $6.60; grand stand (reserved) $5.50; general admission $3.00; and bleachers $1. Tickets will be sold only in blocks of three, as last year, and applications will be accepted starting with next Monday.

If the Chicago Cubs or St. Louis Cardinals win the National League pennant, one day will intervene between the second and third games. If Brooklyn or New York win, the series will be played on consecutive days, barring rain.

All the games will be replayed in the park where they occurred unless they do not affect the outcome. As usual, the team winning four games will win the series.

All games will start, as usual, at 1:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time at Philadelphia and Central Standard Time at Chicago.

Neither the Washington club of the American League nor the New York Giants of the National League sent representatives to today's conference. The world's champions were represented by President Thomas Shibe and Secretary H. J. Schroeder, the Chicago Cubs by President William Veeck, Frank Lloyd, Brazil B. York appeared for Brooklyn, while Treasurer Will O. De Witt represented the Cardinals.

Liberals Declare Their Confidence

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 10 (CP)—Confidence in Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was expressed today, by Liberal members of the House of Commons and Senate in joint caucus. Complete endorsation was made of his leadership and of his campaign in the recent election.

In a resolution passed members stated they viewed with alarm "the attempts of the new Tory government to capitalize the present world-wide economic depression for the purpose of applying the doctrines and policies calculated to serve special interests."

The caucus lasted three hours and general line of action to be pursued by the Opposition at present session was decided.

Why
We Sell Only
GOODYEARS

IT is true that all tires are not alike. And it's obvious that all tires are not the same value. That's why we sell Goodyears only.

We've watched Goodyear Tires in use for a good many years. We're satisfied that they give the longest mileage. We're sold on Supertwist and the All-Weather Tread. And Goodyear gives us a complete line of tires to meet all needs.

It's true we don't make quite as much money per tire. But we sell a lot more tires.

We have your size and type.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Hesitating Husband

By Ethel Willis Hewitt

Doris Conley looked at Maga across the breakfast table. He wondered why the slim hands that hovered among the tea cups no longer inspired him. The exact shade of her hair and the depths of her pansy eyes, also left him untouched. Queer how things die that were full. Dale didn't realize just how much of Greta Clayton was creeping into his work. She was, perhaps unconsciously, but never-the-less she was, the heroine of all his successful stories now.

He dug his spoon deep into the grape fruit, meanwhile concluding that Maga no longer inspired him because he knew just how she would react to any given situation. It was before he had discovered all that, that the mystery of her spurred his imagination and made her the center of countless numbers of his most successful stories.

Lately he had been seeing more and more of Greta. Only the evening before Maga had seen them driving in the park. He had been panic stricken when he saw her, but she had shown no unfriendly sign, merely bowed as they cars passed, nor had she mentioned the incident at dinner. That rather surprised Dale.

He was in the midst of a serial and there was a cool, invigorating freshness about Greta that was carrying it along superbly. When the story would lag, an hour or so with her would send it spinning along at high speed. He hoped Maga would be sensible about it and not make a fuss. He hated a fuss.

She looked up at him as she filled his cup, a faint smile hovered about the corners of her soft mouth.

"You know, I've been puzzled about your stories lately. They've been good, of course, but different, entirely different. The hero, you know. It's Greta—that accounts for it." Her eyes held his gaze for an instant.

Dale grew hot and uncomfortable. He might have known she wouldn't let him get away with it. Women weren't like that.

"Maga, you don't understand. I—" he floundered hopelessly.

Maga smiled across at him.

"Foolish boy, of course I understand. It's Greta, now, and not me. There's nothing particularly hard to comprehend about that. An artist really shouldn't marry. You remember I told you that. You should be free," she concluded in her cool level voice.

Dale's thoughts became confused. What was she driving at?

"Look here, Maga, you don't mean divorce, or anything like that?" he asked blankly.

Maga's eyes opened wide.

"Divorce—what for?"

Dale felt uncomfortable.

"I didn't know how you'd feel about it. I can't finish this serial without Greta. She's the life and breath of it. If I shouldn't see her again—" he paused, this was a beastly thing to say to Maga.

Maga buttered her toast leisurely.

"There's no reason why you can't see her whenever you wish, that is, as far as I am concerned," she added on odd note in her voice that puzzled Dale. She looked at her narrowly, but she only smiled at him with understanding eyes.

Well that was that. He was immensely relieved to know that there wouldn't be a fuss.

He shut himself up in his work room with that settled he could do a great day's work. He sat down before his typewriter, but somehow he couldn't get started. The ideas didn't flow easy. His thoughts, somehow, kept jutting around to Maga. That deep untroubled look in her lovely eyes. Dale thought he understood her, that he had prodded around in every crevice of her soul. Somehow her behavior that morning had been unexpected, to say the least. Funny, you never knew what to expect from women—really.

Meanwhile, time was slipping by and he hadn't made a start for the day. He had to get the tenth installment out by Friday. Today was Wednesday and he had just started it. At lunch time he had made no headway. He was in the midst of the love scene. The tall blonde girl just refused to register. She spoke her lines and gave her kisses like a stone image.

This would never do. He'd make Greta out for an hour. Take a turn on the lake, that ought to straighten him out. The way she leaned back against the cushions and trailed her slim fingers in the water always fascinated him. There was something about her that soothed his ragged nerves. He spent the whole afternoon with her on the lake taking in all her frail loveliness. Listening to her idle chatter. She looked deep into her through clinched teeth.

"Damn——" he shouted, and with a quick nervous gesture he came down on the typewriter with both hands, piling up the type in a hopeless looking mass. It all had to be undone eventually of course but it always relieved the situation temporarily.

The day gone—got a thing accomplished. He was nervous and irritable. At dinner Maga poured his coffee. He watched her hands absently.

"Well, how did it go today?" she asked in a sympathetic voice.

"Rotten," Dale spouted in disgust.

"Oh, I'm sorry boy—really." Her eyes were deep and understanding.

Dale looked at her steadily. He wondered just how far her understanding of him went.

"Maga, can you throw a few duds in the sun case and come down to Craddock with me in the morning?" he asked eagerly. "I've got to get this serial through this week."

There was a question in her eyes, he had expected that.

"I've been a fool, Maga. She hasn't got it in her—the strength to see the thing through. She goes dead—right in the most dramatic situation," he blurted out.

Maga smiled, a wise, indulgent little smile.

"I know," she laid her hand over his on the table edge.

"You can't tell about those things. What time do we start?" she added.

Dale read her gaze with unbelieving relieved eyes.

"Gosh—and to think I thought I knew you," he breathed, his fingers clicking around hers. He was all set now.

SCHOOL FAIR IN PRINCE EDWARD

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

PICTON, Sept. 10.—The first of the series of School Fairs to be held in Prince Edward County was held at Ameliasburg on Tuesday afternoon. The exhibits were very fine in all departments. There was a large attendance of parents and friends of the pupils and each of the schools in the township was well represented.

In the morning, there was a stock naming contest wherein the competitors were required to identify the breeds of cattle and horses from charts. There was also an apple naming contest.

In the afternoon, each school did gymnastic exercises and though time for training was short each opening is short, they went through the different manoeuvres in good style.

The principal event which included a teachers and a trustees walking race, were keenly congested.

Dale Bonisteel had a representative in a Public Speaking contest. The girls spoke on "How I Would Beautify the Home of a Farm Hand," or any phase of poultry raising or marketing. The topic for the boys was "What I Would Do to Insure a Good Crop, of (any product)."

Mr. Webster, Agricultural Representative, and C. E. Slothers, school inspectors and other officials gave short talks giving reasons for placing the awards and advice on how to improve the exhibits.

The winners of the T. Eaton Co. silver trophy for the pupil winning most prizes has not yet been decided.

The dates of the other county Rural School Fairs are as follows:

Big Grain Crop

Messrs H. A. Anderson and sons of Yeresville, hold the record for the biggest grain crop yet reported as grown in Prince Edward County this year. In one week they threshed 4,226 bushels of oats and barley. This was grown on 90 acres, an average of over 24 bushels to the acre. The threshing took 5 days and was done by one of Herb Brooks' threshing outfits with Kenneth Brooks in charge. On the 80 acres, 30 were sown to barley and 50 to oats. The barley yield was about 1,020 bushels an average of 40 bushels to the acre. In acres of oats yielded over 3100 bushels, an average of 62 bushels to the acre. In addition to this grain crop, on this farm there is a large acreage of corn and hay, also pasturage for the big herd of dairy cattle kept there.

CURIOSITY

Questing curiosity,
Childish wonder,
Turns a toadstool up to see
Whether it is pleated under;
Climbs a hill impulsively
Just to glimpse the face of thunder.

But to hearts unquestioning,
Hearts unquesting,
Not inquirers of the spring
Where the birds are nesting,
Worlds must seem unbeckoning,
Dull and unarresting.

Fashionably Speaking

BY LUCILLE

DEAR READERS:

Everything that can be done this year to enhance the feminine mode is being done to the new fall frock. Not only are the longer lines, with full sweeping skirts being emphasized but those little touches to a simple gown are being added to give a definite note of softness, that makes this year's styles so truly charming.

For this reason, Fashion's spotlight centres on the neckline, and particularly the collar and cuffs of the dresses for autumn. In designing dresses, fashionable couturiers emphasize these details. If you are making over a last winter's frock you can do the same. Let the main style point be the collar and cuffs and you will achieve a modish gown with little expenditure.

The longer frocks which made their appearance last winter were fortunately plain in style so that the addition of smart new neckwear will not spoil the effect of the frock. You will be surprised what a difference such a collar and cuff will make in the appearance of the dress.

The neckwear is soft and draping many coming to a long triangle in the front. Lace, as usual holds premier place for gracefulness and charm. Tiny frilled georgette collars are distinguished by scarfs that end in a long tie. Bertha collars are popular again, especially when they are very long and capelike in the back, giving a bolero effect.

Beads, it is rumoured, will play an important role in fall and winter fashions. They will be used in embroidery effect. Then, too they are being featured in neckwear, making brilliant collars and cuffs. In pastel tones, or sparkling shades, they would make a colourful accessory to any dress.

You would have to be sure, though, that the beads were securely fastened for you can well imagine the havoc that a pulled thread would cause to your picturesque collar!

Also shoes are going to be an important item in any dress this fall. A trip of window shopping will reveal that. So choose an unusual set of collars and cuffs, freshen up a last year's gown and you will fool all your friends into believing that you have added another new frock to your wardrobe.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Good Manners

SHE FEARS THEY'RE NOT SUITED

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-four and in love with a young lady of nineteen, as pure and good, I feel as can be found. I do not feel worthy of her but believe I could make her happy. But I do not know if I am strong enough to merit up to her ideal. We have talked the matter over and she is afraid we are not suited to each other. I would like to win her but her happiness means more to me than my own. She is a junior in college and has suggested we do not go together for a time and I have followed her suggestion. For many reasons I wish I might travel for a time but this is almost impossible. Life is a hard battle but perhaps you may be able to help brighten the way.

R. S. C.

You seem so genuinely in love with the young college girl my dear R. S. C., that I hate to say anything that sounds discouraging. But her suggestion that you do not see her for a time does not sound very promising. Why not take her at her word and put in your time improving yourself with reading and studying?

As for travel, it can be done with out money if you are willing to pass up comforts and take some hardships in a spirit of adventure. I know a boy who was putting himself through college, he was interested in art and wanted to see some of the famous European galleries—but he had no money. After many discouraging trials one of the big liners decided to take him across as a potato peeler. He was very popular with the kitchen crew, none of whom discovered he was a college man. A capable boy, he managed to do quite a little travelling after he landed. But it's only fair to say that he had succeeded in saving three hundred dollars before he sailed so it would be very unsafe to go to Europe or anywhere else with no money in hand, as it's harder to get jobs in foreign countries.

WHEN SHOULD SHE COME HOME?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 17 and am graduating from high school soon. I met a young man this Winter who is 19 years old. We like each other very much. Are we too young to go out steady once a week? How late is it proper for us to stay out?

BLUE EYES.

You are of quite suitable age to go out with the young man as you suggest on evening a week. The time for getting home depends—if you are going to a dance, naturally you would be later in returning than if you were to a movie. Don't get into the habit of staying out too late—say after 11 o'clock.

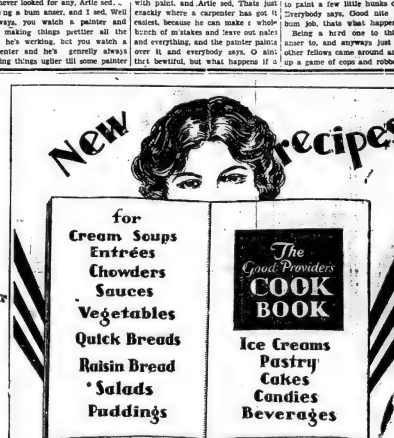
How do I know? They aint going to tell you if theyre got splinters, their too proud, I sed. And anyways, you never saw a painter with paint in his eyes, did you? I sed.

I never looked for any, Artie sed. . .

Be ng a bum sawer, and I sed, Well anyways, you watch a painter and he's making things prettier all the time he's working, but you watch a carpenter and he's generlly always making things uglier till some painter comes and goes all over everything with paint, and Artie sed, Thats just exactly where a carpenter has got it cadiest, because he can make a whole bunch of mistakes and leave out nales and everything, and the painter paints over it and everybody says, O ain't that bewtiful, but what happens if a painter makes a mistake and forgets to paint a few little hunks of place? Everybody says, Good nite what a bum job, thats what happens.



Being a hired one to think up a answer to, and anyways just then the other fellows came around and we got up a game of cops and robbers.

Mountie Kills Wife and Suicides When Ordered Out of House

R.C.M.P. Constable Shoots Bride Today

Alleged to Have Come Home Drunk and Been Ordered Out

SHOOTS HIMSELF

Mother-in-Law Gives Reason for Double Tragedy As Drinking

TORONTO, Sept. 12—Angered when his bride of two months ordered him out of her parent's home on Empress Crescent, Simon McIntosh, aged 30, Royal Canadian Mounted Police constable shot his wife, Helen aged 23, with his service revolver today. Walking to the rear of the house he turned the gun on himself, killing himself instantly. Mrs. McIntosh died on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital where she was removed by the police.

Mrs. McIntosh's body was found lying on the living room floor by her mother who heard the shots but, her upstairs at the time of the shooting. McIntosh's body was found on the kitchen floor.

From the incoherent story related by Mrs. Hunter mother of the dead girl, police gathered that her son-in-law was intoxicated when he came home this morning after being out all night.

McIntosh was of Scottish descent and is understood to have resided for some time in Winnipeg. He has been with the R.C.M.P. for two years.

Skeleton of Man Found in Field

The body of Joseph Woodall, who disappeared from his home in Bethel in 1925, was discovered by his son in a field on his farm. Only the skeleton remained. In an unfrequented spot, back of a fence, the body had lain for five years. Identification was made certain by the description given of Mr. Woodall when he left his home Coroner Whiteman and Constable Lovelace visited the scene. The Coroner decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The authorities had been on the lookout for Woodall ever since his disappearance. When he left his home he was said to have been wearing a mackinaw jacket and a pair of rubber boots. Although overgrown with long grass, these were recognizable. The remains of a razor and a pipe also were found. In a pocket were four 25-cent pieces.

Unsolved Murder Clue May be Gun

Rusty Gun Found By W. Smith in Crowe River Near Shack

SEEK PURCHASER

Provincial Police Renew Search For Slayer of Jerome Keene

Provincial (O) Constable Police have for three years been strongly baffled by the cold-blooded murder of Jerome Keene, sixty-year old recluse of Marmora Township whose body was found in a lonely shack on the Cordova Road on February 17th 1927. Every available clue has been traced to its source but no apparent motive has been uncovered nor has the finger of guilt pointed to any particular person although suspicions rested in certain directions but these showed no connection with the case under a close grilling by the authorities. The finding of a twelve gauge shot-gun in the Crowe River less than two hundred yards to the rear of the shanty by William Smith may prove the key to the unsolved mystery.

This paper was in possess on of the facts concerning the finding of the gun this week but at the request of provincial police Inspector Lougheed, the news was suppressed in order to allow a full investigation into the affair. The confidence expressed by Inspector Lougheed was not violated but a district newspaper eagerly seized the news and in a late edition yesterday chronicled the report of the finding of the gun.

The case has been turned over to Provincial Constable Percy Croy of Marmora, who is bending every effort

Official Records May Be on Way South From Arctic By Plane

Edmonton, Sept. 12—Prog, alert and crew heid Major L. T. Burwash skeing bound at Fort Smith on Thursday and served as a striking reminder that the explorer and his pilot have left the hazardous Arctic regions with their precious Franklin records just in time.

While Burwash has made no public reference to his discoveries, additional details have been received from Gilbert.

Near Lady Jane Franklin Point, named for the woman who spent her whole fortune seeking traces of her husband, Burwash found the first of Franklin's camps. Ravages of the tremendous storms across the bleak barren lands had largely obliterated signs of the camp, but Burwash found what his pilot describes as "numerous records of great historical value."

It is known that Franklin kept a diary. It is believed that Capt. Crozier had this diary with him when he pushed off with the remnant of survivors for Back's River after Franklin's death in June, 1847. Arctic historians have always believed that Crozier deposited the diary along with an account of the final tragic days before he too perished.

From the time that the tinned provisions turned putrid, through the two Winters that the 129 men spent with their ships and attempting to make their way over ice and land to civilization in Canada, the papers that Burwash is believed to have with him, will outline the whole desperate story.

They may not tell the dreadful last days which explorers have already surmised. The officers were believed to have perished before entire body, out in the remnant that remained and cannibalism followed.

EXPLOSIVE USED AT NAPANEE

A sensational attempt to rob a large combination safe located in the offices of Robert Light and Son's planing mill and lumber yard, at the foot of Richard street, was made early yesterday morning. Nitro-glycerine was used to blow open the door of the safe, the interior of which was completely smashed. The robbers were disappointed in their efforts, however, as the safe contained no valuables. Chief of Police Watts is investigating the affair, and it is believed that there will be some developments within a very short time. The attempted robbery is thought to have occurred about 4 o'clock and was not discovered until 7 o'clock when the office was opened for business.

FINE PEACH

Apparently there is more than one peach tree in the city and the fruit as the fine sample now in the window of E. T. Cherry's shop on Front street will attest. The donor of the peach to Mr. Cherry was Miss Lottie Clarke, 35 Victoria avenue, who also presented one to Henry Hunt, of Highland avenue. The tree grew from a peach stone planted by Miss Clarke in 1915 and this year there were 14 peaches on the tree. It is the intention of Mr. Cherry to plant the stone of the peach presented but only after the luscious fruit has been eaten. The peach on display is of fine color, of good size and firm texture.

BICYCLE THEFTS

There has been an epidemic of bicycle thefts in the city during the past two weeks and another was added to the list last night. Douglas Anderson of 7 Chatham street, parked his bicycle against a Spinks bike on the north Ann ash last night and returning for it a little later found it gone. The theft was reported to the police along with the description and every effort will be made to find the missing bicycle.

The back fender, gas tank, frame, body, tire carrier and rim were somewhat damaged and Mr. Anderson placed an estimate of the damage at $80.00.

DESIGNED NEW THEATRE

Mr. J. C. McCarthy former proprietor of the Belle Theatre has been engaged for some time in designing a new play-house at Gananoque. The new theatre will embrace the latest and will be the latest in construction. It will be known as the "Thousand Islands." WATER VERY LOW

The Moira River is unusually low at the upper bridge at the present time. If operations on the removal of the bridge start as expected within a week or so, construction of the piers for the new bridge will be possible before heavy flow of water starts down the river as a result of the autumn rains. It is anticipated that fairly easy conditions will be found at the upper bridge by the contracting firm. A good portion of the riverbed is exposed at present.

SELLS BUSINESS AT TWEED

William Collins, who has conducted a haberdashery and shoe business in Tweed, for the past 21 years, has disposed of his business and will retire from business activity and reside in Tweed. Mr. D. J. Barry, who conducted a ladies' ready-to-wear store there also was the purchaser. Consists of the larger cities in the district, the city of Mr. Collins' was one of the best equipped in the Province and no doubt the new owner will continue to enjoy the goodwill of the former owner. Mr. Collins since taking up residence in Tweed has been one of its leading citizens and the wish is expressed that he may enjoy many years of retired life.

FELL FROM ROOF

Unsolved Murder Clue May Be Gun

to trace the purchaser of the weapon. With the barrel imbedded in the soft bed of the river which is particularly free at this time of year, the stock protruded half a foot out of the water. Mr. Smith's attention was called to the gun by his grandson and the discovery was reported to the police.

As a result of the turn of events the people of Marmora are now quite convinced that the gun is the weapon which may lead to the arrest of its slayer. The shot gun was deeply rusted but a thorough cleaning has disclosed the number which may be a valuable clue. The opinion is current that this is the same gun which bore part of Jerome Keene's head off, as he slept in the little building in the Shanties found there years ago and did play a big part in the unravelling of the bloody mystery.

It will be recalled that one cold February day in 1927, Mrs. James Gordoner becoming alarmed at the protracted absence of her uncle, sent her husband to the shack to investigate. The latter peering through the window saw the aged man lying on the bed partly clothed with two gaping holes in the side of his head. He found the door of the shack locked but managed to effect an entry and found that the aged recluse had apparently been murdered. The wall was spattered with specks of flesh from the wounds. Little Revealed Inspector Loughred, Sergt. Clarke, Provincial Constables McCoy and H. H. visited the scene and carefully combed and questioned a number of residents including John Bell, a neighbour, who was said to have business dealings with the murdered man, James and Charles Gordoner, relatives and Albert Bleeden, a young farm hand. William Stringer of the Criminal Investigation Department was in the district and spent some time co-operating with the authorities here. The inquest revealed little or nothing and while rumors flew thick and fast the police were unable to pin the guilt on anyone.

So strong was the feeling in Marmora that a petition was presented to Attorney-General Price asking that the investigation be continued. Jerome Keene, about sixty years of age was free at this time of year, the stock promises so far as was known. One poignant feature of the murder was the finding of the child containing a doll which was left at the shack by unknown persons and which made the old man violently ill when he drank it. He was married but had not lived with his wife for some years previous to the killing.

Deputy Commissioner Cuddy has instructed Chief Inspector Lougheed and the headquarters staff leave no stone unturned to make the best use of the latest piece of evidence, the shotgun, which is still in the hands of Constable Cray, who is trying to identify it.

Commissioner Cuddy said last night that the officers who worked on the case were well convinced that the man had been murdered by two or more responsible persons. Keene was now a wealthy man and robbery was apparently the motive behind the two or three bullets were found in his trouser's pocket which hung over the foot of the bed.

Unsolved Murder Clue May Be Gun

to trace the purchaser of the weapon. With the barrel imbedded in the sort bed of the river which is particularly low at this time of year, the stock pro- truded half a foot out of the water. Mr. Smith's attention was called t the gun by his grandson and the dis- covery was reported to the police.

As a result of the turn of events the people of Marmora are now quite con- vinced that a new angle has develope which may lead to the arrest of the slayer. The gun was deeply rust- ed but a thorough search has disclos- ed the number which may be a valu able clue. The opinion is current that it is a low power gun which was one of Jerome Keene's head off, as he slept in the little building in the Shanieh road three years ago, and may play a big part in the unravelling of the bloody mystery.

It will be recalled that one cold Feb- ruary day in 1927, Mrs. James Gor- dnier becoming alarmed at the pro- tracted absence of her son, called her husband to the shack to investigate. The latter peering through the win- dow saw the aged man lying on the bed ratily gasping with two gaping holes in the side of his head. He found the door of the shack locked but man- aged to effect an entry and found that the aged recluse had apparently been murdered. The wall was spattered with flecks of flesh from the wounds. Little Revealed Inspector Loughead, Sergt. Clarke, Provincial Constables McCoy and Hall visited the scene and conducted a proto ract questioned a number of residents including John Bell, a neighbour, who was said to have business dealings with the murdered man. James and Charles Gordonier, relatives and Albert Morden, a young friend hand. William Stringer of the Criminal Investigation Department was in the district and spent some time co-operating with the authorities here. The inquest revealed little or nothing and while rumors flew thick and fast the police were unable to pin the guilt on anyone.

So strong was the feeling in Mar- mora that a petition was presented to Attorney-General Price asking that the investigation be continued. Jerome Keene, about sixty years of age was friendly with everyone and had no en- emies so far as was known. One point- ant feature of the murder was the find ing of a flask containing alcohol which was left at the shack by un- known persons and which made the old man violently ill when he drank it. He was married but had not lived with his wife for some years previous to the killing.

Deputy Commissioner Cuddy has instructed that Inspector Loughead and the headquarters staff leave no stone unturned to make the best use of the latest piece of evidence, the shotgun, which is still in the hands of Constable Gray, who is trying to iden- tify it.

Commissioner Cuddy said last night that the officers who worked on the case were well convinced that the crime was premeditated by at le- st one responsible person. Keene was now a wealthy man and robbery was appar- ently not the motive. Keene had his bills with him when he was found in his trouser's pocket which hung over the foot of the bed.

Intimidation of Electors in Ontario is Charged

Letters Read Were, Not Addressed to Members Who Read Them

PREMIER DECLARES

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Charges against the Ferguson Government in connection with the participation of the Premier of Ontario and his Cabinet colleagues in the recent general election campaign were made in the House of Commons last night by two Liberal members from Northern Ontario, Joseph A. Bradette of Timiskaming North and Joseph Raoul Hurtubise of Nipissing.

The latter produced an affidavit which Tory political bosses in Northern Ontario it was said required workingmen engaged on Government road construction to sign before they could draw their wages. The affidavit was to the effect that they had voted Conservative in the Federal election. One affidavit was taken by Aurel Rheaume of Chelmsford, in the Sudbury district, who swore that he had voted for George H. Nicholson, Conservative member of Parliament for East Algoma.

Quite as serious was the evidence submitted by Joseph A. Bradette, in response to Conservative taunts to produce documentary proof. He quoted a letter from Hon. Charles McCrea authorizing one man to "go ahead and fix the road to McIntosh Spring up to $200 or $300," while another letter about a case of beer which had been left under the ridge was also read by Bradette.

"The spectacle of Ministers of the Ontario Government using Provincial funds for purely electioneering purposes was far from edifying," said Mr. Bradette, "and I hope there never will be a repetition of such reprehensible practices. We are a free people and I am determined to expose such scandals whenever they come to my notice. There is no such thing as Liberal, or Conservative, or Progressive, or Labor money; it is good Canadian money, and raised by taxation. Men should not be penalized because of their political faith, but I have seen poor settlers refused work by branch foremen of the Ferguson Government simply because they were Liberals. That is not good for democracy. During the last election we had the disgraceful spectacle of Ministers of the Government of Ontario actually distributing political patronage to influence voters."

Eccles Gott (Conservative, South Essex)—That is all imaginary.

Can Give Proof

Mr. Bradette—It is not imaginary; I can give you proofs.

Mr. Gott—Let us have them. Give one instance.

Mr. Bradette—Well, you are responsible for this. He then read the following from Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines:

"July 22, 1930

"Dear Alec.—Go ahead and fix up road to McIntosh Spring up to $200 or $300. I have talked it over with Mr. Ebbitt. (Signed) Ch. McCrea."

Mr. Gott—That is good.

Mr. Bradette—Here is another.

"Dear Zeph:—Was here to see you with Mr. Ebbitt about road; he has the money and wants to give it to you, you to build road. Could you see me tomorrow sure? See me first. Case of beer under bridge at foot of Tremblay Hill for you. (Signed) A. R. Brower."

Dr. Hurtubis explained to the House that the Provincial moneys spent in Northern Ontario were distributed by the Northern Development Branch of the government of the province, which obtained $10,000,000 annually from the Legislature to spend upon highways and other development work in the northern part of the province.

Mr. Mackenzie King held that the Liberal members from Ontario, knowing how the Ferguson government had used its machinery and the money of the people to influence the elections for the Dominion Parliament last July, were quite within their rights in seeking assurance that the money they were now asked to vote, some $5,000,000 of which would be handed to the province of Ontario, would be properly spent and not turned over to such partisan bodies as the Northern Development Branch of the Ontario Government. "Unless honorable gentlemen opposite are able, when the bill comes before this House, to give assurance that the moneys being voted by this Parliament are not going to be used in the manner in which the Ontario Government has used Provincial moneys, they will find it difficult to get the bill through the House," he said.

Liberal cheers and Conservative jeers were so loud that nothing else could be heard.

From Premier Bennett the reading of the letters drew a caustic reference to the circumstances, well-remembered by another generation, surrounding the implication of Sir John A. MacDonald in the famed C.P.R. scandal of the seventies.

"Letters have been read by several members," said Mr. Bennett, "they were not directed to the gentlemen who read them. I leave it to the judgment of this House, having regard to what happened once in this House before 1878, whether it is not within the ability of those who read the letters not addressed to them to explain how such letters came into their custody."

A volley of applause, mingled with hoots at the Liberal letter readers, was roused on the Conservative benches by the Premier's declaration.

Mr. Bennett charged that the Liberals had adopted delaying tactics.

FINE PROSPECTS FOR FOOTBALL AT THE COLLEGIATE

Forty Candidates Turn Out For Drills Under Coach Shiels

According to Coach Shiels, prospects were never better for rugby football at the Collegiate, than they are this year. From forty to fifty aspirants have been turning out nightly at the east Belleville playground and unless early indications fail, the school will be represented on the gridiron by a smart squad.

The boys have been confining to tight drills to date which are occupied largely with punting the pigskin around and catching practice. Each night the candidates are put for a stiff run around the field and they are beginning to feel the effects of the heavy work.

The composition of the group has not been announced but it will probably be made up of Albert College, Belleville Collegiate and Picton High School. Albert College carried off the honours last year.

Five of last year's B.C.I. team, Blakely, Williams, Higgs, Rogers, and Countryman, have graduated, but their places will be filled with competent material. Last year's team has served as a feeder and a number of promising boys have appeared at the nightly drills. Byrnes, Graves, Champeign Mott and Murphy all players with experience on the grid will form the nucleus of the back field and Coach Shiels will have little to worry about in that department.

Rowsome, Delong and Chalmers three candidates for the scrimmage line up the scales at two hundred pounds while Twiddy weighs one hundred and ninety. Marshall, C. Dennis, Morgan, an Cyril Mott played last year and are again out for places. Others who have shown promise are Phelps, Jim Polwell, Don Campbell, Ostrom, Bell, and Barriage.

The Collegiate boys are determined to clean up the group this year, practices will be held every night and Coach Shiels will slowly weed, out the material available. Albert College team will get down to work next week when the students return for the Autumn term.

LONG SHOTS PREVAIL AS WINTER RULES HOLD SWAY

Winter brings along its disadvantages and in some cases its advantages, too, on the links. In the summer the ball sist up nicely on the grass while on frozen or muddy ground sets sloppy lies. We must play the ball wherever it lies in summer but in winter we have the privilege of teeing up or improving the lie as we choose.

This helps to save the course and gives more freedom in making a shot.

We can even whale away with the driver and certainly our irons should be more accurate and quite a bit longer.

Winter golf is not always a pleasure, but it is good practice and keeps one out in the open. One should use it merely to prepare for another season.

The first American cup race since 1930 will take place on Saturday between the Enterprise representing the United States and the Shamrock V. representing the challenger from the old country. Harold Vanderbilt, an amateur, will sail the defender, and Captain Ted Heard, a professional, will be in charge of the Britsh yacht. The Enterprise will be allowed to use its patent boom (which is four feet wide) and there is not expected to be any controversy over any detail of the races. In 1929 the Shamrock IV. gave the defender, Resolute, a time allowance of from 6.40 minutes to 7.01. Shamrock had a sail-over in the first race, Resolute's throat halyard parting. In the second race Shamrock won by 2.36, Resolute won the next three races by 7.01, 9.52 and 19.45 to successfully defend the cup.

This year the first boat to win four races will be declared the winner. The first race will start at 11.40 over a 20-mile course off Newport; 15 miles to windward and return. On Monday the course will be a triangular one ten miles to leg. The two-way course will be used for the first, third, fifth and seventh races, with the triangular plan in effect on the second, fourth and sixth.

On The Sport Trail

Arthur Ravensdale, Canadian champion 120 yards hurdles will defend his title against Odgers of Toronto, when they meet in the Marquette University in Milwaukee the coming College term. His removal to the United States will mean a great loss to Canadian track events. So runs a dispatch from Cobourg and reflects the same old story "we make them and they grab them." Probably Ravensdale has some particular interest in going to the United States for his education but it seems strange the Universities in Canada are not quick good enough. We know of many, who have graduated from them in Canada, and have risen to the top rung of their chosen profession. Of course Canadian Universities do not hang out inducements for boys athletically inclined to attend the school but in the land across the border they are looking for the coming champion and are ready to offer sufficient inducement. However the best wishes of athletes in the eastern section go with Arthur to his new home and everyone is sure he will make good.

One of the best races in the history of the National League is being staged at the present time, four teams being distinctly in the running and if long distance "can be covered with blankets." St. Louis' Cardinals ran the Brooklyn Dodgers an hot run for the percentage points behind the league leading Cubs from Chicago with the Giants only three games behind the leaders and ready to take any of the team if they should falter. The rise of the Cards is a place in the sun has been the sensation of the race. Early in the summer they fell back, but later started to hit on all nines and their record has been a succession of birdies and eagles and every team in the older circuit has felt the sting of their attack. Gabby Street, the boss has received splendid hurling with a powerful batting attack and should win the honors. The Cubs appear weakest up due to the batting staff faltering. Brooklyn has come on after suffering a severe slump. It is merry race with Brooklyn having the best chance at any finish at home.

All baseball fans and other sport lovers will be sorry to hear of the accident which befell Freddy Goyer, when he received a broken neck in an automobile accident on Monday last. Goyer was the mainstay of the Nationals for many years in this city and with his battery mate "Penney" Mills, was one of the best pairs in the Province and ferred by every club they met.

Fans can recall his splendid hurling

FREDDY GOYER'S NECK IS BROKEN

HAMILTON, Sept. 12. — "Lefty" Goyer, veteran amateur baseball pitcher, who has been playing with the Dundas intermediates this season, is in St. Joseph's Hospital here, suffering from a broken neck, the result of an automobile accident while journeying to Ingersoll on Labor Day Goyer was a passenger, with other members of the Dundas club, in a car which turned over.

At first apparently only slightly hurt examination revealed that the athlete's injuries were very serious, and he was taken to the hospital. The attending physician, Dr. D. M. Livingston of Dundas believes Goyer will recover completely, although it will be necessary to confine him to the hospital for some time.

CANADIAN WON FROM AL SINGER

Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver Boxer Flattened Bronx Scrapper

NEW YORK, Sept. —13—Jimmy McLarnin, the fighting Irishman from Vancouver, knocked out Al Singer of the Bronx, the present lightweight champion, after two minutes 21 seconds of fighting in the third round last night before 25,000 cheering spectators in Yankee Stadium. The gate was estimated at $175,000.

The bout, which had caused so much uncertainty and debate among boxing experts, ended suddenly when McLarnin whipped over a left to the jaw which sent Singer to the canvas for the count of nine toward the end of the third round.

The Bronx boy, flat on h's stomach rolled back and forth in apparent agony and Jimmy turned a handspring when it seemed the count was over. But Singer, glassy-eyed, staggered to his feet and the bout went on. It was only for a moment, however, for the lightweight champion was groggy and McLarnin had only to whip home a right hook to the jaw to put Singer's away for the final count.

For the first two rounds, it was a spirited affair, with Singer handling the more aggressive his heavier opponent. The Vancouver boy weighed 140 pounds to 135 1-2 for the lightweight champion. Age last night handicapped the weight Singer, who was reported to have taken this bout "because I can lick that Irish man" carried the fight to McLarnin with a dash and spirit such as he displayed in winning the title from Sammy Mandell. All little was not involved in the bout, because McLarnin had to come in well over the lightweight limit.

The first round was fairly even, and while Singer never erased confident Irish smile from Jimmy's lips, he did drive home a few blows to the westerner's jaw which kept McLarnin from attacking. In the second session, however, McLarnin started the fight to the lightweight champion and easily earned the honours.

McLarnin's left hook was in good working order, and he landed it repeatedly to Singer's face to drive the Bronx boy to the ropes. Still it looked like anyone's fight when they came out for the third round. Singer attacked with both hands at the start, and then began backing away before the relentless rush of his opponent. In a neutral corner, McLarnin drove a left to the face which set Singer back on his heels.

Jimmy relented with his left, then whipped right and left to the jaw and the head of these blows dropping Singer for a count of nine. The lightweight champion went down to his knees and then to his face rolling back and forth in the rosin. If he really was hurt, and this bout, as so many expected, was not merely put on for the sake of the gate—it is a wonder he got up.

McLarnin thought the bout was over and thereby nearly lost it. Jimmy turned a handspring in the opposite himself to his feet. If Al had noticed his opportunity he might have caught McLarnin unawares and put over a knockout punch of his own. To all appearances, however, Singer was too far gone, and after the Irishman discovered his mistake it took him only a few seconds to hammer home another left hook through his opponents feeble defence and end the bout by a knockout.

For Frost Bites and Chilblains.—Chilblains come from undue exposure to slush and cold and frost-bite from the icy winds of winter. FIFTY DOLLARS A MONTH looks a lot of money to a Boy just starting out on his first job, but he soon finds it "not enough" and looks eagerly for a raise. But at age of 35 he thinks it all right to squander fifty dollars a month.

Around age 50 he begins to figure how much capital he has saved and then realizes that $50.00 a month is a very interest on $10,000, and not to be despised. At 55 or 60 he begins to worry about his old age, and $50.00 a month then seems a lot of money to the "old boy" he will soon become.

A GUARANTEED INCOME FOR LIFE

beginning at age 55, 60 or 65 can be yours. Why not have it? An average deposit of only a few dollars a month can be made to yield $50.00 a month later on.

Think what it would mean to you to be certain of an income right up to the end of life, when 97 per cent. of people in their later years are partially or wholly dependent upon others for support?

THIS COUPON WILL BRING YOU PARTICULARS AND BOOKLET

THE CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, Toronto.

Without obligation on my part please send me Booklet explaining your "Guaranteed Income For Life", and let me know how much I must save each month in order to secure $50.00 a month for life, commencing at age .....

FINAL TOUCHES GIVEN TO CRAFT

Enterprise and Shamrock Return to Water After Hull Cleaning

By Sidney B. Whipple

Newport, R. I., Sept. 12—Shamrock V and Enterprise have had their final scrubbing, sandpapering, polishing and painting. Their sides are as smooth as a mirror, and there isn't a mar, blot or blemish on a single plank or their slippery hulls. This polishing is more important than it sounds. It isn't done for aesthetics alone. One barnacle, or a square inch of marine growth on the hull of a racer might impede her progress. One loose splinter might lose a race. At least, the nautical experts say so.

The two big yachts were hauled up on marine railways for their final scraping. Buny crews with sandpaper rubbed down their sides until they were as smooth as a grand piano. Then they daubed them with special paints in which there is no grit. Then, just to make a good job of it, they sandpapered all the paint off again and did it over. This is the third time the same process has been undertaken since the Shamrock was towed into New London a few weeks ago. Sir Thomas Lipton's paint will be something for many of us to worry about.

The crews and afterguard of the two boats have been more interesting this trip than ever before. Hitherto, it has been customary for each navy to hide away, so to speak in its own scuppers, and repel boarders with muskets and cutlasses, such was the rivalry. This year, however, Mr. Harold Vanderbilt's men and Sir Thomas hired hands have visited each other freely and even inspected each other's racing machines. For a number of days the Shamrock afterguard to go aboard the Enterprise, in other days, would have shocked the delicate sensibilities of the American sportsmen, and the afternoon had tried to step foot on the Shamrock's deks, there would have been grave work done under the flag that bears the blood-red hand as device.

The betting, most of it on paper, appears to favor the Enterprise. The reported odds moved from 8 to 5 up to 2 to 1, and some optimists believe they will be 3 to 1 before the races start Saturday. But there are plenty of so-called experts who are willing to take the short end of the odds if money they have. The real wagers probably will be made with the arrival of the big stock and found men same next year after year.

From Wall Street, most of whom have been following the polo matches this week.

Betting on these races is, after all, like betting on the weather. There is a lot of "if" to it. The wind may blow away many fortunes, and other fortunes may be lost on the doldrums off Breton Reef, if there is such a thing as a good adult doldrum hanging around that part of the ocean.

The preparatory signal will be hoisted at 11.30 a.m. Saturday. The start, provided the under water man is kind, will be at 11.40. .

If Miller's Worm Powders, needed the support of testimonials, they could get by the thousands from mothers who know the great virtue of this excellent medicine. But the powders will speak for themselves and in such a way that there can be no question of them. They act speedily and thoroughly, and the child to whom they are adm nistered will show improvement from the first dose.

From the very earliest times insects have figured conspicuously in the dietary of man.

Ravens pair for life, and use the same nest year after year.

BELLEVILLE WON OVER KINGSTON

Local Women Defeated Kingston First Time This Year

The feminine members of the Belleville Golf Club are in high glee today the result of winning from the Kingston ladies yesterday afternoon on the Belleville course. This is the first time the Kingston members have been defeated this year and some fine scores were turned in to accomplish the feat. The Belleville ladies won by a score of 19 1-2 to 16 1-2 which fully represents the margin of victory. Miss Caroline Mitchell, of Kingston, shot a 46 and 43 for eighteen holes, which is some golfing over the tricky course especially for a woman golfer. Miss Minnes turned in a card of 48 and 50. The local golfers were headed by Mrs. John A. Kerr whose card read 46 and 46 with Mrs. Lionel Train shooting 48 on each round. Miss Ivy Dickens and Mrs. O. H. Scott had identical cards of 46 and 51. The match was played under Canadian Ladies Golf Union rules, which called for match play—one point for each nine holes and one point for total gross.

Early this week Mrs. C. C. Walker and Miss Ivy Dickens played off their tie in the Mitchell club competition with Mrs. Walker winning. It is proposed next Friday to hold the ladies' field day at the club and every member is invited to take part.

The Kingston visitors were entertained at lunch yesterday before the game and tea was served after the match round in the afternoon. Mrs. W. C. Mikel poured and Mrs. (Dr.) J. W. Kinnear served. Following is the score:

DESCENDANT OF SQUIRE IS P. M.

Brantford, Sept. 12—The question of abolition of Magisterial fees discussed at some length at the seventh annual convention of the Ontario Magistrates' Association this afternoon presented practical difficulties to such a degree that it was decided it was opportune of referring the question to the Executive Committee.

Out of more than 180 Magistrates, only 55 were paid by the fee system.

Previous to the discussion on the salary versus fee question, Colonel Boyle had dwelt on the position of the Magistrate. The present-day Magistrate was a descendant of the squire, and ranged from the lord and the Magistracy was ingrained in the British people. Much was left, under the Criminal Code, to his discretion. The Attorney-General's Department desired efficiency, but did not wish to interfere with the work of the Magistrates, although ready to assist whenever needed. He suggested than in cases in which a plea of guilty was entered the Crown Attorney be required to give some evidence, if only a resume of the case, to enable the Magistrate to use his discretion.

Vaccination was used by the natives of South Africa, as a preventive of smallpox, long before the civilized world adopted it.

The Ladies' Aid Society's of St. Ola and Greenbush with the help of other ladies provided the eats and are to be congratulated on the splendid meals they served. Together the picnic was a great success, many wishes being expressed that this be made an annual event.

RAGGED SAILORS

Blue ragged sailors; walks of white-washed seashells;
White-washed jawbone of a whale, trellising a vine,
Bolt'es of pink mallows; tubs of say nasturtiums
And a cool wind blowing in, vigorous with brine.

Blue ragged sailors, dancing in the sea-wind—
Seven sons, sea-borne sons, but never a son at home,
Three in some sea-graveyard, and three who have forgotten,
One, a weakly little lad, who never lived to roam.

Blue ragged sailors! Tears can't last forever,
Peace in sleeping solid thought sarry winds may stir;
Give a sea-wife a cottage and a garden
And she'll be content till God's ship calls for her.

Fashionably Speaking

BY LUCILLE

DEAR READERS:

Warm and glowing are the shades that have captured the foreground in fashions for fall. As always the style hues for autumn copy those of the leaf colourings, the rich fruits and the tawny flowers that make their appearance at this time of year. Thus, the brown, deep or golden, the rich reds and the shades that are grouped under the term "wine" are favourites for fall.

They come to us each season under new and fascinating names, but when one sees them they are easily old friends. Of course, every year sees shades exploited that had never reached the limelight in ages. There was purple. Five years ago, purple was "the colour. Remember the pirate hats of purple velvet, and the purple satin frocks with flaring skirts that purple rather relished into the background, but this Spring it was revived in various shadings among which was English wood violet which was quite popular.

This fall it is the brown, that holds first place, especially for sports or tailored frocks. There is manilla brown, a very dark tone that is doubly rich when it is combined with eggshell satin. Salvador brown in somewhat lighter, verging on the golden shade. Then there is copper glow, a golden red-brown that belongs to those with auburn hair. After brown in importance comes the red of wine tones, followed by the green and blues. Rubytone red is exactly what it promises to be, a rich colour that brightens with candlelight or evening. Blue comes under the smart title of admiralty, following the fad for names nautical. During the summer you know there was every possible variation of blue with such seagoing names as midshipman blue, flagship blue, and navy. If you planned it has risen to the admiralty. Yes, blue is going to be true to the navy, whatever name you look at it.

There is one colour that stands alone in importance, this year and every other year, and that is black. There will never be anything smarter than black unless it is the classic black and white combination. A stylist who visited Belleville not long ago said in the course of her remarks, that with a black lace dress, a gown suit and fine blouses a woman could travel around the world, confident of being stylish and correct. You know yourself, when you want a distinctive gown, one that will give you an air at a formal luncheon or an important tea you invariably think of black. an done good black hat in four ward robe saved many a situation when

The Lovable Fragrance

There is nothing in all the world of beauty that can take the place of the Lovable Fragrance of the Yardley Lavender. Wistful, winsome, caressing—its charm is all its own. Since 1770 it has lent its sweet vivacity to beauty—and consoled with the very breath of peace the weary, the sad, and the sick.

Fashion Flashes

By Alice Allen

Linen weaves itself into the story of the Summer mode. A frock that has attracted tremendous attention has been worn in of dull green linen printed in white flowers and collared and belted with bright red linen. A deft use of dull green buttons on matching red braid lends charm to this frock.

Eat your dinner in pyjamas if you really want to relax. A delightful dinner pyjama suit recently imported is of anti water green blue satin with a rose velvet jacket heavily embroidered in white and rose colored pearls, and tiny gold beads.

Blue as the night are some of the lovely materials used for evening frocks. A simple but beautiful frock is made of night blue heavy georgette. It has a simple bodice and a skirt pleated to the floor under a heavy gold metal belt. It is worn with a cape of transparent velvet lined with the georgette.

We are still in the pink for evening and the combination of admiration accorded a frock of pink taffeta with a deep-pointed hemline outlined with black velvet. It is worn with a wrap of pink velvet with a border of black fox.

Let it rain if you possess one of the very new raincoats. One of the smartest of these is developed in brown patterned poplin and is cut on the regulation military trench coat order. It has a cap to match, also a bucksknock.

Bands are playing a large part in Autumn millinery. A lovely hat is made entirely of bands of turquoise velvet ribbon, heavily shirred. It is set on a band of the velvet with all-ever stitching, and is finished with a tiny self-fabric bow.

W. M. S. Meeting At Shannonville

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville Methodist Church was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Houston on Thursday afternoon, September 4th.

The meeting was opened with the third Group Leader, Mrs. Sam Elliott in charge. After the singing of the first hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" Mrs. Elliott gave the Bible reading from the 35th chapter of Isiah, also the devotional leaflet, "The Way of Holiness" and Mrs. F. Morden led in prayer.

Mrs. Harry Murphy second vice-president then took charge of the business and called for the minutes of the last meeting which were read by the secretary and adopted as read. The Presbyterial, it was decided is to be held in the Tabernacle Church here on October 1st and Mrs. Ross Sheitler was appointed delegate. Mrs. Philip Knight the Mission Band Leader requested all who had books for the autograph quilt to kindly hand in their books in October.

The ladies decided to have a tea at the fair and to ask for two pies from each family. The proceeds were to be used for general purposes of the church. Roll was called by the secretary. A splendid reading was then given by Miss Flake, entitled "A Previous Engagement." Mrs. Harry Sine and Mrs. Will Barnett favored with a duet. Mrs. Robertson gave the Watch Tower report on China. Mrs. Dies read a letter on temperance education and Mrs. F. F. Morden took up the next chapter of the study Book. After the closing hymn all repeated the Mizpah benediction and lunch was served. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Houston for her hospitality.

Lasting Softness* is another feature of this deodorizing sanitary protection

BECAUSE it stays soft ... Stays cool and light, women find Kotex comfortable. There's no doughy surface softness about it. The air-cooled layers of filler keep Kotex comfortable longer.

A special process deodorizes Kotex safely, completely. Keeps one dainty, immediately when that is all-important. Then there are other things: the clever shaping of the pad, for increasing protection under the filmsy frocks. The way you can adjust layers of filler. The fact that it disposes so easily.

Why hospitals use it

Did you know that Kotex filler (Cellucotton—not cotton—absorbent wadding) is used in Canada's leading hospitals? It is preferred by surgeons, even for surgical dressings in the most serious operations. They use it because it is so wonderfully absorbent (5 times more, by test, than the finest cotton); so hygienically safe.

INCONSPICUOUS...

1—Designed to remain soft—stays soft under any gown.

2—Deodorizes—By a special process Kotex conquers safely and thoroughly.

3—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

4—Is disposable. . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in Canada's leading hospitals.

Kotex—10c for 12—at any drug, dry goods or department store.

BRIDGE NO. 2

City council has sometimes the knack of surprising the ratepayers and Wednesday night they did surprise, not when they set about to build a new upper river bridge of reinforced concrete, but when they decided to build it at once, that is this autumn. Ratepayers cannot but admire the decision with which the council adopted the report of Messrs. Gore, Nasmith and Storrie following upon the Sedgwick finding. Proof of their conviction in this regard was given in the determination to go ahead with the project right away, not waiting for the spring to begin operations. This latter step was taken though the last report did not favor construction in the autumn season. Members of the council seem satisfied, however, that the work can be carried on expediously and completed before winter's rigor sets in.

Though some say that the present bridge might stand for some years without accident, no one can say anything about it but that it is old and in a rather broken-down state unfit for traffic. No engineer would say when its collapse would take place, but it is the duty of councils to forestal such an event, not by the "narrow skin" of their teeth by a month or two with all the chances that this would mean, but by the margin of safety required by the traffic passing over this structure.

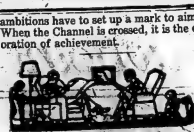
MAJOR BURWASH AND ALBERT

Major L. T. Burwash who has been featured in despatches and radio messages from the Arctic area and is known as Canada's greatest Arctic explorer has brought fame to Albert College where, over thirty years ago, he studied and played. Lockie then went to Victoria College of which his father, Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Burwash was chancellor, and there he kept up the associations with Albert College graduates.

Those who know the major and who knew his sainted father realize the sterling character of this family. Major Burwash was one of the most lovable of men, whose impress was left for all time on thousands of young students of Victoria. This quiet lovable man was the father of the dauntless explorer, a man who includes in his makeup keenness of intellect and intuition, zeal and precision.

The fields in which the father and son have worked were different and yet they call for much the same qualities.

The world of science and exploration yet provides romance enough for the most daring of Canadians. In this family two fields of human effort are brought together and linked up for human service. Some might think that exploration is too great a risk for the results but the principles which guide life do not ordain so, otherwise men would not be fired with the zeal of a Columbus and a Burwash. It was in the nature of events and human effort that Columbus or some one else should discover America. Life demands that the hidden places be opened up. To that Franklin fell a sacrifice, as did Andree.



At short time ago Albert College memorialized the men who have served in foreign fields of missions and on the home field. Amazing work of service has been done by other Albert College students and graduates and among them Major Lockie Burwash will not be the least in other fields of effort. The world needs the missionary, it needs the explorer, as it needs men in many other fields of endeavor.

Students who knew Burwash at Albert and Victoria expected something of him, but he has excelled expectations.

SWIMMERS' STANDARD

The fact that Leander swam the Hellespont in ancient days did not prevent Lord Byron swimming the same channel known now as the Dardanelles in somewhat recent days. The fact that Gertrude Ederie swam the English Channel and that others did so has not prevented a buxom South African girl, Peggy Duncan, from swimming the same body of water.

The Channel is today the standard of achievement for swimmers. It is the modern marathon. Swimmers like all other folk who possesses marked merit or ambitions have to set up a mark to aim at. When the Channel is crossed, it is the decoration of achievement.

ILLNESS IN SUMMER

Oh, to be patient while the days
Go by, all filled with sun,
Lacking neither men's love nor praise,
And I'm the only one.

Shut in a melancholy room,
Without the strength to care
What new plants come into bloom,
Or what wings beat the air.

Weakness is on me like a blight
Pain like a wretched flaw;
Lying and waiting for the sight
To see, as once I saw.

Oh, to be patient while the sun
Fills all the Summer days,
And I remain the only one
With neither love nor praise.

—Helene Mullins.

CONRAD AND THE COAMO

One bright spot in the dark tragedy of the Santa Domingo disaster is the escape of the little steamer Coamo from foundering in the hurricane. It was, so to speak, a defense by means of spirited attack. Lacking sea-room to manoeuvre around the hurricane, Captain Evans laid his course directly through the "eye."

A sailing ship would have had little chance to come through such an ordeal afloat, although there are authentic instances of skippers who hove-to when caught in such a predicament and by keeping head-to-gale survived the centripetal power of the wind. Powered vessels can accept the gage of battle with greater equanimity. But given an opportunity for that "storm strategy" of which Conrad's Captain MacWhirr was so magnificently disdainful, a prudent master will give a hurricane the widest possible berth.

Many who read of the Coamo's adventure must have turned to renew their acquaintance with "Typhoon." Never himself caught in a hurricane, Conrad was, nevertheless, because of his vast knowledge of the sea, able to construct from the experience of a fellow-captain one of the most vivid of his tales. Substitute the Nan-Shan for the Coamo and the pictures would be interchangeable:

"The running wall of water raced to meet the ship and, with a pause, as of girding the loins, she lifted her bows and leaped. She had not leaped quite far enough, for with a tearing crash and a swirling raving tumult, tons of water fell over her deck as though she had darted under the very foot of a cataract. * * * Th ship was cut off from the peace of the earth. The wall rose high, with smoky drifts issuing from the inky edges that frowned upon the ship under the patch of glittering sky."

LAST LIVERY STABLE in Belleville has vanished and the stalls and feed boxes have been scrapped to make room for gas tanks and oil receptacles. Orr's livery stable on Front street, for years a popular livery stable, and the last of its kind in this city, has been levelled to the ground and a new service station will be erected on the site. Remember when you used to take your girl out for a buggy ride, when a drive to Trenton was the real thing, and used up a whole afternoon? We'd just go joggin' along, and it was easier to drive with one hand then than it is now with the modern gasolene propelled vehicles.

RADIO'S NEWEST MIRACLE
PHILCO TONE-CONTROL
Philco Tone-Control
THIS newest achievement is another stride forward in Philco's steady march to the highest levels of wonderful radio performance. Years ahead of the industry, Philco balanced unity created the pure, true, individual tone which lifted Philco to outstanding leadership in 1929.
But never before has anything been done to improve the tone sent you from the radio station. How well you know that even on local stations you like the character of tone from one station better than another. How often have you wanted to listen to some fine programs but were discouraged because of the quality of the reception.
At last you can have your favorite dance orchestra the way you like it—classical music, great singers; famous artists can be heard the way YOU have always hoped to hear them; speaking voices, momentous messages from our public men, can be brought in with a realism only equalled by their actual presence. And finally, for radio stations which come in hazily or accompanied by crackles and hisses from interfering electrical apparatus in your particular section, you can subdue the stridency and noise and enjoy many additional fine programs.
These things are made possible by this newest miracle of radio which has been named the Philco Tone-Control. Its four settings of tone quality—"brilliant"—"bright"—"mellow"—"full-toned"—open up new vistas of radio enjoyment. Philco Tone-Control is built in all the new Philco Screen Grid and Screen Grid Plus Radios.
Each and every Philco balanced unit which produces the true, clear, undistorted, Philco tone—new, exclusive circuits of great selectivity and remarkable sensitivity—wonderful distance range and power—reduction of static and background noises—new, improved electrodynamic speaker, and a new, Station Recording Dial on which you can permanently log your favorite stations.
The Philco Screen Grid Plus has, in addition, Automatic Volume Control, which counteracts fading, so you can not only get but hold and enjoy out of town programs, near and far. It has built-in aerial and conversion power—a super-radio for those who want extra performance.
These new instruments are housed in beautiful cabinets—furniture of which you can be proud; priced from $145.00 to $290.00. (less tubes). Ask your nearest Philco dealer for a free demonstration of Philco Tone-Control today. No obligation, of course, and easy terms when you decide to buy.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

She'd have to stop dragging them down with her....Ma....Ma would keep on, nothing could stop her. She was lost. Lost because Cathie was her child, and she was an old-fashioned loving mother....But there might be some way of saving Gordon.

ANOTHER GIRL

Maybe the blind aunt could think of a way ....She could ask her to call it the jail.....The blind aunt was so wise....She'd know some way to persuade Gordon to forget....get an older girl....You shouldn't let a man ruin his life for you, even if he does love you ....and you love him.....

Maybe if he'd get interested in astrology girl.....that Mrs. Willoughby.... No, not Mrs. Willoughby....she's too cold and calculating. She'd never really make him happy.... And not a girl, like Mary Darrow either .... She has such a mean, hard streak.... It would have to be someone else.... someone who'd really understand and appreciate him....The blind aunt would think of someone, probably....

And at the thought of the blind girl Miss Maude Moore would find for him Cathie pressed her face into the pillow and cried quietly, so that no one would hear. She didn't want to disturb the other woman in the jail.

Towards morning she, awoke. LAY awake listening....straining her nerve to hear the strange night noises ....Nothing to be afraid of, of course. You're sweet as in a pill....jail, sanitary ....footsteps sounding way off somewhere....feet ringing on cement floors ....slowly sounding, those footsteps ....Was somebody coming? No, only jailer making the rounds.... Nothing to be afraid of!....Locked in a cell! A cell that how many wretched woman have been locked in? Maybe they lay awake nights, afraid too.... all those other women who were once in this cell .....

CELL COMPANIONS

That's all some noise....scratchy ....Mice! What are those other things ....cockroaches! Maybe they have them in San Quentin....it's too clean and modern here to have anything like that....It's just imagination, thinking you hear scratching noises.... no, it isn't ....something IS scratching ....oh, it is, it is!

No, it's nothing....but that wailing down the corridor is awful....wonder what's the matter? Why don't they do something for that woman? Maybe she's sick ....That's the matron stopping....no, it went on....

This is like the nights in the Farnworth house....hideous nights they were....queer shoot houses....some make you feel all peaceful and safe and others....others don't ....

In the house on Clare ... street the night noises were all nice ones ....comforting, human-sounding ones. Through the partition you could hear the springs squeak as Ma turned over in bed....you could listen and hear little Jean's soft, regular breathing. And if there was a scratching at your window you could call, very very softly, "Here, kitty, come puss!" and the Hennessey black Genevieve would leap on the sill and sit there, purring loudly, waiting to be invited to come in and curl up on the quilt beside you

Even jail is better than the house on Prestidio Terrace....Mr. Farnworth's house....

DREARY PRISON

You never heard any comforting human noises there. Sometimes it was as quiet as a tomb....not even a sound from the street.....Never a frog or a cricket in the garden....never a fat, lilac, comfortable sound ....just silence and the creaking, sighing noises there were the voices of the house, that came out of the wood....and sometimes the stealthy patter of foot steps in the halls....footsteps that stopped when you listened, and melted away into nothing.... and towards dawn the rain sometimes, pelting down directly.... a gray accompaniment to the distant, squeaky melody of a Chinese flute. .....

No wonder Mr. Farnworth was killed in the night....a lot went on in that house in the dark, if you only knew what it was....those footsteps belonged to somebody ..... somebody who knew secret hiding places.

Cathie's teeth began to chatter, her heart to thud....wonder she wasn't chilled too.... wonder they weren't all found dead....

There she was, thinking about herself again..... when poor Mr. Farnworth was dead and buried, and God doesn't heart was just about broken, and Ma....Ma....

SOBS IN NIGHT

But when she thought about Ma, sinking down into a heap on that scarroom floor, what was left of her self-control snapped.... She bit into the pillow to stifle the sobs she could not keep back, and it didn't do any good, she could hear herself crying.... crying out loud, crying unaccountably ....just one poor woman weeping in the night, in a cell.

She was too sick to see Gordon when he came early in the morning. But the matron helped her make her self presentable about noon, and she went into the visitors' room to talk to him for a few moments, a washed-out wraith of a girl with black-circled eyes, and mourning that hung on her dejectedly.

"Well, another day and we ought to have something," he said with false heartiness.

She laid her pale cheek next to his. "Don't mind too much, dear ....I don't....no."

SENTENCE NEAR

And unexpectedly, she broke down and wept again.

She was thinking of Friday....day after tomorrow....the day they were going to sentence her ....and the court....and she too sick to come and sit beside her.....

Cliffe Evans motioned for him to go.

Towards evening Cheong came.

He wore his black coat, and the old flat derby hat, and his blind Oriental face was as expressionless as ever.

From an inner pocket he brought out a screw of brown paper, unwound it carefully, and presented her with a half a dozen stalks of pungent Chinalilies.

"Mr. Moore thinks they'll have Marguerite by tomorrow," she told him. It was suddenly easy to talk Cheong was, somehow, so much like a child—too bad she hadn't known it before.... in the lonely days in the house ....he could have helped....She knew it now.....

"Mr. Moore is very wise," the old Chinaman said softly.

"You think they'll find her, Cheong?

"Of a certainty."

"But Cheong, why did she go away like that? She was always so kind and I needed bty so—"

"There are things past human understanding."

"I know, but if I could just believe!

"You will believe. You who are young in the springtime of life. You will be happy again. Before the green hills turn brown under the summer sun you will have forgotten——" he swept the small room with yellow hand ....much!

GOOD AND EVIL

"Not if I'm still here—" Cathie said tremulously. The tears of weakness stood in her eyes, but she managed to smile as she said it. ....Hope....Hope newborn and weak, but Hope, was in her grain.....

The old Chinaman was talking.... "Things are neither good nor evil it be only their uses that have these proper ties. Good things may be the cause of evil. The child becomes ill of eating sweets, the old man who stays wrinkling the full moon through the pine branches contracts rheumatism. The beautiful fountain attracts mosquitoes.

"Evil things may do good, foul poisons kill foder vermin, carrion birds and maggots keep the world clean of offal. Death may prevent misery. Pity puts things to strange uses. In an humble way the wise man may emulate fate.

"The physician uses the dried blood of spiders to cure fevers. He uses opium and morphine to prevent pain and shorten misery. The wise man may imitate the malice of fools in order that good many come."

Bad Indigestion and Constipation Disappear Quick

Get "Fruit-a-tives" from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow.

The voice of the old Chinaman died away. Cathie had the feeling that he had forgotten her, that he was talking to himself.

"Goodbye Catherine Farnsworth," he said suddenly, bowing himself away.

"Goodbye Cheong."

Before the green hills turn brown under the summer sun " ....Maybe it was silly to believe it.... but she did.... don't....no."

SENTENCE NEAR

While the night lights still burned in the corridors, and the hush of the night still hung over the jail, a strange matron came to bid Cathie get up.

"Put on your clothes quickly, and get into the visitors' room, Mrs. Farnsworth. Your counsel, Mr. Moore, and some others are waiting."

"Did—did something happen?"

"We don't ask me. Just get dressed."

So Cathie dressed, with fingers that were all thumbs. She was choking with nervousness, and a half crazy certainty that the Chinaman's veiled predictions had all come true overnight, and God-don had come to take her away.

When she saw him, pale as death, his dark hair all tumbled, his eyes burning, her self-control began to trend!.

Oh Gordon—tell me—tell me—"

SLAYER CAUGHT

"They've got the murderer. The Spinney woman!" Mr. Allan shouted, pounding the table in his excitement. "Splendid confession!" somegdy else shouted.

"It was Marguerite. Think of it, Mr. Sheffie all the time," Gordon cried.

Cathie sat down suddenly. Her knees. They were doubling up, the way they did in the courtroom.....

The men went on talking. Clotting over it. Marguerite Spinney a good night's work.... lucky break for Mr. Farnsworth.... clears her all right!

"It was what I looked for from the first," Inspector Bidwell was saying. "What YOU looked for....You!" Inspector Horgan had to laugh. "Ha, ha —what you said! That's good. You, You was the last I remember, when I said that was my theory that the idea was lousy!"

"Here is your own way. You will anyhow," said Inspector Bidwell, with dignity.

IDEAS ARE RARE

"Listen to the flatfeet stepping on each other's bunions," Jesse Allan chuckled, so far forgetting as to slap Cathie on the back. "Neither one of them ever had an idea. It was my theory—worked out with the aid of my good friend Moore—"

"And our good friend, Cheong," Gordon put in rather curtly.

Cathie whispered, "Marguerite.... You say it was Marguerite.... confessed to killing Mr. Farnsworth!"

"Yes, Marguerite Spinney, Cathie, I'll admit it's kind of a shock.... I want a drink of water, honey?.... Cathie, don't please don't look that way! Why you should be happy. It clears you, darling. It makes you a free woman."

Cathie tried to speak, gave up.

"Don't take it so hard," Gordon begged. "When you understand why, it will make so many things clear.... Don't cry, Cathie, it's all over. You can't ring him back.... you can't undo the past....oh, Cathie, dear—don't feel so bad!"

"That's not it," she said in a small, strangled voice, "I'm just being selfish, that's all. I'm crying because I thought it was all over, and it's not—"

MURDERESS DEAD

"Why the new trial will be nothing. They may not even have it. With you cleared, and the Spinney woman dead—"

"Dead——Marguerite, dead....too? Oh, Mr. Allan—it's just—too much.."

"No listen! Listen to me, Mrs. Farnsworth. My God if you all keep on talking, how can I tell her? The girl does not even know what's happened yet. Listen. This Spinney woman confessed see? And then she committed suicide. See? We found her—traced her over to a rooming house—"

"Let me tell her, Darling, it was Marguerite. She shot Mr. Farnworth That was why she escaped—afraid of the cross-questioning. She hid in the rooming-house, and waited to see how it came out. If they had acquitted Mr. Farnsworth she'd never have confessed, But rather than see you—"

COP DISGUSTED

"That's it. Rather than have me sentenced she took it on herself, No—no, don't stop me, Gordon, I know. If couldn't have been Marguerite. She wouldn't have left a note behind her. this if she did it herself. No—it could not be—"

"But she confessed!" Mr. Allan cried, saving the paper in his hand "She confessed!"

"Stopped, she did!" Cathie cried. "what does that prove? Oh, it's no good, I tell you. Just throw your paper away—you're only wasting time. The real murderer is dead. Marguerite's dead, and I'm in jail—"

"Cathie, when you hear the confession—listen, dear—"

"If you didn't fly off the handle, madam, you'd be better off! Inspector Bidwell was disgusted and didn't care who knew it.

"Listen to me!" Mr. Allan put up his hand. He began to read, in a clear, ringing voice

"To whom it may concern:

"I, Marguerite Spinney, confess that I, and I alone, killed Mr. Farnsworth, on the 19th of April, a little after twelve o'clock, in his house, 2870 Presidio Avenue. No one's accomplices nobody knew it but me.

"First I thought I would kill Chesher. Chesher owes me a lot of money Then I thought I would take the old first, and him next. But now I know I can't do either one. I hope he gets what is coming to him. I wish I had of begun with Chester, but now it's too late.

"I killed Alfred Farnsworth because he deserved it anyway, all the Farnworth men are rotten, and because if I didn't he would have murdered his self lying son and turned Catherine Farnworth out. She was not the kind to cope with the Farnsworth men.

"Alfred Farnsworth was cruel to my mother, like his father was before him, and cruel to me and I started starting to be cruel to Catherine, his second wife. He ruined my life, and he was starting to ruin hers. So I nipped it. I took his gun and shot him when he was asleep. I never hurt him. He did not wake up.

SUNDAY A BIG DAY AT MADOC

All the Churches in the Community Are Active

Madoc, Sept. 7 By Mail—A bright autumn Sunday brought good congregations to all the churches of the Community on Sunday, the last.

At the United Church services were commenced by Sunday School and Bible Classes at 10 o'clock, and Public Worship at eleven o'clock, which were taken by the pastor, Rev. H. W. Rivers, who followed up his introductory address on the Apostle's Creed, by taking as his subject, "The First Article of the Apostles' Creed." The subject for the evening service at seven o'clock was "A Strong Man."

At St. Peter's Presbyterian church services were as usual beginning with Sunday school and Bible class at ten o'clock. The subject for the morning service was "The faithful and the faithless" and the evening's subject was "A great contest".

At the church of St. John the Baptist, Anglican, Sunday school was held as usual at ten o'clock, the subject taken by Rev. P. Oatley Reynolds being "The work of the Spirit" from the text St. John's Gospel 3:8. "The wind bloweth where it listeth and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." At seven p.m. there was Evensong and sermon.

At Sacred Heart Church, Roman Catholic, morning service was at 11 a.m., with the celebration of Mass.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock the I.O.O.F. and Rebekah order assembled Divine service at Trinity United Church after which they marched to Lakeview Cemetery where they decorated the graves of deceased members. About eighty members were in attendance, and music was furnished by Marmora Community Band.

Visiting members were present from Marmora, Tweed, Stirling, Thomasburg, Springbrook, and members of the Canton in Belleville.

The marital aire played by the Marmora band the members marched to the church where they were joined by the Rebekahs, and all marched into the church to the processional of the pipe organ played by Miss L. M. Ramsay. "Stand up, and bless the Lord," sung as the opening hymn followed by the Lord's prayer in unison, and the 41st Psalm responsively.

Scripture lessons followed, taken from the eighteenth chapter of First Samuel, and prvr of the first chapter of Second Samuel, David's love for Jonathan, and his Lament. Prayer was offered by the pastor. The choir's selection was "All Hail," with Mesdames Hulin, Moon, Whytock, Reed, Wellman, Parks, and Embury, and Messrs. Wellman, Sills and Hawthorne in the choir.

During the Offertory, the organist played "Melody in F," by Rockwell. The sermon was preceded by the first hymn "Oh death long who liveth well."

After a brief welcome to the assembled Oddfellows and Rebekahs, the Rev. Mr Rivers introduced his theme, taking as his text Proverbs 18 24: "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly;" and "There is a friend that sticketh closer than

Jasper B. Sinclair

It never would have happened if Bean's Thin spoon had not been so curious. All his life he had been blessed with a desire to investigate the inner workings of anything and everything with which he came in contact.

Sometimes the results were disastrous. That time, for instance, when he sneaked into the remount station among the mules and—but that's another story, and Beans doesn't relish the thought of how those mules can kick!

The outfit was sitting pretty in reserve, pretty because we were, pretty to reserve and get up in the front lines. Otherwise, it wasn't so comfortable.

Every once in a while the Germans dropped a shell in among us just to remind the boys that there was a war in progress.

Beans and I had drifted back to the kitchens one day. Alongside the cook stove stood two gleaming baby tanks, just brought up so the front. Some bird had left them in the open, a fine mark for the German artillery once they had the wind of them being there.

Beans looked at them intently a few minutes, a queer look in his eyes. I knew he was getting curious. And if I had acted on first impulse I'd have seen it back to the outfit leaving Beans to his own desires. But I stuck with him.

"Look, Shorty!" he exclaimed. "Want to take a little joy ride?"

"Forget it, Beans," I retorted. "You'll get twenty years in the brig if you touch one of those things."

"Aw, come on!" pleaded Beans. "A little ride won't do us any harm. I'm tired of walking all over France."

"Well, Beans—"

He looked reproachful. "If you don't want to come along say so, but I'm going!"

"Listen, Beans—"

"Don't be a brother." Friends, he said, may be helpful, but soon we are much better without. We call many friends, but the title is often granted carelessly. The term is worthy of a much more careful use.

Considering how to get friends, some may say, Get rich, for the rich have many friends. Some say give gifts, and the generous giver expects to have many friends, but to show himself friendly is a very sure way to have good friends.

A true friend does not change with adversity. Dimwitted dishonor will not change him, and even though we fall into sin, a friend will stay close to help to try to save. Friendship is elevated by Piety — and tested by Adversity.

Quoting Shakespeare and other writers, Mr. Rivers showed the great value of a true friend, and the harm of a false friend. False friends are flatterers and imitators, as in the case of Job. The value of a great friendship was shown in the case of Jesus and David.

Mr. Elliott's "Bliss Marmer." — Ruth and Naomi,—and David and Jonathan.

Jesus' friendship is important, and even the friends of Jesus "forsook Him and fled." Jesus is the only true friend, "O, how He loves."

The secret of true friendship is love.

Brotherhood is a stronger tie than friendship, but some brothers are unnatural as Cain and Abel. Others are truly helpful, as Andrew and Peter, James and John. Jesus sticketh closer than a brother. He enters into our hears and our life. He is closer in knowledge, sympathy, and patience. His is always the same, and ever liveth. He sticketh closer.

After prayer, a beautiful quartette was rendered by Mrs. Hulin, Mrs. Whytock, R. Wellman and W. Hawthorne, "The Old Rugged Cross." The hymn "On there is above all others," wvs followed by the Benediction.

The members of the orders then proceeded to the cemetery for the decoration of the graves. Along the line of march on East St., Lawrence Street, stands the war memorial, and halting there, a beautiful wreath was placed in loving remembrance of "Our Boys" who fell in the Great War.

Arrived at the cemetery the members of Madoc Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 179, decorated the graves of deceased brothers, and the members of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge those of the sisters deceased. In all about forty-seven graves were remembered while selections were played by the Marmora band, and about fifteen members who were buried elsewhere.

The band and lodges marched back to the lodge rooms to the music of the band before dismissing.

And I knew he would. So we clambered through the narrow opening and clanging the steel door shut behind us. The cooks were busy and there, didn't seem to be anyone else trying to stop us.

"I used to drive a tractor a bit on the farm," declared Beans, climbing up into the driver's iron seat. "Are you always had a hankering to try out one of these blasted things."

He was fingering with the levers and other gadgets while he spoke. Suddenly the machine emitted a throaty growl and leaped forward with a lurch that threw us both out of the iron saddles.

Beans recovered his balance first. "Drive around it, Beans," I yelled, above the infernal clatter of the machine. "It'll stall us sure!"

Beans heeded his disdain, but said nothing. For a while I watched the tank march right into the tree, push it over waddle proudly over trunk and branches.

"See, what did I tell you?" roared Beans.

Uphill and down into rain-washed gullies the tank clambered and slid, daunted by none of the obstacles in the path.A bit of stone wall that had escaped artillery fire, looming ahead of us.

"Watch us make a gap through it!" Beans' eyes were shining.

Apparently we were futile, so I said nothing. In a couple of minutes the tank leaned against the stone wall, stopped, like a horse bending to a heavy load, squeezed out the stones and marching over the debris.

"Beans, look!"

Beans looked, and for once his face blanched, despite the dirt and grime accumulated on it from the roaring battle.

We were passing our front line trenches. In the excitement of knocking over trees and stone walls we had passed our own outfit without observing it.

Beans lit quick, Beans, or turn the blamed thing around!" I yelled.

"I can't stop it!" Beans was frantic, jerking at every lever he could see. His efforts only served to increase the speed of the snorting monster.

"Sorry, Shorty," he yelled, "but we're headed straight for Berlin! It's goodby France, Hello Germany!"

"Yeah!" I could think of nothing else to say, which Beans knew I was plenty. But it didn't do any good.

Over we went! A bunch of doughboys were yelling at us, but they might have saved their breath. Several Pershing himself couldn't have stopped the mad flight of the tank.

It bored down into a shell hole, came up the other side and Beans, smirch across no man's land. Above the din of the engine we heard the clatter of machine guns. Bullets splashed harmlessly against the iron sides of the tank.

Sharpnel burst to right and left of us, but the tank was lurching from side to side like a drunken man. Beans couldn't have steered a better zig-zag course if he was doing it on purpose.

Up a sloping incline the tank bearedd, gray-green figures looming ahead of us. Bullets were still pinging against its sides.

Beans-Bert was fingering the machine gun that pointed its blunt nose through a narrow slit. I pressed the trigger myself. No sooner than I did, the gray-green figures ahead of us melted instantly.

"Atta stuff, Shorty!" yelled Beans. "Aw, tend to your own knitting!" I yelled back.

The lumbering land cruiser gained the top of the rise and smashed into a machine gun nest. There was a sickening sound of metal and concrete being crushed into the earth. The gunners fled frantically, only to be dropped by the chattering bullets that streamed through the slit in side of the tank.

Another nest behind the first succumbed to our lurching tank, then it turned around at right angles and began marching down the line of foxholes" that paralleled the machine gun emplacements.

Gray-green figures were fleeing before our mad advance. Beans laughed—he was still enjoying the madness.

But his joy was short-lived. We were broadside on to the German artillery when the first shell struck. Blery. A couple of shells landed nearby, shaking the earth and bouncing us about in the smoke and outilled tank.

A third shell plowed into the ground in front of the tank's nose. There was a deafening roar, a sheet of flame, and the tank seemed to fall on top of us as everything went black and still.

I was lying on a white cot when I opened my eyes. Twisting my head around I saw Beans lying alongside of me. Someone was talking to him.

"The colonel, himself!" I murmured. "Poor Beans, now he's in for it! For the colonel doesn't get bets a partner in crime with Beans Thompson.

Then I caught what the colonel was saying:

"It was a foolhardy stunt, Thompson but we'd never have been able to take that town without considerable loss of life if it hadn't been for your pluck! Those machine guns had been bothering us for some time."

Beans was smiling, in that satisfied way of his. As much as to say that nothing bad turned out just the way he expected.

"And as far as stealing government property goes," continued the colonel with a twinkle in his eye, "I guess we can forget that under the circumstances. I've cited both you men for medals and I'm recommending you for a leave. We can settle how interested or obtainable your case or how often you visit the village. Ambulance will quickly relieve you, usually in ten seconds but always within fifteen minutes."

Record of Building for Past Three Years

Cost of Filter and Lower Bridge Not Yet Added

27 RESIDENCES

Trend Towards Smaller Residences—Building In 1930 is $109,865

The year of 1930 will have to make a big spurt if it wants to catch up to the records of 1928 and 1929 build ing records at the city hall show. For instance, in 1928 the total cost of construction, irrespective of alterations and improvements, came to $213,000.00. In 1929 the total construction came to $426,225.00. Up to and including July of this year $89,- 225.00 has been spent. When alterations and improvements are added on to this a grand total of $109,865 is reached.

The cost of the erection of the filtration plant and the cost of the new lower bridge have not been added in as yet, the city engineer's office stating that the actual cost of these two structures has not been estimated so far. Of course, it is not known just how much the filtration plant will cost until it is finished.

Few houses records show, that have been built in the last two years have cost any more than $5000.00. The modern trend seems to be for the smaller, compact and cheaper homes.

As a matter of fact, there are few vacant houses in the city today. Here are a few of the statistics, gleaned from the City Engineer's office:

Year 1928

Twenty-nine (29) residences were built at a total cost of $67,550.00. Nine ty-five percent of these were built at a cost of less than $5000.00. There were 19 apartment houses built.

Public buildings, theatres, schools, churches, etc., built three (3) at a cost of $15,500.00

Stores and offices built, one (1) at a cost of $4700.00.

Factories and warehouses built, seven (7) at a cost of $83,420.00.

Public garages, service stations, etc. eight (8) at a cost of $43,150.00.

Total construction $213,800.00.

Year 1929

Thirty-six residences were built. One terrace was altered into an apartment building. The total cost of the residences came to $100,850.00. Only one house cost more than $5000 to build, and that cost $6500.00, erected in February.

Public buildings, theatres, schools, churches, etc. built, two (2) at a cost of $235,000.00.

Stores and office built, three (3) at a cost of $4,800.00

Factories and warehouses built, seven (7) at a cost of $2,650.00.

Public garages, service stations, etc. three (3) $3,125.00.

Total construction for the year, $426,225.00.

Year 1930 Including July

Twenty-seven residences have been erected or are in course of construction have been built. Cost of residences totals $82,250.00. No house cost more than $5000.00 to build.

Public buildings, theatres, schools, churches, two (2) at a cost of $8500.00.

Stores and offices, two (2) at a cost of $400.00.

No factories, warehouses, public garages, service stations have been built to date.

Total value of construction $49,225. 00. Grand total for year, including alterations and improvements $109, 865.00.

The total value of building and additions and alterations in 1927 was $670,010.00.

In the process of construction in Belleville and district or about to be constructed are the Trenton Air camp a new cement bridge and the filtration plant.

Rain Needed For Buckwheat Crop

Rain is badly needed in order to sustain the buckwheat crop which is suffering from lack of moisture, according to farmers. The corn is also dried up although the crop is mostly harvested. The market square presented a busy scene this morning with a large attendance of buyers and vendors. Tempting green pears were easily disposed of by the farmers and mildly housewife will be engaged in canning each week. Tomatoes were slightly reduced in price, today selling for twenty cents a peck while cucumbers around fifty for the same quantity.

The tomato vines are commencing to dry up and one prominent producer states that the crop is small compared with other years. Potatoes in large quantities were available and sold at $1.00 a bushel. The muskmelon production has fallen off and there is hardly a sufficient crop to satisfy the demand. Eggs sold at thirty cents while butter found a ready market at seventy-five cents a roll. Onions sold for fifty cents a peck.

Foreman of Storage Charged over Liquor

Charles W. Buker, Defendant, Sequel of Liquor Seizure

INSPECTOR'S STORY

Evidence of Unloading and of Conversation With Buker

Another angle of the seizure of beer made by the Provincial Police on June 19th last was opened in police court today when Charles W. Buker, foreman of the Graham Cold Storage, was charged with having liquor "illegally not having the permission of the L. C. Board he did have liquor within the Province of Ontario other than native wine not purchased from a Government vendor or from a physician". The Crown Attorney D. E. Donnan prosecuted and Charles A. Payne conducted the defense. After all the evidence had been adduced the counsel for the defense asked for a remand until Tuesday next for argument and decision and this request was granted by the court.

Story of Seizure

Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the Provincial Police was the only witness called for the prosecution and stated under oath there were two loads of alleged canned goods, which was afterwards analyzed as beer seized on the date of June 19th. The cars contained 960 cartons in each car. Asked by Mr. Donnan if he had any conversation with Mr. Buker on that day the Inspector answered in the affirmative. "I asked him" said the Inspector, "if he knew what the men had unloaded into the storage and he answered 'yes' and later I ordered Constable Hammer to take him to the office of the Crown Attorney, where a statement was received." Mr. Payne cross examining for defense asked.

"Who unloaded the cars?"

"Fred Smith, the carter."

"While the unloading took place did you see Buker?"

"No".

"When did you know that the cars were in Belleville?"

"In the morning before the cars were unloaded."

"And any of the beer been unloaded before the officers arrived?"

"None and I was across the street and watched the unloading process."

"Did you know there was beer in the cars before they were unloaded."

"Yes I had the bills of lading."

"Was it sealed while in the cars?"

"No, I did not think I was justifiable

Bridge Work Only For Local Men

"Men from outside the city are applying for jobs on the new upper bridge which we shall build as speedily as possible," said Mayor Reid today, "and I would like to state through the press that no outsider need apply for a position on this construction work as Belleville has its own cases to attend to. Not only will only Belleville men be employed but we are going to give the preference to married men."

Atalanta Raced for Cup in 1882

The brilliant spectacle of the yacht races for the America's Cup in the Atlantic ocean off Newport, Rhode Island today recalls the fact that Belleville was once represented by a boat in that same race. The race holds many happy memories although it is not believed that any of those taking part in that contest are still alive.

The Atalanta left Belleville early in the summer of 1882 amid colourful scenes. The craft, built along trim, beautiful lines was one of the fleetest boats to sail Canadian waters. It was designed and built by Captain Alexander Cuthbert of Cobourg and Trenton and some time was occupied in completing the boat on the east side of the Moira near Allen's coal docks.

Poor ballast in the form of iron ore was attributed for the defeat of the speedy craft at the hands of "The Minchin", the American-owned boat. It was contended that lead should have been used. The Atalanta was in New York for two years before she was nosed back into Belleville harbour.

After the return from New York Captain Cuthbert took the craft to Chicago, where she was an easy winner in the Fisher Cup races. Wm. "Ring" Rogers, 312 Bleecker street, a retired Grand Trunk engineer, is the only living member of that crew and he cherishes fond memories of the happy days spent aboard the Atalanta. He is still as keen a yachtsman as ever. "Billy" Haslip who left Belleville many years ago to take up his residence in Hamilton was also aboard during the Fisher Cup races. Hugh Thompson was another member.

The boat was later rebuilt and served for commercial purposes on the great lakes. She had no peer insofar as speed in fresh water was concerned.

Momentous Week Awaits House Over Customs and Unemployment

Ottawa, Sept. 13 (CP)—After a strenuous week of discussing legislation designed to ease unemployment conditions in Canada, Parliament today will take a holiday.

When the Commons open again on Monday afternoon, it will discuss government resolutions recommending changes in the provisions of the Customs Act under which the Minister of National Revenue has the power to set values for duty purposes on certain commodities. If progress is made on this resolution the government intends introducing its proposed changes in the tariff and from that will revert back to the bill setting up an unemployment relief fund of $20,000,000.

George Morton, North Front St., Victim of Peculiar Accident

MOTORCYCLE IN IT

Hits Truck While Driver is Helping Driver of Another Truck

George Morton, 24 North Front St. a member of the Dock-Ocia staff received injuries last night on the Wooler-Trenton road which will result in his being confined to the general hospital here for some weeks. He is suffering from a fractured leg as well as severe bruises and lacerations about the body. His condition is not considered dangerous and reports from institution this morning, stated that he spent a comfortable night. He is being attended by Dr. Farley of Trenton.

It appears that Morton had called at Wooler Pete for some empty crates and was proceeding toward Trenton when he noticed a truck parked with tire trouble. As it was one of his customers he stopped and played his lights on the other motor to assist to facilitate the work. A motorcycle driven by a man, whose name was not obtained, crashed the rear end of the Dock Ocia truck, pinning Morton between the two vehicles. He was violently hurled to the ground and was found to be badly hurt. The injured driver was taken to Dr. Farley's surgery and brought to Belleville in the ambulance.

It is understood that charges may possibly be laid against the driver of the motorcycle. The injured man was formerly cashier at the local Dock Ocia branch.

BASHFUL ON VINE

One bushel of tomatoes has been taken off a vine in a tomato patch owned by H. W. Morris of Massassaga, and there is still one gallon of green ones left on the vine. This is one of the biggest yields from one vine that has come to the notice of The Ontario Intelligencer this year. Mr. Morris stated to the press that the vine had nine feet across and would be pleased to show it to anyone interested. The tomatoes picked were of good quality and now the patch vines have withered with dry rot such as was contended with in other sections of Prince Edward County. The crop all round has been more than average due to the perfect weather that prevailed earlier in the growing season.

"Well, there any marks on the cases to indicate the contents of the cases." the Crown Attorney."

At this point Mr. Donnan asked for the statement made by Buker in his office, and as Mr. Payne had not seen the statement he asked his client to read the same over and vouch for its correctness and an answer being received in the affirmative, the statement was put in the records and read to the court by Mr. Donnan. This statement said that the man (not named) with Mr. Maidens came to the warehouse and offering a tip of $25.00 if the officer would see less to trans-ship a car of goods.

This concluded the evidence of the Crown and Mr. Baker was called to the stand. Mr. Payne asked his witness "who gave the man authorization to place the beer in the cold storage?" and Baker replied that he presumed the office as he had a receipt for $100.00 for the storage of canned goods but this was some days before the shipment came in.

"The clerk in the office had no means of knowing what the alleged canned goods was beer?"

"None whatever," said the witness.

"You were the foreman and the one relied upon that nothing irregular went on in the storage?"

"Yes."

"You dealth with the men days before?"

"Yes, but the men that came on the day of shipment were not the men that came some days before."

"Who showed the men where to place the cars "

"I did."

"Princess Helene" is a Princess Indeed

The new "Princess Helene" which has just entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company running between Saint John, N.B., and Digby, N.S., is worthy of her title in every respect. She is the last word in speed and comfort, and her accommodation, as is shown by the above pictures, compares favorably with liner-class ships. 1. A deck and saloon. 2. The dining room combining luxury and accommodation. 3. The observation room, with comfortable chairs and specially constructed windows to aid passengers in "seeing the sea". 3. The graceful "Princess Helene" leaving down the time between ports. 4. The dining saloon; just as roomy and up-to-date as many modern hotels. 5. The smokeroom; real comfort.

Hundreds Paid Tribute to Boy

The pastor described a lovely picture of Heaven with happy boys and girls playing on its streets, where they were free from evils and where they were always safe from harm. "Even Heaven would be a drab place were there no children gathered in that Happy land. God gives us children to shape our souls and mould us a new lease of life and then some day He calls them back to Him and we must remember that all things work together for good to those that love God and to those children have passed on to it not true that "Where your treasure is there will your heart be also" said the minister.

The High School boys attended in a body and marched through the house previous to the service and at the close they again filed through and each carried flowers to the waiting cars. Aunt in the cemetery they lined up and they again filed through and each carried flowers to the waiting cars. Aunt in the cemetery they lined up and they again filed through and each carried flowers to the waiting cars. Aunt in the cemetery they lined up and they again filed through and each carried flowers to the waiting cars.

The pall bearers were Ernest Brentworth, Kenneth Broadworth, Clifford Green, Trevor Geoffrey, John Mulligan and Alex. Monroe. The two latter boys came from Montreal to attend the obsequies.

Floral tributes were many and beautiful — Masses of asters, gladioli and dahlias were banked on the casket and pillows and besides many beautiful table bouquets were strewn about the house. The tributes were as follows:—

Pillow—Father, Mother, Brothers, John and James and sister Mona.

Spray—Bethel Sunday school.

Pillow—Sunday School teacher and class.

Wreath —First Form High School.

Double Spray—S. S. No. 7 Public School.

Sprays—Mr. George Reynolds and family; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Potter and family; Trevor Geoffrey (one of Roy's special friends); Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Tucker; Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Ward; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Armstrong; Mr. and Mrs. John Scott and family; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright; Trail Rangers, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shapley and family; Miss Myrtle Reid; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Christe; The Lamb Family; A Tuxis boy of Stirling Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bice.

Bouquets—Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Stapley; Harry Betts

Deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved family and the whole community is deeply shocked at the tragedy as it is especially so as Mr. Barron have no relatives here practically all of them live in Scotland.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Barron received a cablegram from her mother in Scotland conveying deep sympathy. The many girl friends of Mona's tender in her their sincere sympathy as she and her brother were having a race to see which could go a given length of road on the bicycle in the shortest period and at the time of the accident Mona was holding the watch. Friends feel very sorry for Mr. and Mrs. Potter as Mr. Potter was the driver of the car figuring in the unavoidable fatality.

Mr. Ernest Broadworth was the first on the scene and he carried Roy to Mr. Broadworth's home and later Ernest accompanied the family to Belleville, but the lad did not live to reach the hospital.

The family kept up well under the terrible strain of such a shock.

Truly we can say of Roy,

Of the sweetness and the rest,
That they happy life possessed.
Thou last left us at they best.

Keep for us Dear Roy where'er
Thou art waiting, all that here

Counter Charge Made Against Liberals

Law to Prevent Increase of Salary on Eve of Elections

HURTUBISE CHARGES

Premier Says He Will Produce Affidavits On Increases

Ottawa, Sept. 12—In a flight of oratory that roused cheer upon cheer from his followers and commanded the breathless attention of crowded galleries, Premier R. B. Bennett last night swept and, the Liberal stack on his $20,000,000 unemployment relief bill with counter-charges of corruption against the late King administration.

Arising after Dr. J. H. Hurtubise, Liberal, Nipissing, had made new allegations against the activities of the Ferguson Government in the recent election, the Prime Minister declared that there was "nothing so disgraceful in the history of Canada" as the late Government's sudden pre-election increase in pay to 828 Ottawa charwomen in civil service.

"If this Government endures," the Premier stridently warned, "a law will be placed on the statute books of this country within the next few months to stop forever the practice of Governments making appropriations by order-in-Council between the issuance of writs and the day of an election."

$18 Pre-Election Boost.

It was by such an order-in-Council he pointed out, that the Ottawa charwomen, receiving their pay on the Saturday preceding the Monday election, had each found an extra $18 in their envelopes.

"The idea!" exclaimed the Premier heatedly. "Is that the idea of Government right in the capital city of this Dominion?"

Dr. Hurtubise had produced affidavits purporting to show that one worker under the Ontario Northern Development branch had lost his job and had his pay held up because he refused to swear he has voted Conservative. Two other men swore they had been offered $500 for work on a road, provided they swore they would vote for G. N. Nicholson, Conservative East Algoma.

Mr. Bennett offered to produce affidavits, too. He could show proof, he said, that in the late campaign, men could not get employment on Federal works unless they showed a slip of paper signed by the president of the Liberal executive. Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, had suggested an amendment by which the Dominion auditors would be enabled to go through provincial and municipal books to check, right to its destination, the expenditure of every dollar of the $20,000,000.

SAYS COLUMBUS WAS A PIRATE

HAMBURG, Germany, Sept. 13.—The assertion that Columbus was a Catalonian corsair, and that his trip to America in 1492 long reputed to be the voyage upon which he discovered America, was really his second journey there, stirred a world-wide reverberations today.

Professor Luis Ulloz, Director of the Peruvian National Library at Lima, started the discussion by an address before the Americanists' Congress. Senor Ulloz said Columbus first visited America on a voyage with Dunlin corsairs, who travelled from Ireland to Greenland, Labrador, Newfoundland and Pac American Continent.

"In addition, he said Columbus was not Genoese, and declared documents heretofore produced to prove the discoverer's nationality as fraudulations.

D. B. BOWERMAN

The death occurred on September 4, in Los Angeles, Calif., of an old Prince Edwarder in the person of David Bennett Bowerman. He was obtained a clause involving an obligation to accept General reduction of armaments. That obligation had not been honored although it was incurred 11 years ago. Since forward had been taken but the pace was slow.

"The peoples of the world," proclaimed Mr. Henderson, "are growing impatient of our good faith."

GRASS FIRES IN PRINCE EDWARD PROVE MENACE

Many New Players Are Noted at Picton Golf Club

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Sept. 13.—Grass fires are very numerous in the county this summer and their is general complaint that motorists are carelessly throwing cigarette stubs from their cars into the dry grass along the roadside. On Mr. Moore's farm at Woodville, several acres were burned over. The fire started along the roadside and swept through a field into a bush. A big gang of men responded to a call for help and spent many hours ploughing strips and drawing water.

A fire in a field at Crofton was also reported on Sunday.

The local Fire Department was called to Picton Golf Club when a grass fire threatened to spread to the Club House, about noon Sunday, volunteers had the blaze subdued before the engine arrived. Several hundred cars raced to the scene of the fire after the engine.

It is hoped that motorists will be warned of careless acts by these fires which often destroy fences and trees as well as threatening buildings.

RECORD PEA YIELD

From Hogg and Lytle Ltd., comes word of a record yield of seed peas, the largest yet reported. Frank Hawkins, East Lake, had 177 bushels from a 12 bushel sowing, which is nearly a 15-fold crop.

GOLF POPULAR

Picton Golf Club has had a recors membership this year. More local people are playing than ever before. There have also been more visiting players, many summer tourists plan to spend their vacation in town for good golf course. While the tourist traffic has been lighter in most districts, there has been more than ever in this county. One of the attractions has been the golf course which overlooks the Bay of Quinte. Parties of tourists are there every day and the green fees have added materially to the income of the club.

Many improvements have been made in the course this year. Just now the grounds around the Club House are being beautified. Shower baths are planned for next year. Water is now piped to all of the greens except No. 2.

Eric Green, the pro, in charge of the course, made a new course record, completing it on the 42 on a par 72 course. In the putting contest, Miss Marjorie Calnan won the ladies contest and Mr. J. H. Carter, the gentlemen's.

In the window of Carter Bros. Store is a pair of golden pheasants and four young ones, which were raised by Mr. C. McDibbon. The window is fitted up with cedar boughs and small trees and the birds, which are attracting much attention, seem right at home.

Weather reports issued from the Meteorological Office of the British Air Ministry are based upon information supplied by about 600 observing stations in Europe and Western Russia.

Henderson Pleads For Disarmament

World Growing Tired of "Our Good Faith," Says Representative

BRIAND'S PLANS

Disarmament Most Vital and Implements of Security Measures

GENEVA Sept.—12—There was no doubt left in the minds of those attending the League of Nations Assembly that Great Britain stood for disarmament for the Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Britain's Foreign Secretary, came out strongly to reinforce the peace plea made this morning by Fr Robert Borden, the Canadian delegate to the Assembly.

"Of all security measures," Mr. Henderson exclaimed, "disarmament is the most vital and important." Thus the British Foreign Secretary took a view opposite to that of the French statesmen who claim security must be a necessary antecedent to disarming.

Mr. Henderson referred to the clear emphasis given the problem during the morning session by the "admirable speech of Sir Robert Borden." The nations were not disarming today and while they armed danger of war was great.

While the Foreign Secretary gave his blessing to the Briand project of a European Federal union he emphasized that this organization must be carried out within the framework and as part of the League of Nations.

"We can never fulfil the purpose for which this League was created," warned Mr. Henderson, "unless we are prepared to carry through schemes of general disarmament by international agreement." The League covenant con-

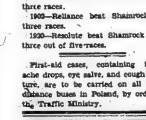
PONIES' STAMINA HELPED YANKEES

Mounts Showed Speed in Both Polo Battles With Invading Teams

New York, Sept. 13.—The American ponies proved themselves vastly superior in speed and stamina to their British rivals in the international polo series and emerged with much of the credit for the decisive victory of the defending team. Thomas Hitchcock Jr. who had charge of the American string was roundly congratulated for the fine condition of the mounts.

In the final game the American ponies were outrun in the early periods but before half time was reached they were showing better in the short dashes and through the balance of the game their stamina made them stand out. As evidence of this Captain Tommy Hitchcock used only five ponies in the eight periods, while Earle Hopping used his favorite pony Tonolo three times in the game. Hitchcock twice used Katrina, a 7-year-old mare which is a veteran of international matches.



Eric Pedley did his best scoring of the day in the final period astride Wayard, which had been a favorite with him in the series. It was the second time Wayard had been used in the game but this bay mare was as fleet as she had been in the second period. Tonolo performed an unusual feat in playing through three periods, stopping used the gelding because he had shown such fine form.

After the game it was found that all the American mounts had come through without injury despite the gruelling match and though the string was composed of more than seventy ponies fewer than a third of these had been action.

VICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. B. Martin
Royal Regis, on, Left Foot at Finish of Correct Follow Through.

When a golfer finishes the swing with the body well back resting most of the weight on the right leg it is a sure sign that the club head has been checked in the follow through and the result nine times out of ten will be a slice.

This means pulling away from the shot instead of permitting the club head to have full freedom and follow the ball as closely as possible and as long as possible on its flight down the fairway. Care must be taken that the body does not do this work instead of permitting the club head to have full freedom and follow the ball as closely as possible and as long as possible on its flight down the fairway. Care must be taken that the body does not do this work instead of the club. The body goes forward of course and rests finally on the left foot but this movement comes after the ball has been hit not before.

Major Burwash, Albert College Graduate, Finds Graves

No Documents Discovered In Fastnesses of North By Explorer

Unfolding a secret which the Arctic archipelago has held in its frozen fastness for more than 81 years, Major L. T. Burwash, celebrated Dominion Government explorer, and graduate of Albert College, Belleville, in the early nineties, has discovered definite traces of the fate that overtook Sir John Franklin's heroic company which set out in 1847 to discover the Northwest passage. Bones and skeletons in rocky cairns, pieces of rope, sailcloth and brondcloth and articles of clothing scattered about the last Franklin camp on the desolate northern shore of King William land, bore ample evidence of the fate which overtook the expedition. The explorers also report flying over the remains of a ship but were unable to land and ascertain whether the vessel was one of the two ships in which the expedition sailed.

First details of the actual discoveries made by the Burwash expedition are disclosed as McMurray, by Pilot W. E. Gilbert, who transported Major Burwash on the daring flight. Death by starvation or scurvy was the fate of the entire Franklin expedition, is the belief of pilot Gilbert and Major Burwash. The regularity in which graves and cairns were set out told how the men had encumbered, one by one, and had been buried by their comrades.

Definite word of the extent of the discoveries proved disappointing. Earlier brief bulletins had indicated that the long sought records of Franklin had been found. While one light is to been thrown on the mystery of Franklin's fate, the real goal itss yet to be reached.

Finding of a cairn that had been looted by either natives or animals, may destroy forever all chance of giving to the world the narrative of horror and suffering which historians are certain Franklin wrote.

Franklin Grave Not Discovered

Efforts of Major Burwash to find the grave of Sir John Franklin failed. Sir John died on June 11, 1847. An Eskimo tribe told of seeing sailors from a boat bring ashore the body of the "great white chief" and place it in a crypt sealed with powdered rock and ice. In this grave the Eskimos said they saw the men place books and papers.

In one cairn was found a blue jacket, of the type worn by British sailors a century ago, while a pair of bearskin trousers were discovered in another grave. Both garments were in a good state of preservation as were bits of equipment including sailcloth, broadcloth and rope, and are being forwarded to Ottawa.

At one point Pilot Gilbert said he fire over the remains of a ship but the nature of the area in the vicility made a landing impossible.

Two camps of the surviving members of the Franklin party who abandoned H. M. ships Terror and Erebus, were discovered by Major Burwash.

In this discovery Major Burwash has finally crowned with success his efforts to locate the men who, after an advance party had been landed, swung the ships around King William Land and at Starvation Cove, to the south. One ship was destroyed on O'Reilly Island.

Major Burwash is now at Fort Smith preparing a detailed report for the Dominion Government on his 5,000-mile trip by airplane from Edmonton to King William Land and back, one of the most daring aerial exploits ever undertaken and succeeding where more than two score of explorations by land and sea failed. He will leave for Fort McMurray and civilization shortly, carrying with him the first definite word of the fate of the ill-fated Franklin expedition awaited by the civilized world for more than three-quarters of a century.

Cooper at His Action-Thrill Best in Latest

Gary Cooper, the lanky and handsome young man from Montana who scored heavily with audiences as "The Virginian" and "The Texan", heads the program at the Belle Theatre today and Monday, matinee daily, "A Man From Wyoming"—which all serves to give additional proof that Cooper is a sterling actor no matter where his picture titles seem to have him coming from.

"A Man From Wyoming" is the story of a young engineer who hears the call to arms and leaves a construction job in Wyoming to get into the big fight in France. While stationed at a "hot" corner with his company of Engineers he meets a young society girl who, tiring of the tedium of her ambulance-driver job, wanders into the line in search of excitement.

Her carelessness draws the enemy's shell-fire and Cooper is forced to rescue her. Later, when his company is relieved, he conducts her, a prisoner, to the base. Although he treats her roughly she is impressed by his manliness. He falls for her beauty and femininity, and when they arrive in a little French village back of the lines they impetuously get married.

But he is soon ordered to the front again. She returns to her sweetheart post. Later he is reported killed after a stirring bit of action when his engineers try to construct a pontoon bridge over a river under shell-fire. She is grief stricken by the news and takes up a life of abandon to forget her woes. It is then he finds her later when, not dead, but badly wounded he is sent to a convalescent base.

Mistakenly he construes her wild gaiety as a typical exhibition of her true character. Thus there follows a bitter word-battle and he returns to the firing front dejected and sad, not caring whether he is killed or not. But he hasn't reckoned on true love, which brings the film to a happy conclusion.

Gary Cooper is excellent as the gallant captain of engineers. June Collyer who plays the girl ambulance driver is bewitchingly beautiful and a charmingly romantic foil-mate for the handsome Gary Cooper. Very adept character work is supplied by Regis Toomey, E. H. Calvert, Morgan Farley and Mary Foy.

Passengers by transoay in Greater London in 1929 shows an increase of 19,000,000 over the total of the previous year.

Do You Value Your Health?

If your health is poor; if you are pale, nervous and easily tired; if you suffer from headaches and backaches; if your digestion is bad you may depend on it that these symptoms come from an impoverished state of the blood. That unless this condition is remedied a complete breakdown may follow. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect medicine for any one in this condition. They enrich and purify the blood and thus promote health and strength.

Mrs. G. M. Andrews, Halifax, N.S., writes:—"I always keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house. When I was a young, anaemic girl they completely restored my health. After marriage my health broke down and once more these pills brought me back to health. My friends all tell me how well I look and for this Dr. Williams' Pink Pills deserve all credit."

You can get these pills at all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. s13-2td

LEAPS FROM HOME

Valleyfield, Que., September 13—For the first time on record, a man committed suicide Thursday by jumping from the façade of the Church of Christ, Scientist. Nilcrait, a pilgrim from Cortena, leaped from the dome and was killed when he struck the street in St. Martha's square.

One of the dome gargoyles accosted Nilcrait when he was sitting on the sill of one of the small windows in the cupola. To a question, he replied: "I am doing nothing. I am going right away."

As the guard turned away Nilcrait leaped through the window. He was dead when the police reached the spot.

Why Are You Lonely?

By Beatrice Fairfax

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Loneliness is a bad habit.

Think it over, and see if you don't agree with me.

Merely being alone doesn't make a person lonely. It's having a warm heart and believing there's nobody to love it with that causes loneliness. All lonely people are capable of love. That's the trouble with them. This unused love of theirs is like a constant ache, an unhealed sickness.

Did a lonely person ever confide in you? And you understood, probably that it was the need of love, or perhaps even more, the need of living that made your friend unhappy.

So you were kind at the time but what you really believed was that nothing could be done.

What didn't occur to you, perhaps, was that all lonely people make the same strange mistake. Each one man or woman, believes that he or she is the only lonely, heartsore person in a world full of happiness and gayety.

"Everybody else," such a person says to himself," has a sweetheart or is married. In every other person's life, there's somebody who cares. There's no one but me who is solitary and loveless."

But think for a moment, in the next town, if you like to the country, there's probably somebody who is saying the very same thing. In the city where I suppose people are lonelier there may be dozens of other lonely hearts in the same block, in the same apartment house.

It isn't true that the whole world loves and laughs at dances and that there's only here and there a forlorn neglected, love-hungry figure.

The truth is that we hear the laughter of the happy lovers and share a little in their gayety and even feel the warmth of their love.

Whereas we don't hear the quiet lonely ones, or even see them.

But they are legion.

Loneliness, unfortunately, is one of the commonest things in the world.

But it is unnecessary.

In the first place, lonely people believe they are unattractive, undeserving of love. Perhaps they have been a sweetheart. They don't do anything about finding another person to love. They deny in themselves this very human need. They just wait, suffering, for the next blow of fate.

That is what I mean when I say that loneliness is a bad habit.

All that lonely people need to do is to understand their own difficulty. Upside by little they must try to be less shy and self-conscious.

Then, they must remember that they are more likely to find a congenial friend or sweetheart among the quiet stayers-at-home than among the lively frequenters of dance halls.

In other words, all that is necessary is for lonely people to force their way out of their own unhappy shells and seek each other out.

Let them look about and find each other. Let them make a good, hard effort to forget their own unhappiness and find one of those countless shy spirits who have been making the same mistake of dramatizing their own loneliness.

Hearts need love, as much as lungs need air.

Until you satisfy that need in yourself, your life will be a failure.

ACCIDENT VICTIM BURIED

Lindsay, Sept. 13—A large funeral was held here yesterday afternoon for Lorne Kelly, popular 21-year-old boy who was killed in an accident at Oshawa, on Tuesday. Services were conducted at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kelly, 8 Elgin street, by Rev. Dr. T. W. Hosking of First United Church. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Remains of a temple to Saturn were recently unearthed at Syracuse, Italy.

The human ear can hear from 50 to 300,000 vibrations per second.

Radio Fans Corner

Cheer up, cheer up, good times are coming or at least one would judge so by the sound of things last night. The radio sets were just raring to go and did they go! Volume and distance and everything else one could wish for was to be had for the asking last night.

Phil Spitalny's music from WEAF tonight at 6.30 EST and later same station at 8.30 EST the General Electric program with Arthur Pryor's Band and Floyd Gibbons speaking on the subject "Adventures in Science." Floyd is the major-minute talker of the radio but you don't miss a word.

B. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strike orchestra from WEAF at 9 EST and that always means good music for this versatile orchestra sure knows their instruments. Lanny Ross is back again in the WEAF network in his Troubadour of the Moon series and he is billed tonight for a performance at 10 EST.

Uncle Abe and David at 10.15 EST and over WEAF as usual. Lots of fun in this program, you know it? Wouldn't miss it anymore than I would Amos 'n' Andy. By the way that was a great speech Andy attempted to make but apparently something went wrong at the last moment and it sounded rather flat.

Trutyest Jesters at 6.45 EST which isn't a bad program to look on if one is in need of entertainment. Over WJZ at the above mentioned time. Dixie Circus at 7 EST and also Lasses and Honeys' Minstrels from WJZ tonight too at 8.30 EST. Curt Peterson, Carson Robison, Paul Dumont, Al Bernard and scores of other funsters.

Chase and Sandborn Choral orchestra tomorrow night over WEAF at 7.30 EST. Sunday evening at 8oth Pokers will be another one. We'll have to tune in on tomorrow night the time is 8.45 EST.

If Miller's Worm Powders needed he support of testimonials they could se got by the thousands from mothers who know the great value of this excellent medicine. But the powders will speak for themselves and in such a way that there can be no question of them. They act speedily and thoroughly, and the child to whom they are administered will show improvement from the first dose.

California peach growers will collect $9,700,000 for their 1930 peach crop.

KIWANIAN'S MESSAGE

A Message from Jack McIntosh, General Chairman of Kiwanis Karnival Committee.

It is with confidence and pleasure that I commend to the citizens of Belleville and residents of the surrounding district the 1930 edition of the sixth annual Kiwanis Karnival. If time and hard work will make this year's Karnival a success, then next week's effort will not go unrewarded for it has taken months of planning and during the week the entire personnel of our club membership as well as the Kiwanian Queens have given unsparingly of their time to have everything in readiness for the first curtain on Monday night.

We, as Kiwanians are proud of our Karnival. It grows bigger and bigger and we also think it grows better and better. The price of admission will remain at 15 cents and our slogan "More than your money's worth" will be more than lived up to. Some of the finest attractions in the Province have been secured and also some of the most outstanding athletics will visit us during the coming week. It would not be fair to let the whole secret but come along on Monday night and continue for the rest of the week. All the proceeds are devoted to charities and underprivileged children.

Jack McIntosh,
Chairman of Kiwanis Karnival Committee.

Kiwanis Karnival Is Just Around Corner From Front Street

BOOTHS ARE BRIGHT

Money Spent Have Easily Turned to Good Purposes

Just around the corner is looming the Kiwanis Karnival—the biggest and best Dixieland Revel that ever struck Belleville all at one time. Each year the citizens of Belleville eagerly await this Karnival. There is always something here. This year the winner of the Diamond Sculls, the peerless Jack Guest, of Toronto, will be here on Wednesday next as chief guest of the committee. And if Jack Guest can't sell, nobody can. There will be many underprivileged and needy families that will bless the name of Guest this winter, for in Trenton the booth he occupied during the Rotary Carnival was so thronged with prospective customers that there was nearly a riot.

As usual, the every-night dancing will prove the greatest attraction to the younger element. Under the personal direction of Kiwanian Claude Tice and with peppy music of Tommy Mason and his orchestra and Gospel Ben Tons this year it is expected that the dance floor will be crowded as never before.

Already the booths in the Armouries are practically completed and all of them have been sold. The Karnival Committee have promised that there will be several new booths this year, a change from the form of the past few years.

Let's save up our pennies for the Karnival. A dollar spent there will do more downright good that ten dollars elsewhere. The proceeds are all used for a charitable purpose. There is not one cent of profits goes into the coffers of the Kiwanis Club. As a matter of fact, it hasn't any coffers.

Alcohol and New Canadians

Seventh of Series of Articles by A. H. Lyle, Field Superintendent, Royal Templars of Temperance

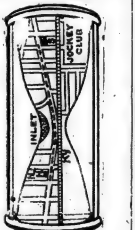
Probably more has been written on the subject of drink than on anything else that is of interest to mankind. The poet, the historian, the philosopher, the scientist, the politician, the bootlegger, the advocate, all have dwelt on the subject.

The Reason

If we look for the reason we find that it is because it is the cause of much unhappiness in man's life and quality of love; it colors our literature because of its stain upon every phase of life. As Vance Thompson says in his book, "Drink and Be Sober": "Every one must face it. I know quite well that you are not a drunkard. Your brain is not swept with drink-storms. Your brother is not drinking with Pan. Your daughter is not laughing with the alcoholic girls at the country club. And yet the problem is a personal one."

Your Problem

It must then be your problem as well as mine. The problem of alcohol. And what is alcohol? The chemist will tell you that alcohol is produced by the fermenting action of the yeast germ upon sugar solutions, which in strong liquors is subsequently distilled. He says that from the grape sugar is taken part of its oxygen. This changes the chemical relations of the carbon, oxygen and hydrogen of which the sugar is composed, and, by a rearrangement of the elements, alcohol is formed. What he conveys to us is the thought that alcohol is really the excrement of millions of the tiny living organisms known to us as the yeast plant.



The effect

What is the effect of this spirit on these bodies of ours?

Dr. C. W. Saleeby, one of the foremost scientists of today, says that "alcohol lowers resistance to temptation, increases the risk of infection to contagious diseases, aggravates the symptoms of the disease and complicates and prejudices the treatment," so that any man or woman who habitually takes even small quantities of alcohol whether in a malt liquor like beer or in a distilled liquor like whiskey, has less chance of recovery from a serious illness or accident, and the period of convalescence will be longer than with the man who abstains altogether. This is why ex-President Theodore Roosevelt was led to say, "There never was a sensible thought in a bogshead of alcohol. There isn't an idea in a whole brewery."

Wrong Conclusion

Many persons will readily admit that great harm comes from drinking strong drink, like whisky, but affirm that beer is a harmless beverage, and yet we have the opinion of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, of the bureau of foods, sanitation and health, Washington, that "Beer is probably the most dangerous to health of all the pure ordinary alcoholic liquors." The truth is that alcohol is harmful in any form and in any quantity. Thirty years ago it was considered a handy panacea. Today science has labeled it a poison.

Known By Friends

We are told that a man is known by his friends, so is alcohol. Men and women who, under normal conditions are able to exert self-control, almost invariably lose that self-control under the influence of drink and are led into committing acts which would be avoided if in full control of their faculties.

Correction Needed

If only our temperance effort could carry this teaching to every boy and girl and every man and woman in such a way as to bring conviction, what a wonderful change we should see in the habits of thousands of our people.

This teaching would bring joy and happiness into the lives of our new Canadian citizens, those who come to us from other lands and unfortunately bring with them the drinking habits of the homeland. I wonder how many Hamiltonians know that within the district represented in the hour glass illustrating this article there are people of 24 nationalities. What are we doing to make them proud of their Canadian citizenship? What hopeful influences are we surrounding them with to counter-balance the difficulties with which they have to contend? Jean M. Casey and Miriam Sloan, in an article in "Social Welfare" recently said of this district: "Three murders within six blocks within a year—then were thoroughly discussed in every home. Boot leggings We must acknowledge that it still exists—nor can we forget the four-year-old who arrived at physical care bright morning, rejoicing in the brilliant winter sunshine. Yes, Beatrice, we will sit here by the window. Do you find lovely sunshine in your home? Some moments for reflection before her reply. "No, in our home we have only moonshine."

In this district the government has placed a branch of the sexless beer, but we note also with a stone's throw of the bank, a liquor store and a large brewery warehouse. Which of these are patronized most? Well on May 24, the evening before our Empire day holiday, the writer saw at least 100 men and women lined up before the brewery warehouse, waiting their turn to make a purchase. And so, as the publication of her life book tells us, "The results are bad housing conditions, poor and insufficient food, and broken rest. These cause much ill-health and favor the spread of disease. For example, tuberculosis.....Other diseases likewise thrive under such conditions, but enough has been said to show how alcohol indirectly helps the spread of disease."

Lukewarm Citizen

Mr. Average Citizen, lukewarm on the temperance question, the problem is yours, and you cannot expect that consideration of an opinion expressed to improve until you begin to take an interest. Let me invite your serious consideration not an opinion expressed by Roger W. Babson, appearing some time ago in the "Financial Bureau." "There are many good people, who, by temperament have the moral and physical strength to use liquor in moderation. When, however, such people are locked up to and followed by others it is very important that such leaders let it alone as an example."

THE PRESIDENT

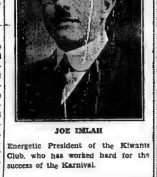
Joseph Imlah Expresses Optimism Over 1930 Edition of Karnival.

The Kiwanis Club is about to open its sixth annual Karnival and although previous ones have been outstanding, the officers and chairmen of various committees believe that the coming one will exceed the expectation of the Richest sanguine.

No expense has been spared nor labor shirked in bringing attractions to suit all tastes. The Plunkett Revue has been secured at a great expense and the name of Plunkett is a by word in the theatrical life of this Province and Dominion. Always offering the best in vaudeville this show will present no change. The Style Show each night will be a sight in itself and professional mannequins will display the latest in the modes for fall and winter.

The program will be changed each night and will be one continual round of amusement and fun and it is well not to forget that all monies derived from the Karnival go to Belleville charities, the Victorian Order of Nurses, Christmas baskets for poor families, help for under privileged children, support to amateur athletics and other worthy causes.

On behalf of the members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, who have honored me with the presidency this year, I earnestly appeal to your to come the first night and you will be so enthralled with the spectacle that on each succeeding night you will by present with your friends. Yours for a week of gaiety and enjoyment.



Joe Imlah,
President.

What Local Kiwanis Club Accomplishes

Institution's Many Activities Indicate Wholehearted Service

ITS WIDE RANGE

Year's Work in Brief Review as Year Brings to Cloe

JOE IMLAH

Energetic President of the Kiwanis Club, who has worked hard for the success of the Karnival.

Kiwanis is universally recognized as an institution of service and the local club has during its existence performed many worthy works, many of which are quite unknown to the general public. The Chairman in charge of the various committees have pursued their duties faithfully and well relieving the officers of much necessary labor. The potato contest which was originally framed to stimulate interest in the growing of better potatoes, "Spuds" were given to the boys in rural communities with special instructions by the Federal representative of the Department of Agriculture. The boys made personal reports to their sponsoring Kiwanian and at the end of the season a potato contest was held and cups awarded to the boys with the greatest yield and best grade of potatoes. Two bags of potatoes were returned to each Kiwanian in return for the one bag of seed potatoes furnished. Sixty boys participated. The Agricultural Committee of which George Bonisteel is Chairman, played hosts to the County Council when the speaker was Principal Bell of Ontario Agricultural College, Kemptville. This same Committee also held Farmers' Day with a suitable speaker whose topic was "Romance in the Farm." Fifty rural livestock were guests.

The Boys' Work Committee with P. S. Deacon as the helm sponsored and equipped a Boys' band of forty pieces under the direction of Ross Hunter. A KI-Y soft-ball League was carried on under the direction of the same Committee with twenty teams and two hundred and forty boys taking part. Kiwanis provided all the necessary equipment and the boys ranged in age from twelve to eighteen years.

In winter a Juvenile Hockey League was organized with about twenty teams listed and two hundred and fifty boys engaged. Open-air rinks supported by Kiwanis were used for the scheduled games. Kiwanis supplied equipment and the League was handled by F. M. C. A. Secretaries. The same committee co-operated with the Child Welfare Committee in providing quarters for a boys camp at Moira Lake. Kiwanians also provided trophies for competition in the annual "Across-the-Bay-Swim." Members of the Club acted as officials for the event.

The Business Standards Committee of the Club cringed for prominent outstanding speakers. Literature of interest was also circulated among the members on certain subjects referred to the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Association. J. H. Bryant is Chairman of this Committee.

Attendance Contest

P. W. Smythe presided over the Attendance Committee and an unique arrangement in the form of a contest stimulated interest. The attendance has gradually increased.

The Classification and Membership Committee in charge of Ad. Wotten supervises the enrollment of new members. George O. Tice as Chairman of the Public Affairs Committee and he keeps in mind the objectives suggested by Kiwanis International.

The City Council acted favourably upon the suggestion that support be given the Citizens' Band to which a generous grant was made. The Committee also passed a recommendation endorsing the new bridge which was recently completed.

The Club has taken a prominent part in civic affairs, last year the Mayor acting as President while this year there are four Kiwanis Aldermen and one Hydro Commissioner. In educational work the Club has taken an active part.

Kiwanis are urged to assist in educational work and J. O. Herity heads this Committee. P. C. McLaurin is Chairman of the Speakers' Committee, and the best available talent is secured.

The Vocational Guidance Committee under the Chairmanship of C. I. Frederick has been instrumental in placing several young men in good positions and has assisted others to finance their business courses.

The Welfare Committee was instrumental in supplying forty-six baskets to needy families at Christmas. The Children of the County Shelter are entertained annually while the inmates of the Old Folks Home are remembered in a suitable way. The tonsil clinic has been the means of improving the health of numerous children while dental treatment is also provided.

The Belleville Kiwanis Club originally sponsored the Victorian Order Nurses here and one thousand dollars is devoted annually to this work.

Child Welfare Work

R. S. Pahey is Chairman of the Transportation Committee which has assisted in the entertainment of visitors to the city.

One notable achievement of the Club was the restoration of the sight of a little six year old girl who was almost totally blind. The Underprivileged Child Committee under the Chairmanship of H. E. Smith took the case over and provided all expenses. Another child who was badly burned was treated while a boy injured in an accident was taken care of through the Kiwanis Club. The Club donates a yearly sum for Y. M. C. A. work while two keeping cabins at Camp Community were built by Kiwanis.

Interest visits between the Clubs serve proved a source of inspiration and enjoyment and Chairman "Ernie" Dickens has been particularly active in these arrangements.

The Kiwanis Karnival which opens on Monday night at the armouries is the chief source of revenue to carry on the welfare work. Prizes and attractions are always arranged and this year new features will be introduced. Citizens should realize the splendid work carried on by the Belleville Club and their attendance at the Karnival will help to swell the funds for welfare activities.

The Kiwan's Club does not confine its activities in any one particular sphere. The Club is an asset to the city and district and patronage by the people will convince the members that Belleville is solidly behind them.

Curiosities Seen In Welland Canal

The figure 8 and its multiples are curiously in evidence in the construction of the new Welland ship canal. For building purposes the canal was divided into 8 sections. There are 8 locks to the canal; it takes 8 minutes to fill each lock with water, and 8 hours for a vessel to pass through the entire canal. The 8 locks have each a usable length of 800 feet with a depth of 80 feet, and 82 feet is the height of the lower mitre gates. The greatest height of lock wall is 130.8 feet and the weight of metal in the valves of locks is 3,800 tons. A pond 80 1-2 feet deep, covering 84 acres feeds the fifth lock. The span of the lift bridge at Peer street, Thorold is 80 feet, and lock 3 with a length of 1,380 feet is the longest in the world. The greatest width of the entrance to Port Weller is 800 feet. Over 8,000,000 cubic yards of rock have been excavated, and more than 28,000,000 lbs. of reinforcing steel used. It is interesting to note that the first Welland canal was 8 feet deep and was practically completed in less than over 100 years ago, the first vessels having been locked through early in the following year.

SURVEY BY PLANE

By the use of the aeroplane by the Forestry Survey of Canada over rough and broken country, parties have been guided much closer to the geodetic stations than if they had been transported by canoe. The airplane is taking an increasing part in geodetic operations, especially in the unlocated but well-watered sections of Northern Canada where ordinary means of travel present so many difficulties.

TREES ON PRAIRIES

The number of settlers visited last year by the inspectors of tree plantations was 13,052, of whom 1,524 were in Manitoba, 7,711 in Saskatchewan, and 3,717 in Alberta. The total number of trees distributed by the Forest Service, Department of the Interior, since the inauguration of the scheme in 1901 is 119,763,078; of these 1,782,181 were conifers and the remainder broad-leaved.

The many uses of borax were discovered through the accidental preservation of a dead horse in Yellowstone Park.

Lake Bottom is Below Sea Level

Great Bear lake in the Northwest Territories has long-been known to be very deep, but previous to 1927, when officers of the North West Territories Branch, Department of the Interior, Canada visited the lake, no actual soundings had even been made. In their several traverses of the lake, they took in all 65 soundings. The average depth of the lake was found to be between 80 and 90 fathoms. The greatest depth was 75 fathoms, and since Great Bear lake is only 391 feet above the sea, the lake bottom at this spot is below the level of the sea.

AT THE BAR

The law is proving an attractive profession for women. Belleville has two women lawyers, one living in Toronto and one in Trenton, and Miss Helen Deroche is the third to enter upon the calling dignified by Portia. Miss Palen and Miss Alford have shown the path to other girls in Ontario in the way of success to be achieved by women at the bar.

Miss Deroche's is an interesting case. She is the third of her family to enter upon the profession, her father, His Honor G. E. Deroche, being senior judge of the County of Hastings and her brother, William, being a student at Osgoode Hall.

Can one inherit a love of a profession? To this there seems the answer, "Yes". The very qualities that make a father a success in a chosen field should incline his children to the same calling, though in some walks of life a father does not wish his children to pursue his course This is not so much the case in the law for Belleville has numerous examples of "like father, like sons" in this profession, for lawyers are very loyal to their calling. There is the additional factor of the environment which is about the children of those in the professions, instilling a love for one profession from earliest childhood to the disadvantage of others. So when birth and environment conspire to make a son or a daughter of a lawyer, a lawyer, or the son and daughter of an actor or actress an actor or actress, what is more likely than for the child to follow the course laid out by nature and by surrounding conditions?

Miss Deroche, Belleville's latest aspirant for the gown, eloquence and humanity of Portia, has proven herself a proficient student and her course at Osgoode and her subsequent career at the bar will be watched with keen interest by her many friends here.

FUNERALS

Many people do show respect to passing funerals stopping their cars on highways while the corteges pass, even though in so doing they may be subjected to accident by some less respectful driver coming from the rear.

Respect which ought to be shown funerals has been brought to the fore by the reference of Rev. Canon Baynes Reed, of Toronto, who complains that there is great thoughtlessness and disrespect indicated on the highway to funerals.

This is a problem which is not yet solved. The fact that funerals have often to cover long stretches of highway and do not proceed at the top speed allowed by the law, leading to the delay of traffic which is always restless to get ahead, must some day be solved, otherwise there are likely to benear-tragedies besides the growth of a spirit of carelessness towards the dead. The stopping of traffic meeting a funeral appears to be less serious than the delay caused that following a funeral, with the possible attempts by some mad motorists to cut in or through, for the delay is but for a moment or two while the funeral passes whereas car is prolonged the entire route of the cortege.

In an effort to meet the situation funerals are speeding up and probably this is cause for some encouragement of the lack of attention paid the passing dead.

The man who cuts through a funeral has least one all an excuse. His case is one requiring to be severely dealt with, for it is a menace to the living as well as disrespect to the dead.

DITCHES AND HIGHWAYS

Will highways in Ontario in the long run be such that there will be no ditches alongside? They can be built without ditches today and it is probable most highways newly constructed will be ditch less because the method which has been tried out, works to satisfaction. But what is to come of the ditches which are now along the highways? It is generally believed that these can be filled in after proper drainage has been made of the roadbed.

Many cars go into ditches in wet weather or in fogs. Numbers of accidents of this kind have fatal results, while many other accidents result in injury and damage to cars. That more of these are not fatal seems almost miraculous.

SIDELIGHTS

HERDS AT EVENING

Behind the hills of Amner
The harvest moon rides up,
Into the lake of Ammer
She dips her golden cup:

Clinging, ringing, singing
A maze of netted songs,
The belled cows wander, flinging
Prayer from their brazen gongs.

Trudging along behind them
The cowherds wander there,
And even as they mind them
They say their evening prayer.

Patient and hard-faced people,
Piously greeting us:
Louder than from the steeple
The cow-bells' Angelus.

—Ethel Talbot Scherrauer in Poetry Magazine.

THE WORLD OF THE DARK SILENCE

Those who live in the world of which Helen Keller is the best known to the seeing and hearing are estimated to number more than 2,000, including those who have lost both sight and hearing in age. There are 715 of the Helen Keller Type in the United States and Canada, though few, if any of them, have had the fortune to be led by the hand of such teachers as she has had.

Deaf-blind pupils are refused, generally, by schools for the blind on account of their deafness and by schools for the deaf on account of their blindness; so they are left in their world of darkness and silence with no sensory guides except touch, vibrations, taste and smell—and the kindly leadings of members of their families or their friends whose faces they have never seen and whose voices they have never heard.

The teachers who can instruct this most neglected class in the whole civilized world must be of the most highly qualified type. It used to be said of Mrs. Macy that the marvel of her communicating with Helen Keller's mind was as great as that of her pupil's response.

A report recently made by two experts under the auspices of the Volta Bureau for the Deaf recommends that there should be a national institution exclusively devoted to the general welfare of the deaf-blind, and that each State commission for the blind should make it its special duty to avail of such help and advice as this central "clearing house" can give and then see to it that its own doubly handicapped are delivered from the "all-devouring dragon of loneliness." Some are mistakenly placed in institutions for the feeble-minded simply because their minds have not been reached.

Real Swing Upward is Credited For February or Next April

Toronto, Sept. 12—The "real upward movement" in business is likely to be deferred until the early spring months of next year and from then on there should be a steady upward climb, reaching "normal levels" in the fall months.

An optimistic prediction to this effect was advanced by W. C. Clark of S. W. Straus and Company of New York, investment bankers, yesterday, when addressing the thirty-third annual convention of the National Hardwood Lumber Association.

Mr. Clark, who is vice-president of this association, which is meeting in the Royal York Hotel, stated that retail trade showed evidence of improvement in some lines, and in certain parts of the country, but it was not by any means uniform or universal. There were, he declared, indications of "spotty improvement" here and there, which might be the beginning of a more general improvement. Business sentiment, too, was a good deal better than it had been.

About Aug. 10, Mr. Clark continued, the gloom in New York was about dark enough to blot out the sun, but they had recovered somewhat from that. He pointed out that the stock market was a good deal stronger, and was perhaps the chief generator of business pessimism or optimism these days.

Savings deposits had increased "pretty substantially," and that was a mighty good sign, Mr. Clark declared while he also drew attention to the fact that the bond market had become a great deal better in the last couple of months. The bond market, the speaker stated, was one of the first agencies to show improvement in a period of recovery.

Prices to Move Sidewise

"We are, I think," proceeded Mr. Clark, "reaching the resistance level. I do not look for a rapid upturn, but I do expect prices to move sidewise, if you like, on the July-August level, and that prediction materializes it will be a mighty good thing for business."

AN ELF'S PROGRESS

When an elf is old as a year and a day
He can't wear a cap with a feather in it.
By the time he is two times two
He has a hankie for either nose.
At twenty he has a fiddle
With a silver bowl built to go round it—middle.
When he's dead for fifty years or so,
His coat may have buttons all in a row.
If past three score and ten he's grown,
Two pockets he has for his very own.
At eighty-two for three years old
They bring out his fiddle with bits of gold.
But when he's a hundred and a day
He gets a little pipe to play!

Sidney Couple Will Celebrate Half Century of Married Life

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gilbert Will Mark Event on Monday

HISTORIC FAMILY

Couple Recall Old Days With Pleasure and Enjoy Today's Radio

Half a century of connubial bliss will be celebrated on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gilbert, Concession One of Sidney and pioneer residents of the Township. The affair will be made one of special significance by other members of the family who will gather to celebrate the nuptial milestone of the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert are known throughout the district and hundreds of invisible guests will rejoice with them on this occasion.

They have lived a quiet rural life to which may be partly attributed the longevity of both. Yesterday an Ontario Intelligencer scribe invaded the quiet sanctity of their home on the Trent Road near the Ontario School for the Deaf and, forsooth, both Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert were somewhat apprehensive of the intrusion since they confessed it was the first time in history they had been interviewed. It was with difficulty that the reporter was able to gather the many highlights which have studded the lives of the retiring couple who will mark their golden anniversary.

They were married on September 15th, 1880, at the home of the bride's parents, Ketchan Graham Sidney Township the ceremony having been performed by Rev. Mr. Finn, pastor of the Methodist Church. R. J. Graham, well known Belleville financier and philanthropist and the bride's brother who now resides at "Montreux," Sidney Township, acted as groomsman while three bridesmaids Misses Ella Baker, stirling, Martha Culross, Sidney and Miss E. Coleman, Sidney, assisted.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert have always resided in Sidney save their married home. Mrs. Gilbert was born, October 30th, 1858, while her husband, a son of Samuel Gilbert, Sidney, was born on May 18th, 1846.

They have lived at their present home for the past twenty-years previous to which they resided four miles further west on the front road. Three children have resulted from the union Mrs. Edward Mallory of Beaverton, Alfred Gilbert of Norwich, Conn., and Robert of Belleville.

The Gilberts claim the distinction of being the descendants of the oldest families in the district. The ancestors of both may be traced back many years when the district was sparsely populated. Few are living who attending the wedding and among the guests were two brothers of the bride, W. R. Graham of Oneida and R. J. Graham of Belleville. Mr. Gilbert has no brothers or sisters living and Mrs. E. T. Cherry of Belleville is the one remaining niece.

"We have lived without incident or accident," said Mrs. Gilbert who is an inveterate reader. The radio provides many happy hours for the couple who enjoy the daily programs.

Mrs. Gilbert's father, Ketchan Graham was the first member of the Orange Lodge here from this district after Confederation. She remembers well when the Ontario School for the Deaf was built. Mr. Gilbert reminiscing on earlier days, remarked on the absence of boating now as compared with fifty years ago when the Bay of Quinte was daily dotted in the summer months with craft of all descriptions. In those halcyon days passengers were ferried across the bay from Rossmore, the boat being in charge of Captain Harry Bogart.

Belleville was a centre of great activity in former days when the lumber trade was at its height and when the logs were shot down the Moira from the north in huge booms. Rathbun's Mill situated at the mouth of the stream provided employment for many score workmen.

Mrs. Gilbert regrets that she has been unable to take an active part in church work within recent years as the health of both she and her husband has not been of the best. They attend most of their time within the quiet of their pretty home in Avondale. Her husband always followed the agricultural trade and was himself a prominent Church worker. He is a Liberal in politics and cast his vote in the recent elections. Many legion of friends will join in wishing them many more happy years of wedded life.

Fashionably Speaking

BY LUCILLE

DEAR READERS:

Let us take a peek at Fall Fashions as seen by Parisian dressmakers. Here is what the famous house of Premet is sponsoring, according to this dispatch from Paris.

"When evening dresses at Premet's came out in such alluring colors and sort, youthful lines as to be absolutely recognizable as a faint echo of some other house, it was at least seldom-visited that "grenelle," formerly of Chanel's, had picked up needle and thimble, moved over to the Place Vendome.

"This house, always noteworthy for its refinement and the use of lovely stuffs, seems to have been responsible fall for Chanel's evening gowns have been notably the most copied in Paris.

"A number of Premet's which will sooner or later appear in many versions were: "Nuit Parisienne, Le Prados Ame and Printemps."

"To describe "Nuit Parisienne" is to tell something about a number of others, for its skirt typical of many, cut in scalloped flounces, very wide at the bottom, where they formed part of the hem, gradually growing narrower as they extended up the skirt to the high waistline. On "Nuit Parisienne" these flounces were of pointed scallops of silk black taffeta and set like garlands of leaves on coarse black starched tulle. The effect was startlingly youthful, at the same time "chic."

"Many long coats, following the flaring skirt-line of the dress, were somewhat redingote. Day things were not long, reaching the calf or extending perhaps two inches below.

"A great deal of dark blue was used. In suits a stunning effect was acquired by little short blouses made from the silk "all-over embroidery" cut to make deep oval yokes, and finished by a bound-round neck.

"Details like the unusual rhinestone belts for evening, were noteworthy in day clothes here, too. Many black georgettes were belted with shiny black calfskin, or a shiny straw "crin." These black georgettes often were finished with interesting white collars and cuffs of a silk trimming which again resembled the old-fashioned heavy embroidery.

"The simplicity of suits and coats at Premet's gave a distinction almost unparalleled by other collections, excepting, thus far, Jean Patou. Many dresses were finished with scarf ties which made the coat's collar. The skirts were cut in gores to hold the hips, and they swung softly to a full hemline; sometimes them were pleated in groups of plaits sewed flat to the knee for the slenderizing line above."

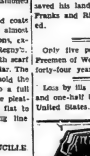
Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE

Library Corner

Four interesting books were added to the shelves of the Corby Public Library, this week—three of particular interest to Canadians and the fourth a most interesting biography of a valiant Eastern warrior.

E. J. Pratt in his epic poem "The Roosevelt and the Antinoe" relates the thrilling story of the sinking of "Antinoe" by Captain Fried of the Roosevelt and the Antinoe" relates makes gallant material for a poem and so vividly is it described that one sees the raging of the storm, the great courage of the men, the hours of despairing for the "Antinoe" the various attempts at rescue and the final triumph—all twenty-five men saved, from captain to deck-hand.



"Pioneering in the Prairie West" by W. C. Pollard tells of the movement to the Western provinces with the completion of the C.P.R. The author, then a boy in his teens was a member of one group that left Perth district. In this little book he has told of the hardships and successes of the little colony that was formed near Edmonton in 1904.

"Pooling Wheat in Canada" is the first book that has been made available to the general public in connection with the wheat pool development in the Canadian West, and deals with that mighty movement from prairie farm to British mill. It is from the pen of a Westerner—Walter P. Davidson, who has had ample opportunity of studying these giant organizations of the growers.

Those who like colourful, historical biography will want to read "Saladin, prince of chivalry," by Charles J. Rosebault. Here the sultan of Egypt and Turkey, the same valiant warrior who figures largely in Scott's Talisman, is presented as "a cavalier at all times, magnificently generous and superbly courteous." An account of the crusades provides a background for the career of that great king, who saved his land from the Saracens. Franks and Richard the Lion-Hearted.

Only five people have been made Freemen of West Ham during the last forty-four years.

Less by ills of plants is put at one and one-half billions annually in the United States.

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets are over-dilated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 16 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Persian Balm creates and preserves lovely and youthful complexions. Tones and stimulates the skin. Fragrant as a flower. Cool as morning dew. Swiftly absorbed by the tissues, making the skin wonderfully soft-textured. Unrivalled as an aid to feminine elegance. Delightful to use. Imparts additional charm to the daintiest of women. Persian Balm is the one toilet required for the exacting woman. Peerless as a beautifier.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Girl Behind The Counter

Jasper B. Sinclair

"Pick day, isn't it?"

Jimmie Patterson leaned against the cigar counter in the lobby of The Cables.

The girl behind the counter nodded abruptly.

"Yes, I know it is! I also know I'm a nice girl, and I've seen both shows in town, thank you, And it don't think I'm the pretty to be wasting my time in this little kick town. And besides I've got a brother six feet two that weighs two hundred pounds."

Jennie Kane paused breathlessly.

"Oh," Jimmie eyed the glowing tip of his newly purchased cigar in studied silence.

"I see," and the quiet lift of his shoulders indicated a tacit admission of the tactlessness of his approach. Then he smiled wryly.

"You've got me all wrong, however! I'm here purely on business. We've just discovered a bed of natural asphaltum the other side of the hills. Real stuff, too! Ready to pour onto a street. Greatest find in the whole state. And I'm up here to find a way to get it out."

Jennie stiffened, suddenly alert, and expectant.

"Yes," he went on, "And it's no secret that this town of yours is in for the greatest boom that ever hit it."

Jennie smiled. Plainville had never enjoyed a "boom" in all its nonexistent existence.

"Are you going to bring the stuff through this town?" Jennie queried carelessly.

He nodded.

"In trucks, I suppose." It was a tentative statement of fact, rather than a direct query.

He shook his head, reassured by he answered tersely. Then he paused, under the apparent display of interest by the girl behind the counter.

"Natural suits our purpose much better. Just a single track with yards in this town. Then down to the main line here we can switch into a direct run up to Frisco."

"I see!" Jennie nodded understandingly.

"Trucks would have been cheaper if the state highway ran anywhere near Plainsville. Under the circumstances, however, a railroad's cheaper. And we'll have it running inside of one year," he explained further.

"You will, eh? how about personation to build it and—"

The man chuckled.

"That's easy! There's another bunch got wind of what's up, but I've beat them to it! I'll have all rights of way picked up before the people out by the bluffs have an idea what's on."

"Oh, that's—" Jennie checked herself hastily.

Another man strolled up to the counter and Jennie went to wait on him. When he had bought a package of smokes he showed no disposition to move on, but stood studying the magazine covers on the rack.

After a few minutes Jimmie shrugged impatiently and moved away.

"Guess I'll have a look round outside," he said to the girl.

"Well, I'll be seeing you again," and Jennie flashed him a quick smile. Inwardly she murmured "Chatterbox!" and shrugged her shoulders. "He could make lots of money if he had sense enough to hold his tongue!"

Jennie reached the desk telephone as quickly as she could after he had gone, getting in a call for the Plainsville National Bank.

"Mr. White, please!" she directed impatiently. A short pause, then another voice on the other end of the wire.

"Jack, this is Jennie. Listen, Jack. You know most of the people out through the valley toward the bluffs, don't you? Well, listen to this, Jack!"

And Jennie proceeded to talk swiftly and eagerly, her explanations punctuated by excited comments from Jack.

When she hung up the phone, Jennie walked back to her counter smiling quietly to herself.

Jennie was just finishing drying her supper dishes that night when a knock sounded on her back door.

"That wasn't so hard," Jack grinned, entering the kitchen in response to her summons.

"All the options are in your name, Jennie," he continued, pulling a bundle of papers out of his inside coat pocket. "Old Man Thompson was a little stubborn, but I soon talked him into it. The others were trying to sell for so darned long that they jumped at the chance to sell at a profit. Some of them thought we were pretty!" he ended.

"Oh, Jack, you're a dear."

Jack grinned. Then he sobered.

"Are you sure, Jennie, that it's straight dope? These options have tied up every cent I've got. If the thing falls through I'm sunk!"

Jennie patted his shoulder reassuringly. "It won't fall through, Jack. You wait and see. And after this man buys up your options then perhaps we can take that cottage that we've been wanting for so—"

Jack's voice faltered, as two masculine arms encircled her all unwary. Thereafter, for a long time, there was no further talk of railroad rights-of-way and such prosaic things.

It was a couple of days later when Jimmie Harrison walked into the Plainsville Bank, a deep frown on his perturbed face. He strode directly up to the cage where a White stood.

"I just know what your game is, Mr. White," he began abruptly. "Unless you want to bankrupt yourself buying a lot of old worn-out farms."

"I'm afraid I don't understand," protested Jack.

"No? They tell me you hold options on every piece of property between the valley and the bluffs. Is that correct?"

"Partly so," agreed Jack, grinning.

"Humph." The other man hesitated, then proceeded: "How much do you want for them?" he demanded abruptly.

Jack eyed him silently an instant. "Under the circumstances, Mr. Harrison I believe they're worth fifty thousand dollars flat, over and above what they cost me."

"What? Fifty thousand? Ridiculous," snorted the other.

Jack shrugged. "You can take it or leave it," and he picked up some papers on his desk, indicating that the interview was terminated as far as he was concerned.

The other stared, baffled by the coolness of the man at the desk. There was a determined set to Jack's chin which precluded any attempt at useless bickering. Besides he must secure those options before the Hawkins bunch arrived in Plainsville.

"Very well, you win, Captain Kidd," he admitted grudgingly, "I suppose I'll make out the check to you?"

Jack shook his head. "You can make it out to Jennie Kane and we'll have it certified before you leave town."

The man shrugged, but said nothing.

"Talked too much already," he grunted inwardly.

That same afternoon a package of options that represented a cool fifty thousand dollars reposing in his pocket, Jimmie Harrison checked out of The Cables.

His face was grim when he passed the cigar counter.

"Well, I'll be seeing you again, Mr. Harrison," smiled Jennie Kane.

Jimmie merely grunted.

"Not if I see you first, you won't".

QUINTE BRANCH W. I.

The monthly meeting of the Quinte Branch of W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Grass, Front of Thurlow on Tuesday afternoon September 9th. A goodly number were present including visitors from Avondale and Belleville.

The President, Mrs. Jas. Bunnett had charge of the meeting which opened with the Institute Ode, followed by the Lords Prayer in unison.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Community singing was indulged in; "Old Black Joe," Peggy O'Neill," and other old time songs were sung. The secretary read a letter from the nurses in charge of the Coe Hill hospital thanking for the box of baby clothing sent. A card of appreciation from Mrs. H. Hall was also read. Miss Franklin gave a splendid talk on her trip back home to England, as one of the many delegates of the Girl Guides which met in England from all parts of the world. There were sixteen in her party.

Miss Franklin told us of their ocean trip, and the arrival at London, and of the Lord Mayor and the London Commissioner of Girl Guides addressing them as a body. She told of the visit to St Pauls' Cathedral, Hyde Park, the Zoo, London Tower, Dungeon Cell, and the beautiful monuments London possesses. The most interesting place visited was the "Mint" where they saw the process from the running in of the gold, and its coming out as money stamped ready for issue.

Miss B. Jones of Belleville also gave us an interesting talk, speaking of the beautiful age in which we are living, and the great opportunities of the younger generation have in comparison with those of the days of our U. E. Loyalist descendents. She too gave us an explanation of the Lords Prayer, and how every word of it means so much to each individual.

Mrs. Jas. Garbutt gave a paper on being a good institute member, pressing each member to do their bit to the best of their ability, and help in the work at every possible opportunity.

The roll call was "Riddles" which was well responded to. Mrs. H. Murphy invited the Institute to be hostess in Shannonville for the October meeting.

After the singing of the National Anthem Mrs. Grass served a dainty lunch.

Port Arthur, Sept. 12—A man was saved from death on the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks here by the watchfulness of the engineer of the train. The man, evidently contemplating suicide, had placed himself across the tracks in front of the fast-approaching train, but his presence was noticed by the train crew in time to make a stop. Seeing he had been frustrated in his attempt at suicide, the man picked himself up and disappeared at top speed.

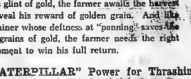
Wagons in Race Burst Into Fire

PETERBORO' Sept. 11—While thousands in the grandstand looked on, believing it was part of a breath-taking act, two member of Welch Brothers rodeo troupe were burned severely at Exhibition Park, Thursday.

The act was one of the closing events in a vaudeville and rough-riding program the flaming chuck-wagon race. Two light wagons each driven by four lunging horses, and each bearing two men, raced at breakneck speed about the track. Half way around, both wagons burst into flame.

That was only part of the act. Hundreds of times in cities across the continent the troupers has performed the same stunt, and made the spectators gasp. But the boys had soaked too much kerosene and gasoline on the sacks and straw in the wagons. The flames mounted, until they reached the riders in one of the wagons. However the performers did not stop. While the flames swept around them, burned through their clothing, and seared their flesh, they continued standing in the blazing wagon bed on their prancing steeds until they had passed the roaring thousands a last time.



Immediately they wheeled off the track, their burns were examined and they were rushed to the St. John's Ambulance Corps tents on the grounds where they received first aid. Dr. Herbert Young was called and had them moved to St. Joseph's Hospital.

A campaign for the universal use of electricity is to be started by the New Zealand Government.

The farmer who owns a "Caterpillar" track-type tractor and uses it in every operation cuts labor costs, fuel costs, and time losses. He needs no other power. You get your seed in when the ground is right. You get your crop off when it's ready . . . with a small labor charge against it. You haul it to the market over any sort of roads . . . or no roads at all.

. . . and the wheat that you weigh out at the warehouse can be sold at a profit . . . even with a low market price . . . because the profit has already been saved in the growing cost . . . not expected from a dreamed-of price.

LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

"I am only telling this now because I have to now to save Mrs. Farnsworth. The crazy jury have found her guilty and she won't get off until somebody confesses, so I confess. I should have done it long ago I guess, but how could I know any body would think she did it? I tried to stop her from looking guilty by hiding the nightgown and all, but it looks like it was a mistake. Everything I ever did in my life turned out a mistake.

"So I am ending my life, which should have ended before now. I have nothing to live for anyhow. I had every body I ever loved. My mother went first then the first Mrs. Farnsworth was taken, then Chester went back on me. That was his father's doings. He poisoned his mind against me. He would have married me otherwise. After that I lost my baby, but I never told Chester that. He thought little Chester was still living, and paid me all I asked until lately. That was one thing I put over on him. The money I never got wanted. I sent it all to a sanitarium for tubercular children. It was the only Farnsworth money ever went for charity. I guess.

"I hope Mrs. Farnsworth excuses me for not telling before. I was in such a fright I thought sure they'd leave her off. I wanted to be even with Chester before I went, but now it is too late because when this is found I will be dead.

"I don't wish Chester's wife any bad luck, but I want her to know that I had him right and he would be lowest me yet if he wasn't a white-livered weakling that clings to his mean old father. I hate weak men. So she is welcome to him. I sure got over my love for him.

"This is written on the eighth day of May, and I hope it will be good and legal without a witness.

"Signed: Marguerite Spinney."

Mr. Allan's voice was resonant and ringing to the last word. When he had come to the end he folded the paper carefully, and returned it to his pocket.

All four men looked at Cathie.

She tried to speak. Failed. Tried again, and managed one word. "Dead?"

Gordon Moore nodded. He answered her in another word. "Opium."

CHAPTER 55

"WIDOW CLEARED IN" FARNSWORTH MURDER

"Demented Maid Kills Self" After Penning Confession to Slaying Rich Man".

"Catherine Farnsworth, pretty young widow convicted last Tuesday of the murder of her millionaire husband a day stands innocent of the crime.

"A demented housemaid, Marguerite Spinney, now a suicide, was the real murderess of Alfred E. Farnsworth.

"This sensational development in a case that has already attracted national interest, came with the simultaneous finding of the Spinney woman's body and the confession she had written before taking a fatal overdose of opium.

"Credit for the dramatic vindication of Mrs. Farnsworth in the face of her conviction in Judge Keath's court, is freely given to her counsel, Messrs. Jesse F. Allen and Henry A. Gunther.

WEAK POINT

"In refusing to accept the apparently inevitable, they sought desperately for a way out of the tangled mesh of circumstantial evidence that closed on their pretty client. They chose as a weak point in the prosecution's case the disappearance of Marguerite Spinney, held at the beginning of the trial as a material witness for the state.

"It was the Spinney woman who was in the house with Mrs. Farnsworth on the night of the murder.

"The attorneys for the defense were certain that a rigid cross-examination of this woman would bring out facts vital to the case and the corrections of their surmise is seen now in the virtual admission of District Attorney Robert Macmillan that the new evidence clears Mrs. Farnsworth.

"The confession of Marguerite Spinney is now in the hands of the district attorney. It is a long, probably written document whose details dovetail perfectly in clearing up hitherto mysterious elements in the case. In the opinion of the prosecution, the confession will necessitate setting aside the jury's verdict and granting Mrs. Farnsworth a new trial. This however, promises to be a mere formality, and the case will probably be dismissed on motion of the district attorney.

"The finding of Marguerite Spinney and the contents of her confession form a strong chapter in criminal history.

"It was not until late last night that Mrs. Farnsworth's attorneys working desperately finally succeeded in finding the missing housemaid in a tenement lodging house in Stockton street near Chinatown.

TRAILED BY POLICE

"Convinced that they had found her hiding place and accompanied by Officers Jenks and Burgess of the northern police station they rapped on the door. After repeated raps had elicited no response the officers broke down the door.

"They found the body of Marguerite Spinney, dressed all in white, lying on the bed. Her long dark red hair was spread over the pillow and she appeared at first to be sleeping.

Coroner Webster estimates that she had been dead about seven hours.

"It is believed that the woman was not a dope addict, and that the opium which caused her death was procured with criminal intent.

"In her confession found by her side, the dead woman revealed the long, secret history of her relations with the Farnsworth family. The murder was the result of a lifetime of grudge against the members of the family. It developed also in the confession that the maid intended to kill Chester T. Farnsworth, her victim's son. Ordering because her act had resulted in the unexpected arrest and conviction of her beloved mistress, the half-mad woman decided to confess and commit suicide as the best way out of the situation.

RECLUSE FOUND

"Police learned that the Spinney woman had occupied housekeeping rooms in the Stockton street tenement for several weeks. Mrs. C. Pinoca, who leases the building, states that she rented the room to the Spinney woman who paid a month in advance. She was a quiet and unobtrusive roomer, alleged to be in poor health, and rarely left the room. Her only visitor was a stout elderly Italian woman whose identity has not as yet been established.

"This elderly visitor came to the apartment once a day, carrying food. Children in the neighborhood who attempted to talk with the woman state that she was a deaf mute. Police believe that she may have been somehow interested in the case, wearing as a disguise the garb of a poor, Italian widow.

"Police are working to clear up several obscure angles of the case including the source from which the Spinney woman procured the opium.

FARNSWORTH'S SON LINKED IN MURDERER'S CONFESSION

Wealthy Clubman Revealed as Father of Child Born to Housemaid Killer

"The amazing confession that has cleared Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth of all suspicion in the murder of her millionaire husband, involves Chester T. Farnsworth, rich young clubman son of the murdered man. In what may be serious charges.

"Following are the latest developments in the case:

"1. Chester T. Farnsworth is revealed in the confession as the father of an illegitimate child born to Marguerite Spinney, suicide and self-confessed murderess.

"2. The district attorney promises that the full confession of the Spinney woman will be made public tomorrow.

"3. Coincident with the expected dismissal of the case against Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth, it was intimated today that charges of perjury will be filed against Chester T. Farnsworth, in connection with his testimony in the trial.

"4. V. J. Althouse and Wilbur Burns who corroborated Farnsworth's testimony against Mrs. Catherine Farnsworth may also face perjury charges.

"5. Allan and Gunther, attorneys for Mrs. Farnsworth, have traced the full connection of the Spinney woman with the Farnsworth family, revealing a startling story of love, envy, jealousy and hate extending over two generations.

"The mother of Marguerite Spinney, a widow known as Maggie Spinney, has for seven years a housekeeper for the late Horace Farnsworth, who died in 1918. The woman, Maggie Spinney came into the employ shortly after the death of his wife, Hannah, in 1885. She was dismissed in 1895 for misconduct with an One Leeds, butler in the house. Leeds, who had several aliases disappeared at the same time, and probably left the vicinity for good.

LOSES MIND

"Brooding over her dismissal and disgrace, the Spinney woman seems to have rapidly lost her mind. She distributed all her misfortune to her late employer and at first bitterly accused him of having turned her lover, Leeds, against her. Later she seems to have changed her story and accused Horace Farnsworth of the paternity of her daughter Marguerite, who was born that same year. She made several half hearted attempts to blackmail the aged millionaire and on the 28th day of May 1896, he swore out a warrant against her. She withdrew her charges and the case was dropped.

"She died on June 2, 1902, when the daughter, Marguerite, was 7. Tuberculosis is recorded as the cause of death, though starvation was hinted at by neighbours. She never worked after leaving the Farnsworth house and her small savings rapidly dwindled. Towards the last she and the child Marguerite lived in almost unbelievable squalor and poverty.

"A few days before her death she sent the child Marguerite to the Farnsworth house, with a note to the wife of Horace Farnsworth's son, Alfred, then minister of the house. The note, which was found with papers on file in the late Alfred Farnsworth's safe, declared that she was the daughter of Horace Farnsworth, and pleaded for her care during her lifetime.

"Mrs. Alice Farnsworth, famous for her philanthropy, acted in the founding of rescue homes and free hospital beds for children took the child into her home although no evidence was ever placed in her story. Her determination to keep her daughter in many bitter family quarrels as Alfred Farnsworth was bitterly opposed to her stand.

MENTALLY WEAK

"Part of her childhood Marguerite spent in a hospital for the tubercular at Alice Farnsworth's expense. She regained her health but showed from earliest childhood evidence of mental weakness. She was never quite normal.

"The love affair between her and the late Alfred Farnsworth's child Chester developed after Alice Farnsworth's death when Marguerite was about 24 and the Farnsworth boy 32. Alfred Farnsworth immediately sent Chester to a school in the east. Marguerite's active hatred of him seems to have begun at that time.

"On Chester's return from school the affair was resumed culminating in the birth of a child to Marguerite in Marysville California. It was left in the care of a couple named Scudding residents of Marysville, and died with in a few months. Marguerite kept the knowledge of its death from Chester and exacted payments from him, over a period of years. All knowledge of the child was kept from Alfred Farnsworth who to the day of his death believed his son innocent of any relationship with the maid, and let her feel his displeasure at what he strongly called her brazen behavior and attempt to entrap his son.

"Many of these facts were brought out at the trial, but flatly denied by Chester Farnsworth.

"Sensation on Catherine Farnsworth was to have been passed on Friday.

CHAPTER 56

Cathie dressed for her last day in court. The last day.... Mr. Allan and Gordon were sure it would be the last day..... Well, even if it wasn't, she could stand it, she felt so freshened and renewed, so ..... so human again.

In her works in jail she had suffered so much, passed through so many phases of suffering....bewilderment, despair, shame, sorrow, disillusionment and finally that last, terrible deadness when all hope was gone, and she seemed squeezed dry of all human emotions.....empty and vacuous like a sponge.

And now she was all hope and gentleness and delicately sung my life again ....impatient, quivering to have it over with.

No need for the policewoman and the deputy sheriff to prod her along this time. She pushed ahead, stepping light ly and firmly in her high-heeled black pumps, th little face flushed and expectant. long widow's veil floating behind, every bit of her straining with eagerness..... hurry.... hurry..... get out of here.....

DIFFERENT LOOK

Even the crowd looked different. They didn't look morbidly curious, like men and women who have come to hear a sentence in a murder case.... but of course they hadn't come for that.... they'd read the papers.... they were coming to hear her acquitted.... to see her walk away..... free.....

"Good morning!"

It was Mr. Macmillan, the district attorney! And smiling, too. And so was Assistant District Attorney Mr. Loughlin.

"Glad to hear the good news. You're a lucky girl!" he whispered in her ear as he passed her in the anteroom.

"There she comes!"

"That's her!"

"Sh!....that's Mrs. Farnsworth—that's Catherines"

People whispering. People leaning forward to see her. People smiling their good wishes.... strange people, dear people.... oh, how different to be someone people believe in again.... not to have the world against you.... And there.... by the table....

FARMERS SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES THROUGH STORM

Heavy Storm Loss In Farm Sections

Horses, Crops and Barns Destroyed Early on Sunday

LOSSES WIDESPREAD

Tyendinaga Losses Mount In Particularly Heavy Storm

Breaking over the city at three o'clock Sunday morning one of the heaviest electric storms of the year visited the district and left in its wake damage, which will run into thousands of dollars. The electric disturbance was accompanied by a downpour of rain, which will be very beneficial to ground being prepared for fall wheat and ploughing. The storm seemed to centre over the northerly part of the city but the full force was experienced near Point Anne and on the upper section of Tyendinaga. The lightning was powerful and in many places reports have come in to the Ontario Intelligencer or stock being killed and barns with all crops burned. The storm lasted only one hour and left as quickly as it had appeared.

Clifford Hagerman's Loss

A large frame barn owned by Clifford Hagerman situated on the 4th concession of Tyendinaga was struck and totally destroyed. Part of the season's crop was lost and also a valuable team of horses. The loss is estimated at $3,000.00 partially covered by insurance. It is understood that immediately the barn was struck it burst into flames and although neighbors rushed to the assistance of Mr. Hagerman it was impossible to save any of the stock in the barn. Fortunately his splendid herd of cows were in the pasture field and were thus saved from the conflagration.

Threlkeld Barn

The storm sweeping down towards the city struck the barn of H. W. Stoliker on the second concession of Thurlow and destroyed the same. Part of the crop was also in the barn but threshing had not been completed Mr. Stoliker's loss will be heavy as the barn was in a good state of repair. Many visited the scene yesterday afternoon to find the debris still smouldering. Mr. Stoliker believes his barn was struck shortly after 3 o'clock. His daughter was also considerably alarmed when everything possible was done to save the structure.

Three horses were struck and instantly killed in the lower part of Tyendinaga township and the Indian Reserve, as the storm passed over that district. Dayton Milligan of Tyendinaga lost a horse and E. W. Rupport of the Indian Reserve lost a fine team. Both parties had their stock ensured, which will partly compensate the loss. Both men stated that the storm was particularly severe in that section, the lightning being wicked and with a heavy downpour of rain accompanying.

On Stoliker's farm on the home of J. Marsh resident near the Sand Hill north of Chapman's Corners on the Tweed road was destroyed by fire from an unknown cause along with

GERMANY UPSET THRU ELECTION

Fascists and Communists May Threaten Life of Republic

Berlin, Sept. 15—A landslide of Fascist and Communist votes in the Reichstag General Election, the sixth since the foundation of the Republic overthrew the whole foundations of Parliamentary government in Germany, and threatened the life of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's Government.

The two parties advocating overthrow of the young German Republic were among by returns made today to have outstripped practically all other parties except the Social Democrats, which control at least 178 seats in the next Reichstag.

Complete returns for 27 out of 35 electoral districts assured 137 seats to the Social Democrats, strongest party in the last Reichstag, 101 seats to the Fascists, 75 to the Communists, 64 to the Centrists. Chancellor Bruening's party, 35 to the Nationalists, and 27 to the People's Party.

The sensation of the election has been the dizzying rise of the Fascists from seats in 1928, Adolf Hitler, Austrian author of the famous Munich putsch in 1923, has become overnight a political power of the first rank in Germany.

Though by birth prevented from sitting in the Reichstag, the young Austrian—he is only 41—will lead the second largest party in the Reichstag instead of a mere negligible fraction.

Baby is Found Wandering at 3 a.m. Crying Behind Freight Shed

Somnambulism is known in older people but rarely one encounters a case in a youngster of two and one half years, such as was brought to the attention of the police early today. Generally when a child of these years lays down its toy for the day, nothing but an earthquake would bring it back from the land of Morpheus. Today as E. J. Kelly of Kingston and J. H. Charleston, Brockville were walking down the railway tracks leading from the C.N.R. north depot to Pinnacle street, they passed the freight sheds and their attention was attracted to the crying of a child. Upon investigation they found this child wandering about clothed only in night attire. Not knowing the parents of the child they took the precious bundle to the police station and Sergt. Boom on the desk started an inquiry which ultimately found the anxious parents.

The child is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Adamson, 189 Station street, and it was learned from them by the police that the child was not missed.

Newport, Rhode Island, Sept. 15 — At 8.30 standard time both the Shamrock the Fifth and Enterprise headed out of the harbor for the starting line under tow, for the second race of the America's Cup series. Sir Thomas Lipton's green hulled challenge was first to get under way. The weather is bad, a heavy sea and fog making sailing rather difficult.

Newport, Rhode Island, Sept. 15— The second of the series of races for the historic America's cup got under way at 10.40 A.M. eastern standard time, exactly on schedule. The United States defender Enterprise led the challenging Shamrock Fifth across the line and appeared to be footing much better. Shamrock, however, was in the west herbrihe

Two Minutes Ahead

The Enterprise rounded the twenty mile mark in her race in defense of the America's Cup against the Shamrock at 122.26. eastern standard time. She was two miles or more ahead of the British boat.

Newport, Rhode Island, Sept. 15— A sailing breeze of about ten miles was blowing as the two yachts started over the thirty miles triangular course. Both crafts were wearing sails, stay sails, jibs and large jib topsail.

Wanderbilt the American skipper, crossed the Shamrock's bow at 10.53. His manoeuvre left the challenger 100 lengths in the Enterprize's lee. Being first to the weather, the American boat will be first to the; the 10-mile and also act as an obstruction to the wind reaching the Shamrock's sails. At 11.05 both boats went over on the port tack. Shamrock seemed to be footing it well but it was difficult to see how she could work out of the Enterprize lee.

The American defender Enterprize rounded the ten mile marker in the second of the series of races for the historic America's Cup at 12.21 p.m. eastern standard time, leading the Shamrock Fifth the challenger by an even six minutes.

CONGRATULATIONS

Ninety-three years old on Sunday and still going strong, Mr. William Davis, of Westmount, Quebec, passed another milestone in his life. Mr. Davis lived in Belleville for many years before going to Montreal where he became a prominent business man. He is a constant reader of The Ontario Intelligencer and this newspaper joins with Mr. Davis' many Belleville friends in wishing him continued health and happiness.

MILK AND MONEY MISSING

Frequent disappearance of money left in milk bottles for early milk delivery has been reported and sometimes even the milk has disappeared bottle and all, all of which indicates that some one has been getting up earlier than the householders. Two young men in an auto recently detained by the police for investigation had two bottles of milk in their auto bottled by a Belleville dairy. The same morning a prominent business man reported the loss of two bottles of milk from his front door—so it may well be that some of the autos which pass in the night collect an occasional bottle of milk.

WEARS AUTUMN SETTING

The Belle Theatre, the popular and fashionable amusement house is now wearing its autumn colors in the decorations of the theatre. Ontario, the prevailing color in the scheme of the house. The change is marked, and is in harmony with the change of the season.

MORE PEACH TREES

The competition in peach growing in Belleville continues. Today Joe Imlah, president of the Kiwanis Club, a resident on Alexander Street, brought to the office of The Ontario Intelligencer two beautiful specimens of the peach family grown on the front lawn of his home. Mr. Imlah did not plant the tree that bore the fruit, nor did R. E. Collins, who owns the home, Mr. Imlah stated there would be at least two baskets on the tree this year, providing the youngsters on that street did not help themselves before the fruit was picked. The peaches brought to the office were of good size and perfect color.

The affair passed without incident although one of the robed knights was slightly injured when thrown from his mount.

The chief speaker's name was withheld at his own request but it is understood that he is a former member of parliament in the western provinces. John Hotherall of London district organization, spoke briefly.

The chief speaker said that Belleville district is composed largely of British descendants while other areas are anything but centres of true British activity. The candidates for admission to the Klan were led to the various stations as the huge crosses were set ablaze while hundreds of spectators viewed the spectacle at ten o'clock last night.

ASSURANCE CLUB IN FINE OUTING

Mr. J. F. Hinchey Tells of Fine Trip to Jasper Park Lodge

Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Hinchey returned Saturday from Jasper Park Lodge, Jasper, Alberta, where they have been in attendance at the annual outing of the association of super-salesmen of the company who constitute what is known as the Senior Macaulay Club. The enviable record of its members may be judged from the fact this early member of it must have written and paid for $250,000 worth of business net after deducting the total lapses if any from the previous year.

Mr. Hinchey has always qualified as a member from the time that he commenced business in Belleville in 1918, notwithstanding that he has employed no agents and has developed Belleville and district by his exclusive personal efforts. This fact marks him as an outstanding writer of life assurance. But in addition he has spent a year since 1918 headed the whole of Central Ontario Division which consists of sixty-five agents.

Mr. Hinchey reports that in the supposedly depressed condition of general business the turn out this year far exceeded all records and those present reported little or no diminution in the volume of life assurance written since January first.

Indeed so hreffe was the attendance that the facilities of Jasper Lodge extensive as they are proved quite inadequate and the club had to be divided. The Canadians numbering three hundred and sixty gathered the first week followed by over four hundred and fifty three from the United States division on the second week. Throughout the gathering the most glorious weather prevailed in the mountains which were bathed daily in the brightest of sunshine.

The famous Jasper links were in the best of condition and those with the tennis courts, the swimming pools and the other facilities for which the Lodge is famous were enjoyed to the limit. The drives to Edith Cavell Mt., to Maligne Canyon and other points of interest furnished the ladies of the party with opportunities for enjoyment equal to that of the male members of the party.

President T. B. Macaulay and Vice Pres. A. B. Wood, were present at both gatherings and their stimulating and optimistic addresses proved a great inspiration to the field forces. President Macaulay preceding the conference addressed largely attended meetings of Boards of Trade and Canadian Clubs in Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon and Edmonton, in which he dealt in an instructive way with the question of Inter-Imperial trade and its development.

Standard Church members held special Sunday services on Sunday at Trenton.

Foreign Absorption Church, State Problem

Home and Foreign Mission-ary Interests Subject of Addresses

IN FOUR CHURCHES

United Church Congregations of City Addressed on Missions

Four United Church congregations of the city were addressed on Sunday morning on the subject of the aspect of the mission work of the church at home and abroad.

What Canada Spends

Women in Canada spend $7,000,000 a year on cosmetics; the golfers have some $135,000,000 invested in golf; if it were apportioned evenly, every man, woman and child in the Dominion would spend $6.78 a year on tobacco. And still, maintains the Rev. H. B. Cochrane, M.A., D.D., secretary of the Board of Home Missions for the United Church of Canada, preaching in John Knox United Church yesterday morning, there was a deficit of $180,000 in the funds of the Home Mission Board last year. This means, he claims, that the gospel will not be carried to some parts of Canada's frontier this year.

Rev. R. H. Cochrane, M.A. D.D., secretary of the Board of Home Missions of The United Church of Canada, is the son of the late Rev. Wm. Cochrane, D.D., Brantford, for a generation the convenor of the home missions committee of The Presbyterian Church in Canada. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, had remarkable success in downtown work for ten years at College Street Church, Toronto, and was more recently minister of Augustine Church, Winnipeg. He has lately completed four tours which, have taken him to the more important institutions and districts of northern and western Canada from a home missions point of view.

Alma.

Dr. Cochrane painted a vivid picture of his journeys in the Peace River district, in the northern parts of Labrador, on the Pacific Coast, in fact in all the wild parts of this Dominion that still remain. He made an urgent appeal for funds, in order that this necessary work, Home Mission work, might be carried on as before.

Since 1900 one millions non-Anglo-Saxons have come to this country. We owe them brotherhood; we owe them partnership, said the speaker. They need the gospel and how is the gospel to be carried to them if there be no Home Mission Board?

"The Missions are in a bad way," he said. "We have a large annual deficit. There need be no such deficit. Our object is to light fires in the cold rooms of ignorance and misunderstanding from Ocean to Ocean," Among Ukrainians

"A home missionary to foreigners. Rev. W. H. Pike, of the All People's Mission at Edmonton, declared himself at Holloway Street Church on Sunday morning. He made an appeal financially but stressed the problem of the foreigners within the country. Every one in four, is a foreigner in Edmonton, in Toronto one in ten is Jew, 54 per cent of the children in some parts are of foreign birth, there are forty-seven racial groups in Canada and one hundred and eleven languages are spoken. said Mr. Pike. This great mixture of races is mingling blood, and it must be made to the betterment of civilization.

Rev. Mr. Pike, said: "We cannot get away from the fact that as a nation and a church we are facing the foreigner. You cannot find a town or a city, where you are not face to face with the new Canadian. You do not need to spend thousands to go to see Russia at home but can go to our west and find settlements after thirty years still Russian in outlook and aims. In many places the English language is unknown. It is safe to predict that in fifty years time there will be parts of Canada, where the Anglo Saxon will have been driven out. We have even colonization in Canada from these islands of foreign settlements because the younger generation wants to be together and follow their racial ideals. We have also an altiestic menace in the west. There are slum conditions in some of the larger cities. Schools there are in the west where communists teachca anti-British sentiment and anti-Christian thought."

Mr. Pike has spent most of his life among Ukrainians and he told an amusing story of his first attempts at the language, when he made a mistake and called a Russian "an old devil" instead of "grandfather". He told a story of the salvation of a Russian and his family from a life of material progress to one of service and to the redemption of the community. He told the story of a young woman who gave her life among the newcomers and when she died tears flowed from the eyes of the grief stricken Ukrainians. Today young men of Slav parentage wants to be Christian missionaries.

India

An impassioned appeal for assistance in the promotion of foreign missions in India was made by Rev. C. D. Donald B.A., D.D., before a large congregation at Bridge Street United Church yesterday morning. He painted a vivid picture of conditions as they exist in the East particularly in respect to the caste system which has dominated the country for centuries.

Mr. Donald has recently returned from India, where he has been serving with the Central India Mission of the United Church of Canada. For some time, in addition to his duties as letter of evangelistic work in a large district, he edited The Torch, the mission monthly magazine.

He is a graduate of University of Toronto and Emmanuel College and a preacher of power and charm, with a gift for conveying a clear and satisfying impression of conditions and prospects.

"The outcast is despised by the Brahma as ignorant, dirty and superstitious. He is careless about marriage bonds and is shunned and ignored under these conditions which have existed for two thousand years. The young Brahma admits that the system is a great disadvantage to political advancement but he says there is no remedy."

Mr. Donald went on to point out that marriage laws have been strengthened and the outcasts have begun to be recognized and maintained that help should be given them in their struggle. "The Brahma occupies an exalted place in the eyes of his countrymen but any message directed toward him is a revolutionist idea."

Mr. Donald dealt briefly with the recent disturbances in India and stated that tact and caution must be exercised in dealing with those who have been seeking after self-government. "The outcasts have been condemned to carry a broom and a garbage pan as a mark of their rank and we must try to remedy this condition," the speaker declared in closing.

Material or Spiritual

"There never was a time in the Christian era when everything Jesus did is looked at so closely as the present time," said Rev. D. N. McLachlan D.D, speaking at the Tabernacle Church on Sunday morning. "The industrial unrest, the theological thinking makes us apply the principles of this man or we will decay. this thinking is going on outside of the church. There is no chapter in the Bible that challenges us more than the 25th chapter of Matthew. To determine our position we shall deal with nationalities, not denominations but we must treat every creature of the world especially the underprivileged." Dr. McLachlan is well qualified to speak on the subject of underprivileged as he has served as secretary for the Board of Evangelism and Social Service since the union in 1925.

"The question of unemployment is uppermost in the minds of men today and our Christian responsibility never intended that the minority should have it and the rest live on the luxury of the land. Not only are the people hungry for the wants of life but there are hundreds of thousands spiritually hungry in the world. There are one half million people in Canada who never go to a Sunday School yet there is secular education and those responsible for not providing for the younger element of this country are only sowing the wind and will reap the whirlwind.

"There is only six-tenths of one percent suhormal people in Canada today but are we thinking rationally"? asked the Divine. "The sun went down on July 31st, 1924 on a world that will never come again. We are building a new civilization of material things but not spiritual. We are building stone buildings with high walls to contain so called criminals instead of battling the things that makes for criminals and it is simply because we do not know the book."

ROBINS ON TOP IN NATIONAL

Defeat Reds for 10th Straight Victory, while Cards Break Even

New York, Sept. 15.—The Brooklyn Robins swept into the National League lead yesterday, by winning their tenth straight victory, passing the St. Louis Cardinals, who broke even in a double-header.

After spotting Cincinnati three runs in the first innings, the Robins came on to win 6 to 3. Jumbo Elliott blanking the Reds after they had knocked Hollis Thurston out of the box in the first inning.

The Cardinals won their fifth straight game by defeating the Boston Braves, 9 to 3, in the opener, but dropped the second game, 7 to 4, which was halted at the end of the eighth inning because of the Sunday law which stipulates that all baseball games must end at 6 p.m.

Cubs Idle.

The Chicago Cubs were idle, but will play a double-header against the Phillies tomorrow. The Cardinals will be idle tomorrow awaiting the opening of their critical three-game series against the Robins at Ebbet's Field, Tuesday. The Robins play the Reds again tomorrow.

Standing of the three leaders, games behind and games left to play follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.	G.B.	G.L.P.
Brooklyn	83	60	.580	..	11
St. Louis	83	60	.577	½	12
Chicago	81	61	.570	1	13

G. B. — Games behind. G.L.P. — Games left to play.

Each of the leaders has now lost the same number of games, 60, the difference in the standing being caused by the Robins having played one more game than the Cardinals, and two more than the Cubs.

The schedule seems to favor the Robins from now on, as they have ten of their remaining 11 games at home, seven of them against second division clubs. The Cards have eight of their remaining 13 games on the road, while the Cubs have nine of their 13 abroad.

Robins Crippled

Brooklyn, however, will go into the crucial series against St. Louis minus the services of two of its stars, Babe Dressler and Johnny Frederick. Dressler has two broken fingers and is out for the rest of the year. Frederick has a pulled leg muscle, but if it responds to treatment he may get into the last game Thursday. Eddie Moore, reserve infielder, has been shifted to the outfield to patch up the fine-up.

The New York Giants suffered a double defeat at the hands of the Phillies here Friday today, and instead of being in the pennant race any longer have to fight to hold fourth place against the Buccaneers' challenge.

Games remaining for each of the three leaders follow: Brooklyn—At home, Cincinnati 1, St. Louis 3, Pittsburg 2, New York 1, Boston 3, abroad, Philadelphia 1, St. Louis—At home, Pittsburg 4; abroad, Brooklyn 3, Philadelphia 5. Chicago—At home, Cincinnati 4; abroad, Philadelphia 2, New York 3, Boston 4.

SHAMROCK LOST BY SHORT TIME HAD POOR START

Crosses Finish Line 2 Minutes 52 Seconds Behind Defender

SKIPPER CONFIDENT

Newport, R.I., Sept. 15—Sir Thomas Lipton lost the first of this year's races for the America's cup here on Saturday. Some say he lost because the Enterprise is a faster boat than his Shamrock V. Some say because Harold S. Vanderbilt sailed a brainer race than Ted Heard, and some lay the British defeat to yachting luck and capsicius weather. The Shamrock got off to a bad start and trailed the Enterprise for 30 miles running and reaching to finish 2 minutes and 52 fender.

Briefly, in landsman's language, this is what happened. With the wind blowing five or six miles out of the northeast the gun for the start was fired at 12.55 p.m. The Shamrock was caught in a bad position like a restive race-horse before the barrier. Vandrbilt was across the line and away before Heard was set. Instead of immediately putting his boat directly before the wind Vanderbilt delayed changing his gills and kept away on the Enterprise bearing slightly to the west. The remained Shamrock slipped away a few boat lengths behind. Heard, without delay, broke the great rooma spinnaker. He was at least 40 seconds ahe ad of Vanderbilt-in this manoeuvre but with his mainsail drawing to port over the left side of the boat and the spinnaker at least filled to right, he accinishingly appeared to make no gain.

Cut Across Shamrock's Bow

The Enterprise kept on bearing to westward against all rules and, a thousand yards off the leeward buoy, jibed and bore up for the mark. That is she switched her sails over to the other side and turned slightly so that she was dead set on the buoy around which she had to turn.

In doing this she cut across the bow of the Shamrock which was a quarter of a mile behind but going straight for the mark as she had done since the start of the race.

The extraordinary part of this first half of the race was that the Enterprise sailed a quarter again as far as the Shamrock and still held the lead whether by a quarter of a mile or less it was difficult to judge from the observation boats. .

The Enterprise jibed about the mark at 302.16 and the Shamrock at 304.29, giving the American yacht an advantage of 2 minutes and .07 seconds at the turning the buoy, began a hard hitch back into the wind.

It may be said to the credit of her designers and her skipper that in the late afternoon sunlight driving closehauled, that is with her mainsail almost running fore and aft, she stood like a bit of bright, hard, white cardboard, as though her sails were cut from what the artists call not below double elephant. The Shamrock, on the other hand, wearing a Bb like a very long handkerchief, often shook and trembled in the wind which had increased to perhaps 12 or 10 knots—knots are a little more than miles.

The wind meanwhile had shifted to the east so the fond hopes of the race committee that the yachts would run before the wind out 15 miles and back 15 miles back against the wind were destroyed.

Bear Kills Yearling at Millbridge Carcass is Dragged Across Marsh

According to farmers in the northern part of Hastings County, bears are more plentiful this year than for some time. Last week Mrs. Charles Reeres of Bancroft was attacked and received severe wounds about the body. She is now recovering from the injuries.

Mr. John Davison who resides on a farm near Millbridge reports today that one o the animals has been molesting his stock. Yesterday he discovered on visiting the pasture fields that one of his yearlings had been slain and part of the carcass consumed. Mr. Davison found bear tracks leading into the bush and was convinced of its identity. He immediately informed neighbors and traps were set for the animal but with little results.

This morning Mr. Davison again visited the field and found that the remains of the yearling had been dragged across a marsh. Apparently the bear had its lair near by and Mr. Davison believes the animal was seeking food for her young.

Bears have been preying on the stock in other parts of the County and farmers are expecting more loss leaving their herds to pasture at nights. One farmer states that previous to this year he has not seen a bear for some time. Asked as to why he attributed for their presence this year, Mr. Davison states that there is an apparent scarcity of available food in the woods and the animals are becoming bolder in raiding the farmer's yards.

Traps have been set and residents of the north are stalking about Millbridge district with rifle arms in the hope that the bear may be destroyed term is very far advanced.

The Red Era gets its name from minute organisms which redden the water in some places, but most of the Red Sea is greenish-blue in color.

Italy will export nearly $2,000,000 worth of aircraft this year.

HEAVY STORM LOSS IN FARM SECTIONS

part of the contents. The family were at home at the time and had left the house for a few minutes only to come back to find the rear part of the home enveloped in flames. With assistance of kindly neighbors part of the furniture in the front part of the house was removed. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The storm was followed by a humid sultry day yesterday with the mercury mounting high in the glass. The weatherman promised very warm weather for today but the day broke dark and cloudy with a zing, of rain in the air. The country is in need of general rain, which would make agricultural interests in a better frame of mind, respecting prospects for another good crop next year.

Apparently the heavy disturbance extended far east of the city as Walter Huffman resident on the 4th concession of North Fredericksburg lost his barn when struck by lightning. The barn was struck shortly after four o'clock and was soon enveloped in flames. Mr. Huffman lost his season's crop, which included 700 bushels of grain, 35 tons of hay and a barn full of straw. He also lost three sets of harness, a tractor nearly new and a binder. He figures his loss at $4,000 only partially covered by insurance. One horse, a motor truck and a cutter were saved. The house is on the opposite side of the road on which the barn is situated and near the house is a large maple tree. The tree caught fire and it was necessary to chop down the tree and drawn it away to save the dwelling.

The storm was quite heavy in the vicinity of Cannifton and one of the tolls apparently struck Carmichael's canteen in that village. Sixteen electric light bulbs were blown out, but were not discovered blown until an attempt was made to light them yesterday morning.

BEE BLAMED FOR MOTOR CRASH

Belleville Party Victims When Oshawa Car Turns To Left

Mrs. J. J. Robertson 271 Pinnacle street, is in Bowmanville General Hospital suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident near Thurlow early yesterday afternoon when Edward Green, 29 Dunbar street, Belleville, with Hepburn and Brown, this city, is also a patient at the same institution. Twenty-five stitches were necessary to close a wound in Mrs. Robertson's left arm while Green received severe acid burns about the face and it was feared that he might lose his eye-sight. Liquid from the storage batteries seared his flesh. Mrs. Robertson it was expected, will be able to leave the hospital tonight.

Dr. Chas. Adams, student physician at Dr. Robertson's office and Miss Catherine Robertson although the former returned to Belleville last night, was hurt internally.

The party were en route to Toronto to visit John Robertson Jr., who is a patient at St. Michael's Hospital when the accident occurred. Miss Catherine Robertson was scheduled to enter Wellesley hospital as a nurse-in-training today. The car was badly wrecked. Eye Was Cause

Arthur Wood of Oshawa, was driving east near Courtice, five miles west of Bowmanville, when a bee entered the sedan. He tried to kill it and in doing so he allowed his car to swing to the opposite side of the road crashing head-on with the Green motor. Green's car turned turtle in the ditch.

Both cars were badly damaged the Belleville motor being wrecked beyond repair and while the other car was also smashed up.

Miss Dora Brown, a passenger in the Wood car, suffered scalp wounds while Wood himself escaped with slight head bruises. After Provincial Traffic Officer Hinchcliffe of Bowmanville investigated the accident which occurred at 1.30 p.m. it was decided that Wood was at fault and he will probably be charged with driving a car in a manner dangerous to the public.

FAMILY GATHERED ON MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY

Mrs. W. R. Vallance, No. 12 Highland avenue, celebrated a birthday yesterday and in honour of the auspicious occasion members of the Valance family gathered at the home from all sections of this province and the United States. In honour of the day of her birth, Mrs. Vallance presented all the members of the family with a copy of the Holy Bible.

A day of reminiscence and a red letter day in the family history. It is not often that all the members of a family are privileged to be grouped together at one time.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. F. Burke of Belleville; Mrs. Burke is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vallance; among others at the reunion were Mrs. W. Aslin of Rochester, another daughter of the Vallances; Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Burns, Belleville, Mrs. Burns being a daughter, Miss Edith and Miss Evelyn Vallance, Rochester, daughters Mr. and Mrs. William Marsh, Brighton, Mrs. Marsh, another daughter, Mrs. Vallance's sister, Mrs. C. B. Ault, Kansas City, Missouri, and Master Alden son of Mrs. Ault.

Dinner was served early in the afternoon and the large party presented a festive sight as they sat down to the table. The entire family stayed to supper, dispersing to their various homes in the evening.

Fashionably Speaking

BY LUCILLE

Dear Readers:

This year, winter fashions will be distinguished by the return of cloth frocks to the mode. The late years silks and crepes seem to have superseded the vogue for cloth, but wool fabrics, fine and smooth, are now coming into their own. Business girls will welcome the new style, for sometimes jersey frocks seem too sporty and silk dresses too dressy for wear at work.

With cloth dresses the style will be severe in cut, with little feminine touches to give them wanted charm Some smart effects are achieved, especially in black and white. With black, turquoise, blue is a newer shade for trimming, and I have seen a very stunning example of this. The frock was made in long tunic effect, with a blue satin roll collar.

Jacket frocks are still good and promise to be a feature of the mode. They are fashionable in colors of browns and greens. The jacket is more bolero, and in some dresses which have long sleeves, can be discarded. A matching jacket is a handy little thing to have to slip on, on a cold day, when you don't want to wear a bulky sweater under your coat.

New York is introducing a striking note in dresses for winter, in the presentation of wool lace dresses, in styles gracefully feminine, and in deeper colours, with black leading as always. The silhouette, for these dresses, is long and slender to the knees, with a flaring fulness below, which is very becoming to those of average height, and taller. This fabric is soft rich and fragile looking, yet in reality is sturdy and practical.

Trimmings are restrained, this year, to give the cut of the frock emphasis Velvet in the same shade, on cloth makes unusual collar and cuffs,especially when used in petal formation.

In planning your wardrobe this fall it would be a wise thing to include a cloth dress in your costumes. You will find the choice wide, and the dress practical.

A Set Style, ill has become, this custom of having matched accessories. Along this line we find a delightful set consisting of a glove of white with a large gauntlet cuff of crocodile leather, the same leather being used for an envelope shaped handbag.

Collar A New Fashion by being one of the first to wear a large flat collar made entirely of tiny white or blue beads. These collars are tied with beaded slide.

Net Gains in popular favor especially when combined with chiffon evening frock, showing a print of large red and green flowers on a black ground. The skirt has a large hem of black net which is enlivened by appliqued cut out flowers of the print of the frock.

The Seal of Approval is placed on real this season. A coat of red Moire cloth with a high waistline, flared and double sleeves uses black seal for a large collar that also faces the front of the bolero. Accessories include, red felt hat, black pumps and black bag.

A Call to Arms is sounded by those designers who are stressing original treatment of the sleeve. And now comes an enterprising glove maker with a glove of white kid with a flaring gauntlet of supple black astrakan.

A Rest Cure is to be found in the very alluring negligees available this season. A particularly attractive model is made of pale peach chiffon with a cape of Chantilly lace, in pale beige, dipping down in back and coming over the shoulders to form a sunplice in front. The scalloped hemline is raised in front but forms a brief train at back.

A VIOLIN'S MELODY

A butterfly with velvet wings
Or bronze and golden flame
All edged with slender black,
Sailed softly o'er a pool
Of perfumed stillness;
A moment hung in dainty poise,
Then soared away in spiraled grace
With lost amid the shadows
Of grey and purple dusk.

St. Andrew's Club Host to Societies

On Thursday evening a very enjoyable outing was held by the members of St. Andrew's Club, at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wallbridge Massassaga, when they entertained the members of the various organizations of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The weather was on its very best behaviour and the spacious lawn was well filled with happy guests. A huge bonfire was lit at the water's edge and around this could be seen many of the guests industriously engaged in roasting corn or toasting marshmallows. A space was cleared for dancing and fun and merriment reigned supreme until the late hour. Towards the close of the evening coffee and hot dogs also watermelon were provided. Before leaving for home, an invitation made by the Rev. Dr. Seymour, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Wallbridge for so kindly placing their home at the disposal of the club. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

Radio Fans Corner

Reception last night was decidedly all to the bad and hardly worth listening to at least that is the way it appealed to me but I think the majority will agree with me. The static was particularly bad all evening and at a late hour showed no signs of letting up.

However, we're hoping for better things tonight surely, surely we won't have three bad nights in a row. A and P Gypsies from WEAF at 7.30 EST tonight at 8.30 EST General Motors Family Party and we're all invited. The orchestra in this program is under the direction of Frank Black and that means music.

Sign of the Shell over WEAF tonight too at 9.30 EST with Wendell Hall, 'ukelele' and narrator, and the orchestra under the direction of Art Kassel. Oh, oh, look, Phil Spitalny and his merry men playing from WEAF at 10 EST and there is no need of praising this program up because everybody knows how good Phil is and they have no urging to listen in on his programs.

Uncle Abe and David from WEAF to night too at 10.15 EST and WJZ offers at 6.30 EST Roxy and his Gang and that is fun for all in plenty. Maytag orchestra over WEAF also with Johnny Wolfe, singing comedian.

Real Folks at 8.30 EST and over WJZ and Matt and Marthy and all the neighbours will give us a royal welcome if we attend their doings tonight so let's go. Stromberg-Carlson program at 9 EST over WJZ and Slumber Music at 10 EST.

From WABC at 7 EST comes the Mardi Gras program featuring a male chorus, a girls' trio and Freddie Rich's orchestra. Sounds good doesn't it? All right let's listen in then.

OPENING WILL DRAW BIG CROWD TO ANNUAL SHOW

Kiwanis Carnival Begins To Function For Solid Week

MAYOR WEMP COMES

Tonight is the night that all Belleville has been eagerly looking forward to—The grand opening of The Belleville Kiwanis Clubs greatest carnival in the armouries.

The annual show has become an event of real importance in the community life of Belleville—So much so that most people make this a real Kiwanis week and attend every night.

On an inspection trip through armouries today one is readily convinced that the first night at this show will be as complete and successful as any other night. Every booth is filled with beautiful exhibits by Belleville Merchants and Manufacturers. The merchandis, at the games is of the finest quality and the beautiful new stage setting is all ready for the mannekuins to step out of "vogues" picture book and show the new autumn styles as vouched for by local merchants at their best.

The show troupe as arranged and trained by Captain Plunkett of Dunbells fame arrived in the city today and they promise a show of the high est order.

The opening ceremonies tonight will be unique and interesting inasmuch as Mayor Bert Wemp of Toronto and himself an old Belleville boy will fly from Toronto in order that he may grace the platform of the Kiwanis Carnival and declare it officially opened for the week.

When Kiwanis starts on their Karnival plans each year—some how and unique advertising feature is usually brought forward and this year it is the Kiwanis Broadcasting station on wheels. That goes through the streets either playing music or announcing the coming features at the Carnival. The music and the speaking is of course amplified to great strength and in the case of the speaking—The words are spoken into a microphone inside the float and can be heard for several blocks. The electrical attachment on the car to make this possible is said to be the only one in Canada.

The opening ceremonies will be at eight o'clock sharp and the Kiwanis Committee are anxious that everyone will be seated by that time and thus avoid delys.

BEAR STORIES

Why does mankind take such an interest in bear stories? The city dweller gets the exhilaration of a good story out of a bear's antics, he has been fed on stories in the nursery and in the fairy books about the animals, and he has an ancestral interest in bears after all, for his ancestors doubtless were brought into close contact with the black and brown denizens of the woods. Besides bears are ordinarily inoffensive, not like the meat wolf, (which is nature's animal of prey,) spurred on by hunger and nature to be the most detested of wild life) and a story of a bear stealing honey makes a man laugh if he is not his honey or his home that is visited. The tale of a bear carrying a woman across a field for over half a mile does interest mankind very deeply.

Man is so accustomed to bear ancestrally that a gruff grouchy man is called in sport "an old bear." So bear stories rightly touch man closely.

The rural dweller's interest in the bear comes in many cases from personal contact. Farmer people are not afraid of bears though they are apt to meet them on occasion, while the city man safe in the avenue of skyscrapers takes a televis.on look at the beast.

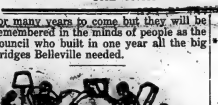
Among the wild animals bears are probably best known to man. Just in this section, every autumn tells its story of the killing of bears in orchards, and near houses where the curious hunger and dainty taste of the bear, the fellows attract them. Humanity has an interest in the creatures and their activities.

TWO FINDS

Discovering traces of the Franklin expedition lost in the Arctic eighty-three years ago Major Burwash startled the world this week with his radio message.

It would seem impossible that two such experiences as the discovery of the Andree party and the Franklin relics should come within the space of one month, separated as the scenes are by the full width of the Arctic. Yet that seems to be just the turn of fate to have the two finds come in the same summer. The Andree find was accidental and the Burwash was as result of a quest. But both are important.

UNIVERSAL WAGNER



An Italian Toscanini ruling in Bareuth, the home of the great music drama king Wagner, is the latest proof that Toscanini has become the interpreter of Wagner. Siegfried Wagner, son of the master, has gone and the old Wagernism is gone. Wagner has come into his world throne when all nations, Italians and others worship his art as much as the Germans do.

Wagner was greater than any one race, his art message was for the world The New York Times referring to the change says:—

"To this we have brought us at last. And one of the most significant facts in this state of things is the invitation—if it be confirmed as a fact—to Mr. Toscanini to be a kind of dictator at Baireuth. If he is anything at Baireuth, a dictator he will be—any who knew of his activities in New York will be sure of that. How far his conducting, marvelous as it is in most ways, will permanently and entirely suit the intelligent and cosmopolitan lovers of Wagner's works remains to be seen. There were some people in New York the palmy days of Mr. Conried's stewardship who dared to raise certain questions as to the limitations upon the freedom he imposed upon the action of the stage, as distinguished from the purely orchestral aspects of his work. Perhaps the Baireuth audiences find all as it should be. At any rate, no whispers of disagreement with any details seem to have reached the outer world. Perhaps no whispers were uttered, no sighs heaved. But the German police, even in provincial towns, are very efficient.

BRIDGE BUILDING COUNCIL

A real Christmas present for the people of Belleville from the 1930 city council—a new upper bridge, the second in one year! Santa Claus will seem generous to Belleville this year with the regime of Mayor Reid and the city council. The names will live not only on bronze tablets for many years to come but they will be remembered in the minds of people as the council who built in one year all the big bridges Belleville needed.

SIDELIGHTS

THE WINDMILL

The windmill house is very tall,
And four great sails across it sprawl—
Four m.ghty sails that whirl and go
Which ever way the wind may blow,
The miller works inside the mill
With wheat to grind and sacks to fill,
And when I eat my bread for tea
I think how clever he must be.

I'd like to be a miller too,
And do the things that millers do;
I'd watch the crops grow long and brown,
And when the farmer cut them down
I'd wait until he threshed his stalks,
Then buy his corn to fill my sacks.

All day my busy mill would hum'
And laden carts would go and come,
And flour-dust flying everywhere
Would powder all my clothes and hair.
And in my windmill-house I'd hear
Those great sails hovering so near,
That turn the mill to grind the wheat,
To make the bread for folks to eat,
And when you sat and took your tea
Perhaps you'd sometimes think of me.

—Elizabeth Fleming.

GALLOPING GOLF has been heard of and now "Walloping Golf" is a claimant for public attention. One of our friends who motors to Toronto frequently says that golf on the hills, or whatever it may be called, is a great game—you buy a pail of fifty balls for fifty cents and with the club handed you whale away at the balls which are retrieved by small boys hired for the purpose. You don't walk all over the lot, just stand there and dig up as much turf as you please while trying to knock fifty balls out of sight. We can imagine that this game would be a sure cure for a serious case of irritability, would knock it out of bounds in fact.

STILL ANOTHER SIDELIGHT fan to be heard from comments upon the Belleville business men who always smile a greeting wherever they meet you while others seem to have their faces set in so serious a mold that to meet them is a more or less chilling experience. Get the smile habit, you have no idea how a good healthy smile warms its way into other folks' hearts, not a silly grin mind you, but a real honest-to-goodness smile backed up by sincere liking, and when you smile a while, you just naturally get to liking everybody.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

False Alarm

Y. E. Kates

Dick Wendy frowned at the quiet sea, a nymph in flaming scarlet bathing suit had just danced by his elevated chair, followed by an escort of gay, young admirers who listened to their laughter and their gay sallies. His brow darkened.

Young fools," he muttered unflatteringly. His fists clenched. At the slightest encouragement he would have leaped at them and scattered them upon the sand. And as for that vivid, young thing in scarlet—his hands itched to administer to her a separate and individual spanking; one that she would never forget.

The vivid, young thing in scarlet was playing leap frog along the beach at a lull in the merriment she tripped up to Dick's chair and smiled. She received a cold, blank stare.

"Hello," she went on, undaunted. "I ought not to apologize, but I'm going to, just the same. I'm terribly ashamed of myself. Won't you say that you—you forgive me".

Dick's eyes, dark and piercing, burned into her face. Her lips quivered at the intensity of his regard.

"Do you think," he asked, "that what you did was forgivable?"

She did not answer, and, like a naughty child deserving of her chastisement, she twisted her fingers and stared down at the sand.

"What sort of a joke," he went on, his voice hard, but his eyes softening in every stared at her bowed, golden head, "do you think it is, to pretend to drown, so that I am forced to leave my post and go swimming after you with those cheap tricks. I'm not a life guard along this section. While I'm chasing after your false alarms, some one else might drown. I suppose that would give you and your pack of practical jokers something very funny to laugh about."

She stared frankly into his face. "It is stupid isn't it," she admitted humbly.

He found it hard to meet her gaze. Again his eyes roved over the sea.

"Twice i nthe two days you played that abominable trick," he went on, finding it easier to talk when he looked away. "Supposing you were to drown—and supposing this occurred when it was just another false alarm, where would you be by the time the sea yielded its prey."

It was a somber thought. The girl nodded thoughtfully. "It would serve me right," she confessed gravely. "But I'm sorry. I've tried to make amends. won't you shake hands ip show that you're a better sport than I am."

Dick felt his chair tremulously. He took her hand in his. Her sudden smile would have melted an iceberg. Within the next minute she was walking back to her friends, but she was left to his thoughts.

His thoughts were tumultuous, revolving around a girl in a scarlet bathing suit, with golden hair and vivid smile. He wondered if it would make any difference to her if she knew that he had taken his job as life guard on a joking dare, that he had graduated from college with honors, that he was rich enough to buy her the moon, if she would but ask for it.

He watched her as she swam with easy, fearless strokes out into the depths, and he pictured her upon his return dance floor, swaying into him to the soft strains of a waltz, her golden hair like an aura about her head, her bright young face vivid, her eyes radiant.

And then, suddenly, he saw her hand go up in alarm. Her voice came across the water, faint and distant, calling for help. He looked quickly along the beach. Her friends seemed occupied with their own merriment, —or were they only pretending to be occupied, while they watched, out of the corners of their eyes, as he succumbed to another false alarm?

He swore vehemently. Had she been fooling with him when she had come to apologize? She was fooling now, as she seemed to flounder in the depths, her faint voice barely audible? Was this another false alarm?

He refused to believe it. In a few bounds he crossed the beach, but before he plunged into the water he heard the mocking laughter of her friends, and the exclamation,—"She's at it again—" rang in his ears as he dove through breakers and struck out, swiftly for deep water.

"At it again!" He'd teach her, the minx. He'd pit her the thankless task of her life. —unless—A sudden fear clutched at him.

He swam, and reach her side she had sunk from view. Had she deliberately disappeared, or was she struggling for her life? He waited in agony for a moment, then saw golden hair with nameless dread. Then suddenly she rose to the surface, almost at his side, her eyes closed, her face twisted with pain.

He cried out triumphantly as he seized her. In a short while he had brought her ashore.

He was oblivious of the quickly forming crowd as he held her in his arms. She had swallowed but little water. Her breath came in gasp and her eyelids fluttered weakly.

"Darling," he whispered, unconscious that he was speaking. "Sweetheart "

She opened her eyes. "Say it again," she murmured, "and then you can throw me back to drown."

He repeated his words. He whispered ecstatic sweet nothings in her ears.

Her friends broke, through the crowd "And we had thought you were fooling again."

The girl in scarlet smiled as she looked up into Dick's face. "I'm sorry," she whispered softly. "I'm not fooling this time."

DEFENDER COST ABOUT $650,000

Figures Include Construction, Equipment and Maintenance

Newport, R. I., Sept. 13.—Extravagant figures have been used in connection with the cost of building and operating one of the America's Cup yachts. They have been visualized as creations running into the millions. No receipt bills have been made public and nobody will tell us, but the approximations may be summed up.

It cost about $500,000 to build, rig and operate each one of the four defense candidates. That included the tenders and pay of crews. Sham-bulls on the other side, cost considerably less

Enterprise, however, with all the extravagant expenditures on her, probably will be hauled out after the races are over with a total of bills of about $630,000. That will not include, however, the Diesel Yacht Vara of Harold S. Vanderbilt, which he has had at her service all summer, and no end of other auxiliary cost which he has borne without charge to the account of his associates in the racer's expenses.

The cost of Enterprise in round figures has been:

Construction—$150,000.

Sails—$200,000.

Upkeep—$250,000.

Weekly air service has just been inaugurated between Panama and Venezuela.

For your new home Choose this modern roof

THE question you should settle in your mind when considering the roof on your new house is which is the most economical roof—not which is the cheapest.

While a cheap roof may cost you only a very few dollars less than a beautiful, permanent roof of Johns-Manville Shingles, it will become increasingly expensive as each year brings fresh repair bills. A J-M roof is the best dollar value you can buy because it gives you roof protection and outstanding roof beauty at the lowest cost per year.

A roof of J-M Asbestos Shingles will never need further attention. A J-M Asphalt Shingle Roof (as lower cost) will give you sturdy protection that will free you from all repair expense for many years.

In either type of roof there is a wide range of beautiful colour combinations which are not obtainable in most other roofings.

Ask your builder or the nearest roofing material or lumber dealer to show you some of these modern, durable J-M Roofs in your neighbourhood.

Fliers Jubilant At Their Release

Montreal, Que., Sept. 13 (CP)—Jubilant at their release after many days from weather and legal difficulties, Capt. J. Erroll Boyd, Canadian war flyer, and Lieut. P. Connor, his United States friend and navigator, at 8.30 a.m. Eastern daylight saving time today hitted the veteran Bellanca monoplane Columbia off the turf at St. Hubert Airport in a fifty second and headed east for Harbor Grace, Nfld., on their way across the Atlantic to England.

Health cannot be looked for in the child that is subject to worms, because worms destroy health by creating internal disturbances that retard development and cause extreme weakness. LUCKY GIRL

by Hazel Livingston

"Ma! Ma, darling! Cathie couldn't keep back the words. They tumbled out before she knew it. She almost threw herself into the beloved, middle-aged arms before she remembered where she was, and all the people watching, and Ma wanting to do everything just right.....

"Sure it's me, Pud, your collar straight, Cathie, it's a bit awry to the right.....

OH, SO GLAD.....

"But, Ma—oh, I can't believe it. I didn't dare to hope you'd be able to come. Oh, Ma, I'm so glad—so glad so glad—"

"Try to keep me away!"

"You're sure you're well enough? You don't think you——"

"The very idea! As I said to Doolin, and that trained nurse he sent—a nice girl, but not what I'd call a good hand for a sick-room—that they're beginning——"

"You're sure you'll be all right Ma? You're sure?"

"Of course! When I got the news I was well—just like that fish—listen.."

"But——Cathie whispered, behind her hand.

"Shh!" Ma whispered, forbiddingly, sitting up very straight and turning respectful gentle eyes on the judge.

"Darling Ma," Cathie thought lovingly, "dear, darling Ma." studying the sweet, lined face with anxious care. "Sticking to me through everything not even being surprised at the way it turned out and coming.....coming right out of a sickbed.....pushing the poor nurse right out of the room I'll bet, and Dr. Doolin storming at her..... as if it would do any good to try to keep Ma from one of us kids."

"Pay attention!" Mr. Grubber said, nudging. "Pete's sake, don't you interested in your own release?"

Cathie nodded brightly. "Oh yes..... I was just thinking....."

Then her eye caught Gordon's. He smiled at her, a serious promising smile, as if he were say'n': "Child, I tell you? Didn't I promise.....?"

LOVE ON WING .....

Across the courtroom her love went winging back on her message to him, in her dewry tremulous smile.

Newly discovered evidence..... wrongly and unjustly accused..... full and complete confession ..... verdict set aside. ""

Legal words, legal phrases went flying over Cathie's head.....Mr. Allan, in his most eloquent voice ..... the judge, very judicial and his cold as much better.....a sharp question from the harassed reporter, pencil flying to get all the words.....

And Cathie smiling at Gordon across the courtroom ..... smiling with her flower-blue eyes, yearning with all her heart to reach across to him, to take his strong brown hands in hers, and go away .....waiting in a fever of impatience for the thing to be over, so she could go home ....

"Cathie! You're wool-gathering!" Ruth's warning whisper right in Cathie's ear.

"I am not!" Cathie whispered back, indignant it was true, and to Ruth, Ruth anyway, always interfering, always telling her what to do!

SHE'S GOT SPUNK.....

Mr. Macmillan was on his feet now. Oh, Lord he was going to make a long speech. When he put his hands in his pockets and swayed back and forwards that way it always meant a long speech.

Say it please the court—" his sonorous voice came to her all the world like an actor approaching his best bit in the play.....

"Good for an hour!" Cathie mouthed at Gordon, feeling wicked and reckless the way she used to feel long ago in school, when she mouthed messages across to Addie White about the teacher. And when she looked at him, and saw his face twitching twinkly, and remembered all that had happened since she saw it last ..... and where she really was and how pretty it had come to being the center of all twinkles for her and Gordon, a lump rose in her throat and the tears sprang to her eyes and trying not to cry, she dared after all. She was too busy wiping her eyes and trying not to break down after them to be more need for it.

"There wasn't a dry eye in the court room when District Attorney Macmillan made the appeal for the beautiful young widow's release on behalf of the people of the state of California," one scribe wrote in a Dowry account of Cathie's acquittal at the hands of Judge East for the morning papers. FREE AGAIN!

Maybe there wasn't. Certainly Cathie wasn't dry eyed. But she didn't hear a word of it. And neither the sharp-voiced reprimandings that followed nor the storm of applause from the thrilled and delighted spectators who somehow got in. Not to the bailiff's pounding for order, made her realize just how lucky she was, and just how wonderful it is for a district attorney to ask a judge for a prisoner's release.

"And how does it feel to be free again?" Mr. Macmillan asked Cathie.

"Have you a statement for the press?"

"Are you going to prosecute Chester Farnsworth for perjury?"

"Your statement, Mr. the poor child," Ma answered, protecting her. "Lizzy she'll answer all your questions. But not now—not now. Let her—she's been through too much!"

"Thank you—thank you so much!" Cathie murmured, and stood over, to Mr. Macmillan, to Mr. McLoughlin, to Mr. Allan to Mr. Gunther——to police and police policewomen and newspaper women and everyone who crowded up to shake her hand. and congratulate her.

And all the while she was straining and leaning toward the door.....toward the door that led out .....away from the jail, away from Gordon.

People stood back in respectful silence, made a narrow human lane for them to go through.

"Plain foolishness," Ruth was grumbling, bringing up in the rear, wondering whether the sheriff's people had given chiffon sport handkerchief, which was the only one she had left, or to let her get away with the sodden ball she had in her hand.

"I'm so h-happy!" Cathie was sobbing.

She was crying because she was going home.....home to the old white cottage on Clara street.

Ma had her by the arm, Gordon by the other.....oh, so different from a policewoman and a deputy sheriff.....

"Cathie, my HONEY!" Ruth begged, pressing her the fourth handkerchief that morning. "My Lord it's all over. You're free and I are glad if you aren't!"

"SO HAPPY!"

"Don't cry, sorry the child. Ruth, that's my reaction and all she's been through.....Cathie darlin"—the police man with the red hair wants to say goodbye to you."

"The car's waiting outside, Mrs. Paige. I can take you all." Gordon was saying. "Cathie, my promise you'll want to go with your mother?"

Mary Paige stood still in her tracks. Hatless, she made a triumphal procession. "And where else should Cathie want to go? Where else indeed, but her own home?

And then Cathie did break down. Gordon almost carried her to the car.

CHAPTER 57

Mary Paige stormed because Cathie insisted on taking charge of Margarette's burial.

"Of all the crazy things, that's the worst—"

"But Ma; there's nobody but me, and it would be so thoughtless to never go near her—just let them put her in Potter's Field—"

"Oh, we'll have it your own way. You're a stubborn one—"

And to Gordon, who had come to take Cathie, she said, "See that she don't overdo, won't you? She's not the least bit strong yet, the poor child, but she thinks it's her duty.....she always has murdered herself trying one thing—give you the shirt off her back, work her pretty fingers to the bone—"

"I know, Mrs. Paige."

"Get her back early—"

"I will, Mrs. Paige."

"Cathie, have you got a clean hand kerchief?"

"Yes—two of 'em," Cathie called back, smiling, getting into the car beside Gordon.

TOO WONDERFUL

It was just too wonderful having Ma to scold and storm just as she used to do, being able to see the love in her gentle eyes..... and having Gordon too.

Being home again. Sleeping in the back bedroom in the old oak bedstead with the blankets that were yellow from many washings. Waking to hear the street cars rattling down Hayes street, and the crickets in the back yard.....Waking again to smell coffee percolating in the kitchen, to hear Ma rattling the stove lids, to be able to run and help, and be one of them again.....happy.....

"It's so good, Gordon, to be home again. To have you. I don't believe my knees will ever knock together again. I'll never be afraid of anything. Life's done it's worst to me. There can't be anything but good ahead."

He didn't answer in words. Just squeezed her hand, and it seemed to Cathie that that firm, warm pressure would give her the courage to face whatever was left in life to face.

Margarette woman whom no one like she had come to mourn, they went to the place on Stockton street, where she had lived.

CHINA LILIES

It was an attic room in an old house on the edge of Chinatown. It might have been the very house where she lived, many years ago, with her mother.

It was very bare, but the whitewashed walls were clean. There were clean white curtains at the windows, and clean white sheets spread on the old wire cot-spring bed. And over on the dresser, faded, but still pungently fragrant, was a pot of gold China lilies stood in a glass of water.

China lilies..In her dead husband's room, in her own cell in the jail, and here.....

"Did Cheong know of this? I mean, did he ever come here?" she asked softly.

"Why yes. He helped to trace her. I don't know that he ever came here himself."

Cathie looked irwy. She thought of the newspaper stories she had read.....that the Chinese widow with the shawl and the veil, who was supposed to have been Margarette's only visitor ..... could it have been Cheong?

A little picture of Cheong in a long skirt, and a shawl flashed before Cathie's eyes. Intuition? Just a memory? It couldn't have been. Still they do marvelous things with make up.....It might have been.

"Gordon," she asked Gordon. Did he think she was right?

"My dear, I don't know," he told her earnestly. "The old fellow was very wise, more wise and powerful than we will ever know. It might have been he who might have been someone he sent. Depend on it, if Cheong hid a hand in it, the truth will never come out. Besides, it wouldn't help to know. Alfred Farnsworth is gone. and we know that he wanted to go. The doctor's story of that last visit with him should help us to forget the tragedy. Though she didn't mean to be. Margarette was kind. She gave him the swift merciful end he wanted. Instead of invalidism and agony.....and she's gone too, gone beyond reach, gone where you'll hope her queer troubled soul finds peace."

DEAD AWAY

She let him lead her away then. There was nothing for them to do in the bare dreary flat. She put him in her car she began her old habit of thinking out loud. "I don't think Margarette would have been strong enough to live like that alone, Gordon. It covered everything too well. Her mind didn't work that way. She couldn't concentrate on anything long enough to write it all out so clearly. You know she just did things in a hurry—like—like shooting, and thinking afterwards."

ASKS FOR CHEONG

Gordon nodded. "I know. When we got the news that she was dead my first thought was that the confession she had left wouldn't be enough to prove—that it wouldn't be conclusive or any thing. But it's perfect. I wouldn't be surprised if he had a hand in it. He might have done something to help her to it— he might have given her the opium. You know he loved Alfred Farnsworth. Their relationship was never that of master and servant, they were really friends. I don't think that he would have let the death go un avenged. If her confession were not necessary to free you I almost think Cheong would have given himself—one is discovered her guilt. He's not modern, you know, he's old, old China, disposing quietly justice.

"I'd like to see Cheong again," Cathie said dreamily. "I'd like to talk to him about—about Mr. Farnsworth. I don't think he knew him so much better than I ever did, even though I was his wife. I'd like to talk to him and tell him how I feel and really and truly that he was satisfied with me—that he was glad he married me, even if it ended like it did."

"Of course he was glad, Cathie. Why, those last six months were the happiest of his life. You must have known that. He was so lonely and depressed before. And as for the end—" WILL INVITTABLE

"That's the end. Maybe it was I who brought it on—"

"No, Cathie, it was inevitable. It would have come, anyway, in a duel or shooting—Chester, too. By the way, Chester's wife has left him. She's start ed divorce proceedings, and is claiming just about-all the community property but Chester's clothes. The papers were full of it this morning. Didn't you see it?"

Cathie smiled a little wanly, "I've read all the scandal I want to. Enough to last me the rest of my life. I don't even want to hear about it. I just hope I'll never have to see that man again as long as I live.....and I'm sick about him. Let's go up to Chinatown and see if we can find Cheong."

So they drove down Stockton street past the stores of the little shopkeepers and up to the door of the Chinese Sin Companies.

Mind waiting in the car a moment?

"Not if you won't be long."

"I won't," Gordon promised, and bounded up the wide stone steps of the big white building, leaving Cathie alone in the car.

Minutes passed. Cathie began to feel uneasy. She wished she had gone in with Gordon.

CHAPTER 58

"No luck.' Gordon said. "They've never even heard of him at the Six Companies. We'll try the Four Families over on Grant Avenue."

"All right," Cathie smiled her old, gorgeous, gallant smile that lit her face like a light from within. It didn't matter where they went, so long as Gordon was back, safe. And now that he was back, sitting beside her in the roadster, she grinned at her own fears of a moment ago. Here she'd been imagining him shanghaied, kidnapped, robbed, murdered, and hidden up a cellar.....all because he was gone ten minutes!

But the Four Families she insisted on going up with him. He'd be all right, of course.....but just the same if anything was going to happen him she'd just as soon that it would happen to her, too.

Up the stairs they went, to the top floor, Rich Chinese carpets, sothy like were under their feet. On the wall portraits of the four founders, the heads of the families of Lau Kwan, Jung and Chew.

HOT FAMILY NAME

The dignified, elderly Chinese gentle man in American clothes was polite, but firm. No, he had never heard of Cheong. There was another name, surely?

Cathie looked at Gordon and Gordon looked at Cathie. If there was one they had never heard of.

"Then I'm afraid I cannot help you."

"But he was so well known," Cathie said. "He used to come to Chinatown every afternoon of his life."

"He conducted a sort of employment agency," Gordon explained. "In the basement of the Farnsworth home in Presidio Terrace," Gordon put in "You must at least have heard of him There must be some way of finding him"

The Chinese gentleman smiled. "Cheong my dear sir, is Cantonese for ginger—not a family name at all. I have no idea who this person could have been"

"But isn't there some way I could trace him?" Gordon persisted. "He was very well known. I'll consider myself a very great favor. We must find him to show our appreciation."

"Perhaps you were some member of the other servants? Perhaps through them——"

"Chaley?" Cathie said. "He called them all Charley's. He said that would do as well as anything."

IDENTITY HIDDEN

The elderly Chinese spread his hands with an eloquent gesture. "Perhaps he had his reasons for hiding his identity."

"But why And if he has been so kind to us, don't you think he would want us to know what happened to him?"

"Very well considered. "If, as you think, he was a power here in Chinatown, he must have stayed with the late Mr. Farnsworth for some purely personal reason. Loyalty. A great service rendered, perhaps in the past. And that disinherited one Mr. Farnsworth dead, what would help him now? A man like that would be on his way to China, even now. Going back there to live—why do we not look in Hongkong and Shanghai? To a garden, perhaps—a pear garden—they are famous for their pears—among the other servants, by people of his family. A well deserved rest, would it not be?"

"That's what happened, Gordon," Cathie said thoughtfully, going down the stairs again with Cathie. "Whatever his reason for keeping out of China, Cheong must have obtained it long ago, and that's about what he's done—gone back."

"Well, I think he'd have said goodbye!"

PRESENT ARRIVES

"What! He didn't—in his own way. I meant to tell you, and forgot it. I got a present from him this morning, I've left anything that the mate to it is waiting for you at your mother's house right this minute. A jade tree—good luck to the newly engaged couple of him sent lovely—we jade and turquoise and cort, in a white jade bowl a 'wautiful thing.....That was his way of saying goodbye and wishing us good luck."

"I'm not too tired. I'll do it," Cathie assured.

And then she stood, tea kettle in hand, in the kitchen, while Ma stitched away in the bedroom, and the crickets of 7 o'clock, and Gordon, and the kind of wedding dress she'd have for herself.

"Ma," she called, above the noise of the sewing machine, and the sound of the water she was remembering to run into the kettle at last, "Ma, if I select an easy pattern, and I don' want it in too much of a hurry, would you make my wedding dress, too?"

(THE END).

Her Painful Backache Quickly Relieved

Prince Edward Island Lady Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Miss M. Campbell suffered for years and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills

French Village, P.E.I., Sept. 15 — (Special)—"I was troubled for years with backache" writes Miss M. Campbell a well known resident of this place. "I had tried several remedies, but they did not do me any. A friend told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes completely relieved me." It is statements like this that have built up and maintained the reputation Dodd's Kidney Pills hold today, as the greatest of kidney remedy.

Ninety percent of the ills from which women suffer come from weak or diseased kidneys. They are the organs that filter all the impurities out of the blood. If they fail to do their work, the impurities remain in the blood and are deposited all over the body.

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys, thereby strengthening them. Strong healthy kidneys are absolutely necessary if the blood is to be pure and the body healthy.

Railway Coach is Invaded by Steam

Peculiar Accident Near Port Union Last Night

SOME BROUGHT HERE

Several attended by Doctor In Belleville Including Bridegroom

About ten persons were slightly injured a little after nine o'clock last night at Port Union, west of Bowmanville, on Canadian National train No. 18, westbound, when steam from a passing freight engine shattered some of the windows in the first coach, cutting the passengers and scalding one or two with the steam.

Number 18, which was on its way to Belleville from Toronto, leaving the Queen City shortly after eight o'clock was stationary at Port Union when the accident occurred. It is not known in the central division, James Walshe, locomotive foreman, stated today, just exactly how the accident occurred. All details are being looked after at the Toronto end, he said.

Officials at the local division believe that something went wrong with the freight engine and the escaping steam mwas powerful enough to shatter the windows in the first coach of No. 18. Only the baggage, express and the passenger car next to the baggage car suffered from the accident.

Fireman Lane of this city, was slightly injured in the catastrophe. He received some cuts and was scalded. Engineer Cooper was in charge of train No. 18 and Conductor Wilson, both of this city. Neither were injured.

Engineer Hunter and Conductor Reed, both of Belleville, were in charge of freight.

Brought to the City

Three passengers, two of them a honeymoon couple married only yesterday, were picked up at the local station by Taximan James Sophie. One of them was taken to the office of Dr. W. W. Boyce, where his slight cuts were attended to. He only had a few scratches", Dr. Boyce said to the press today. "He was not seriously hurt and was not scalded by steam."

A commercial traveller, at the Queen's Hotel today, was one of the passengers on No. 18. He was slightly cut by glass.

FIRST PICTURE OF BABY MOOSE UNDER TWENTY-FOUR HOURS OLD

This picture was taken by a New Brunswick Bureau of Information photographer at Springhill on the St. John River within five miles of Fredericton, capital of New Brunswick. The heartless mother deserted her babe in an apple orchard twenty-four hours after it was born, probably because of the good-intentioned owners of the farm interfering with her plans for rearing her offspring. When the photograph was taken the sturdy little fellow was being fed from a bottle by Major H. H. Ritchie, New Brunswicks Chief Game Warden. The contents seem to have been "just what the doctor ordered" because the baby moose is growing rapidly.

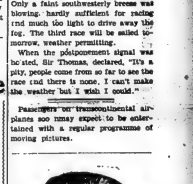
FOG HOLDS UP THIRD BOAT RACE

Pea-Soup Fog Prevents Heat For Possession of America's Cup

NAVIGATION RISKY

Breeze Not Sufficient For Race, Third Heat Held Tomorrow



Newport, Rhode Island, Sept. 16.—CP—At 10.53 eastern standard time the committee instructed all boats at the starting line of the third heat for the possession of the America's Cup to return to port thus indicating no race would be called to day.

A pea soup fog which had given sign of lifting sank down again shortly after ten o'clock and the committee decided that the race was impossible. Neither the Enterprise nor the Shamrock had left port when the postponement signal was hoisted.

The fog made navigation dangerous. Only a faint southwesterly breeze was blowing hardly sufficient for racing and much too light to drive away the fog. The third race will be sailed tomorrow, weather permitting.

When the postponement signal was hoisted, Sir Thomas, declared, "It's a pity, people come from so far to see the race and there is none. I can't make the weather but I wish I could."

Passengers on transcontinental airplanes soon may expect to be entertained with a regular programme of moving pictures.

In the court's opinion the vessel was staunch, and well found, and the sinking was caused through the broken rail-shaft puncturing the hull. Conduct of officers and crew was praised highly.

BRITISH PRESS NOT ALARMED

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Canadian Press Cable—The most responsible British newspaper opinion while admitting fully the portentious character of the German elections, declines to admit that the startling gains made by the two extremist parties, Fascists and Communists, need to be taken too seriously. The main fault lies with the Moderates, who did not form a strong united party, thinks the "Manchester Guardian".

Arthur R.G. Kidd Sentenced to Term in Reformatory for Fraud

A charge of fraud in that he did obtain from Bell and Son of Wooler, 38 cases of eggs valued at $300.00, by means of a worthless cheque was admitted by Arthur R. O. Kidd, of this city, and on his plea of guilty was sentenced to a determinate sentence of eighteen months in the Reformatory and to further indeterminate sentence of not more than two years less one day. D. C. Donnan, Crown Prosecutor, after Kidd had elected summary trial and pleaded guilty asked for a two year sentence in the penitentiary but later modified that plea to one in the reformatory after E. J. Butler, K. C., had spoken on behalf of the accused. Mr. Donnan explained to the court that Kidd had previously been found guilty of a charge of fraud and placed on suspended sentence and that the period of suspension had not expired. A large number were in the court and Mr. Donnan requested all those who had dealings with the accused and lost certain amounts to stand up and tell the amounts. Four men rose up and in all the amounts totalled, it is said, some $600.00. The accused pleaded that he was paying off the money but Magistrate Mikel informed Kidd that the court was not interested in that phase but that fraud had been committed. "This is not a sudden and instant impulse," said Magistrate Mikel, "and I have every consideration for the wife and family but must teach this young man a lesson."

LATE J. BRENTON WIDELY MOURNED

Appreciation of Career of Late Joel Brenton of Corbyville

The following tribute to the memory of the late Joel Brenton is paid by a close friend:—

A rare and beautiful life and Christian career closed on earth when Mr. Joel Brenton of Corbyville, fell asleep in Jesus on Saturday, Sept. 13th, 1930, in his 77th year.

Mr. Brenton was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Brenton and was born Sept. 30th, 1853, at Corbyville and resided in the same community the rest of his life. He was married to Miss Mary Newsom, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Newsom of Corbyville. His many years of married life were particularly happy and prosperous as he farm at Corbyville and were blessed with a family of two sons and two daughters.

As a citizen he served his community on the school board, also as treasurer of the Township with great acceptance, because of a conscientious dealings in all matters of business, also because of his keen interest in the advancement of all things that contributed to the welfare of the community. As a member of the United Church, his religious history and experience can be dated from his boyhood days, growing out of the religious atmosphere of a Godly home, he was brought early to a saving knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. He then joined the Methodist Church, then at Corbyville, and as the years passed by his religious experience became deeper, richer, stronger, until his beautiful christian life and character commanded the highest respect of all who knew him. During the many years of his christian life, the church was greatly enriched by his example and labours. For many years he held the responsible positions of class leader and Sunday School Superintendent, both outstanding success and only relinquished these offices when ill health made it impossible for him to serve efficiently any longer. He was an active member of the official board had for many years represented the Cannifton Circuit at the Bay of Quinte Conference, was also a member of the Trustee Board and member of Session. In face wherever help was needed or work to be done he was ready; whenever able to share in the task. To him the church was the House of God, and he loved to be there with all the saints on the Lord's Day. The church's task was his, and to help, he gave most generously of his time and means to carry on the work of his Lord and Saviour through the agency of the church.

About eighteen months ago there came a reaction in his physical condition which resulted in failing health which finally closed his earthly labours, and he fell asleep and blessed peace. He is not with us for God took him. We thank God for the great and kingly contribution he has made by his life and christian labours to our church and community; also for the memories of the enriching fellowship which we enjoyed while he was with us.

The funeral service was held quietly in his residence on Monday at 2 p.m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. R. Merrick, assisted by his former pastors, Rev. E. Farnsworth and Rev. J. S. McMullen. Many attended the service reverently to pay their tribute of christian love and esteem.

Of his immediate relatives he leaves to mourn his loss: his widow, Mrs. Joel Brenton, two sons and two daughters: Edward, Douglas at home; Marie of Toronto and Mrs. A. R. Gimblo of Ottawa.

Non-Support Case Enlarged 3 Months

When he was one day in default of payment in connection with a non-support charge Mrs. C. E. Welch had her husband Clarence in police court today to show cause why he had not continued the payments. The Crown Attorney, in asking for an enlargement for three months, gave the benefit of the doubt to the husband and the fact that court hurriedly, then the case was disposed of. Some time ago Welch was found guilty of non-support of his wife and child and ordered by Magistrate Mikel to pay the sum of 7.00 a week. This money, according to the husband, who pleaded not guilty to a charge, has been sent regularly to the wife and was sent on Saturday as usual. Magistrate Mikel did not think it hardly fair for the wife to bring a charge so quickly against the husband and in this the Crown attorney agreed. At the end of three months the charge will be disposed of.

MILTON SILLS STAR OF SCREEN DIES SUDDENLY

Noted Actor had Distant Relationship to Local People

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.—Milton Sills, aged 48, for many years one of the best known actors in motion pictures, fell dead from a heart attack while playing tennis with his wife and son at their suburban home last night.

Mrs. Sills, formerly Doris Kenyon, film actress, said her husband apparently was in the best of health when the game started. First intimation anything was wrong came when Sills staggered and fell to the court. Friends of the actor visiting at the Sills home, carried Sills into the house and summoned the Hawlelle police inhalator squad. He died at 6.45 p.m. fifteen minutes after arrival. Stricken and without regaining consciousness, Sills, once a Professor of Mathematics at University of Chicago, was one of the athletes of the screen. Recently his health had not been good. He was confined to his home several days last spring with a nervous disorder.

Sills was the husband of Doris Kenyon, film actress, who at one time was his leading woman. They have one child, a small son. They were married in 1927. It was the second time after Sills was divorced by Gladys Edith Wynne, whom he wed in London in 1910.

A daughter, Dorothy, now 18, was born to this union

Most of Sills' fame came as a result of his work in silent pictures. His health began to fail about the time that talking pictures came to Hollywood.

Sills was a student of art and literature and in addition to his film work took part in a number of scholarly enterprises. He frequently lectured in colleges and universities on art, literature and religion. One of his lectures was delivered at the Harvard School of Business Administration in 1927.

Sills was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon at Chicago University, the Lambs and Players' Clubs of New York and a number of other organizations there and in Los Angeles.

He was born in Chicago on Jan. 12, 1882, and received his education in that city. He graduated from the University of Chicago. In the class of 1903, and held a fellowship in philosophy there for two years.

Milton Sills had a large following of movie enthusiasts in Belleville for he came of a family which was closely associated it is believed with the Sills family of this district. He was a popular idol here ever since his appearance on the screen from the professional desk of the university.

Some years ago Milton Sills passed through Belleville on his way to the Ottawa Rives where he was to play a part in a film in which incidentally the lumbering industry will be brought in as detail in the plot of the story. He was met at the railway station by a number of admirers among them members of families with which the Chicago Sills family is connected. Their first impression of him was one which long lingered in their minds, as that of a manly type of citizen.

Just last week the film "Man Trouble" starring Milton Sills in a story of night club life was put on at the Belle Theatre. Sills in this picture seemed to be even better than in any others in which he appeared, his voice admirably suiting the role. The scene closed in rather a manner suggestive of the sudden death of the star, for the last sight of him in the picture was his collapse after a battle with a booking gang in which he had won out, had redeemed himself to full manhood and in which he was fatally wounded. As the screen closed the role called for the actor falling to the floor in a dying state.

Rev. A. L. Geen at Great Gathering

On Saturday evening, Rev. A. L. Geen went to Ottawa, as special presenter at an Orange Anniversary at the morning service. Mr. Geen was requested to tell the congregation about the Mohawk Indians. "Shoje-wandi" did so arousing their great loyalty and churchmanship. At 8 p.m. Mr. Geen attended the great Anglican meeting in the auditorium of Ottawa, which was filled. It accommodated from 8,000 to 10,000. The Bishop and clergy robed in St. George's church and marched to the auditorium headed by the band of the Governor-General's Guard, who also accompanied the hymns during the service. The streets were crowded with people. Members of the united choirs to the number of 400 led the singing. There was a shortened form of evensong with many hymns.

The Bishop from the Northwest gave a short address. Bishop Dr. Lindel Then, a Chinese bishop also spoke.

Mr. Geen was in his office at work on Monday morning as usual.

Eighty Guests Celebrate at Golden Wedding Anniversary

Fifty years ago Annie M. Buskard became the bride of T. Chas. Treverton, the ceremony having been performed by Rev. F. M. Penn, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Trenton. Both resided in Sidney Township. Yesterday the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Concession six of Thurlow Township. Both are enjoying good health.

Eighty guests assembled last night and after a short get-together Rev. W. R. Merrick of Canniton United Church was name to preside over the affair, introducing the proceedings and program. Mr. Joe Gow and Mrs. Harry Harrison contributed several numbers while Rev. J. G. McMullin of Belleville and Rev. W. R. Merrick of Canniton delivered addresses. Martha Treverton a grand daughter prepared a parody on "The Old Gray Bonnet" which was pleasing.

Letters of congratulation were read by a son Walter from outstanding friends of the groom including John Elliott, former manager of the Belleville branch of the Standard Bank, E. V. Illsley, Manager of the Bank of Commerce here and J. D. O'Flynn of the well known legal firm. All expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Treverton their wishes for many more years of happy married life. They spoke of the happy associations spent with both.

T. Chas. Treverton was a son of Samuel Treverton and Harriet Parsons of Cornwall, England. He came to Canada when a young man settling on concession Two of Sidney Township where he spent most of his life. In 1904 Mr. and Mrs. Treverton moved to their present home in Thurlow. Nine children resulted from the union Frank, Fred, Walter, Edward and Nellie (Mrs. Orval Beer). Mr. Treverton was always interested in municipal politics and served in Sidney Township Council for a number of years, acting as Reeve during his last term after which he retired to move to Thurlow.

After the singing of a favorite hymn prayer was given, when Mrs. Treverton son of the honoured guests read the address on behalf of the other members of the family. Mrs. Nellie Beer the only daughter made the presentation of a gold bar brooch set with pearls to the mother, while the father was the recipient of a beautiful gold watch chain.

After the presentation Mr. Treverton on behalf of himself and his wife both of whom looked exceptionally fine after fifty years of wedding life, in a most appropriate speech thanked his family for their thoughtfulness.

Although it was specially mentioned that presents were to be omitted, several very handsome gifts were tendered the couple. These included a silver tray with milk pitcher and sugar bowl from Mrs. Treverton's brothers and sisters Among the guests were Mrs. Treverton's two brothers, E. W. Buckard, Shannonville, and Charles of Belleville, Mrs. William Orrin, Belleville and Mrs. Atkin Snider of Belleville. Eight grandchildren were all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Treverton have been ardent church workers all their lives and they are extremely active at their advanced ages.

Following was the address read to Mr. and Mrs. Treverton:

Dear father and mother,

This being the golden wedding anniversary of your wedding, may it be a memorable one. We bring congratulations and affectionate good-will to you. As a family we have both thankfullness and pride that you have been spared to enjoy this evening with us. Throughout these fifty years you doubtless can recall many eventful years which have brought you many joys and we wish this occasion to be the best in bringing happiness to you.

We can recall many times when we have been helped and inspired by your kindness, patience and consideration of us, all of which we now realize must have meant for you much personal sacrifice. Your combined efforts have fitted us to cope with life in its changes and have given us much happiness and joy as an appreciation of your unfailing patience, kindness and helpfulness shown us throughout our childhood years and to the present time, we take pleasure in presenting these gifts with the hope that you may have many years in which to enjoy good health and happiness.

Signed by your children.

Frank, Fred, Walter and W. E. Treverton and Nellie B. Beer.

The affair wound up shortly after midnight after the guests had conveyed their best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Treverton. A feature of the wedding anniversary was a three storey wedding cake which was especially designed for the honoured couple.

A fine lunch was served just before the close of the event. A beautiful cut flower bouquet was given to the elder family.

LETTERS to the Editor

ONLY A CAT

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer—

The road hog who killed my cat on Saturday on Sinclair street, while it was sitting on the side of the road, could at least have stopped but there is, (only a cat). I think it is about time speeding on this street was checked up as there are quite a few children playing around all the time.

4 Years without HEADACHE

How do you deal with headaches? Do you just take something to deaden the pain without getting at the cause of trouble which causes the pain? Thousands do, despite the medical profession's warning cry of "DON'T!"

Soan-Bakelhill medicine simply suppress the symptoms of headaches. They merely numb the nerves and leave the underlying cause to look after itself. And it only obtains a firmer grip. Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unexpected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen tackle aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

"For many years I suffered from severe headaches almost daily. I started taking the small dose (of Kruschen) a matter of four years ago, and I can honestly say I have never had a headache since."—(Mrs. M. W.)

ARGUMENTS ARE HEARD IN CASE

Magistrate Mikel Enlarged Buker Case Until Wednesday

Argument was presented by Charles A. Payne, K.C., representing Charles W. Buker, charged with a break of the Liquor Control Act in connection with the warehouse of Graham Cold Storage without a permit or the order of a physician and also by R. C. Donnan acting for the Crown before Magistrate Mikel, who reserved his judgment until tomorrow. The action was instigated by the Crown through the unloading of 1800 cartons of beer into the warehouse on June 19th last from two cars hauled in by the C.N.R. The beer was seized by the Provincial Police shortly after it was unloaded. Buker was admitted in evidence to be the foreman of the warehouse and being the servant of the Graham Cold Storage was charged with the offence.

Mr. Payne argues that in spite of all the evidence Buker did not "have" or "keep" Mr. Donnan argued that it was illegal to store the beer in that warehouse and the onus of proof is on the firm owning the warehouse to show why it was being stored. "I believe," said Mr. Donnan, "that Mr. Graham nor none of his office staff knew what was being stored at that particular time and would not have stood for it had they known. They relied on Buker as their agent and Buker knew when the goods were being unloaded that it was beer. The presence of the liquor in the warehouse constituted an offence according to Mr. Donnan and the question that the court must decide is did Buker knowingly as foreman permit certain goods learned to be beer to be placed in the warehouse, a place where beer could not be legally kept.

Getting by with the out-moded frock can be accomplished, but the frumpy hat is never overlooked. It will transform tendlines loveliness into a sartorial caricature. The chapeau is the most important detail of dress and should be selected with the seeing mind. For every hat that pleases her the average woman buys three or four that she throws into the discard. This habit isn't as extravagant as it sounds in the telling since millinery prices are astonishingly reasonable. Not like the pot-au-good days, when a lid laden with ostrich plumes or aigrettes put the enchanted buyer back 50 good round smackers.

If a gin has the slightest suggestion of a natural way in her celestial crown, she can restore the curly cues of her childhood. Water waving properly done and following precisely and carefully the natural lines, will impart steadfastness and vigor to the wave. Steaming the hair helps. Comb'ing with the natural fall of the comb strengthens the pattern, while brushing sends the tresslocks into a state of riot and confusion.

Acne does not like soap, which dries up the pustules. A bland soap should be used twice a day with water fairly hot, and the facial rubbing followed by hot compresses, which are healing. A soda solution is helpful. Proper proportions are one rounded teaspoonful of baking soda to one pint of warm water. Apply with cotton and let it dry on.

Thorough mastication is one of the secrets of good digestion, the first process of which occurs in the mouth. Eat-and-run gals seldom have good complexions. One should not eat when fatigued or when under emotional strain. Fresh raw fruits and vegetables are beauty foods.

Thin-soled shoes seldom provide as much comfort for tired, aching feet as shoes with fairly heavy shoes. Lisle stockings may prove more consoling than silk ones, especially on a blistering hot day when the little dogs have travelled far.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin with bat of velvet to blend and accessories to match. Miss Lynch carried a shower bouquet of ivory roses, lilies of the valley and delphiniums. She only jewelry was a three-strand rope of pearls, the gift of Mr. Coughlin to his bride.

Mayor Wemp "Comes Home" to Belleville

Opens Kiwanis Karnival and Shows Value of Smaller Cities and Towns

IS GIVEN WELCOME

Mrs. Wemp Greeted by Mayor Reid and President

His Worship Bertram Sterling Wemp, Mayor of Toronto, accompanied by Mrs. Wemp officially opened last evening what the Kiwanis Club hopes will be the best Karnival in their history. Long before the time of opening the crowds began to arrive and every available inch of space in the armouries was utilized. The dignitaries were led to the stage by President Joe Inlah, accompanied by His Worship Mayor and Mrs. Reid, some members of the city council and their wives. Warden Roscoe Vanderwater and W. H. Ireland M.P.P., Magnetawan, Mich., who has known the family for many years was given the honor of introducing Mayor and Mrs. Wemp to the assemblage but not before the president of the club had delivered a message to all citizens and residents of the district, thanking them for the many favors to the Kiwanis Club and hoping for a continued patronage.

Tribute to Mayor Wemp

Kiwanian W. C. Mikel gave a brief outline of the history of Bert Wemp, showing by perseverance and hard work one can reach the top. His war record was reviewed and also his newspaper life through which he is known through the length and breath of the Dominion. In speaking to the introduction Mayor Wemp was in a jovial mood and he told the audience he was simply "coming home." He explained that his parents were born in Tweed and in that village was laid the groundwork for anything that he might have accomplished in later life.

"There have to be great centres of population," said Mayor Wemp, and those great centres are made from places such as Tweed and cities the size of Belleville and good roads have played an important part. We are all citizens of a great country and too much stress cannot be laid on the part that service clubs, particularly the Kiwanis Club are playing among the younger generation.

Club's Interests

"This club sponsors all that is fine in promoting interests for the boys in the summer time and all through the year and also the help that is given the underprivileged child, who is not so fortunate as the rest of us. The money that is raised does not go into treasury but is spent to add to the future and welfare of the city to make better citizens. The residents of the city and the district should support most generously the Kiwanis Karnival and there is no doubt the money will be used wisely and well. It is with pleasure I declare the Karnival open and hope that the week will be one of success. Mr. Mikel then introduced Mrs. Wemp to the assemblage and in a few well chosen words she expressed her pleasure in being present and hoped for the success of the event. Mayor Geo. A. Reid as chief magistrate of the city welcomed Mayor and Mrs. Wemp of Toronto officially to the city and expressed the wish that they would come often to the Bay of Quinte City. After the address the party took their seats in the body of the hall and witnessed the Fashion Show, the frocks being displayed by Kroch Brothers, the furs by Delaney and the jewelry by McFee's. The vaudeville, which preceded and followed the Fashion show was sponsored by Captain M. W. Plunkett, who many times has visited the city with his revues.

The large crowd was treated to the best vaudeville it has been the privilege to witness in connection with the Kiwanis carnival. The show opened with a revue given by six comely girls in a fine dance and song to be followed with "Margie" billed as the rubber doll. This is the scene of contortion work and the little girl was given a real hand as the conclusion of her act. Ellis and West, two comedians gave the audience a hearty ten minute laugh, with their jokes and patter and the whole show was closed by a song and dance by the Polly girls. The program will be changed nightly and Capt. Plunkett has in store for the patrons something novel and interesting. It was decided to postpone the rolling pin contest till Wednesday night, while tonight the nail driving contest for women will be held with a number of stories already at hand. There will be fun for all each and every night .

THE BOOTHS

The official opening party adjourned to the booths at the back of the Armouries and strolled the game men in bringing in the stock. Kiwanian George Lee has arranged a number of novel games and the merchandise to be secured is of the best. The games were well patronized and although so many are talking of hard times and unsettled conditions the receipts will be equal if not above the opening night of a year ago showing in some measure the popularity of the Kiwanis Karnival. To those, who enjoy tripping the light fantastic the committee have arranged for their entertainment in the rooms in the gallery Charlie Glover and his Ban Tons gave a smoker dance program and until midnight the floor was crowded with dancers. Douglas Downey Mason and his Rhythm Kings will hold the stage and dancing will commence immediately after the Fashion Show.

Before the Karni al closed for the night the ticket was drawn for the door prize and Mrs. Bernice Sherman was found the holder of the lucky ticket. The committee have made a ruling that only those in the hall at the time of the drawing will be entitled to receive the gift.

The address of welcome of the president is herewith given.

THE ADDRESS

"At this the opening of the sixth Annual Kiwanis Karnival we bid you welcome. We thank you for the loyal support you have given us in the past which incidentally has been the means of our carrying on to this point where we are about to open the Kiwanis Karnival for the Sixth consecutive year.

"As President of the Kiwanis Club and on behalf of the officers, directors, chairmen and members of the club, I want to say what a great pleasure it is to produce such a Karnival when the people of Belleville stand so loyally behind our efforts.

"It is with pleasure that I stand on the platform tonight with such outstanding guests as we have with us. We are always most anxious to seek the patronage of the most outstanding people in the whole Province tonight is bringing to you Mayor Wemp (and Mrs. Wemp) of Toronto, we are proud to say we have with us one of the most prominent men in Canada.

"I wish to personally thank Mayor Wemp and Mrs. Wemp for their graciousness in coming to Belleville and to our Kiwanis Karnival for the purpose of assisting us in officially opening it.

"Without further remarks I am going to call upon an Ex-Mayor, our present Magistrate, Kiwanian "Billie" Mikel to introduce His Worship Mayor Wemp and Mrs. Wemp of Toronto."

Mrs. Thelma Wooten, 34-year-old mother of a 2 year old baby, who was shot and killed when two United States sheriff's deputies fired into her car near Detroit. The deputies suspected the car contained liquor, but after they had shot Mrs. Wooten they found the automobile did not contain one spot of liquor.

CHECK

The night was creeping on the ground;
She crept and did not make a sound.
Until she reached the tree, and then
She covered it, and stole again
Along the grass beside the wall.

I heard the rustle of her shawl
As she through blackness everywhere
Upon the sky and ground and air,
And in the room where I was hid:
But no matter what she did
To everything that was without,
She could not put my candle out.

So I stared at the night, and she Stared back silently at me.

Health cannot be looked for in the child that is subject to worms, because worms destroy health by creating internal disturbances that retard development and cause serious weakness. Miller's Worm Powders expel worms and are so beneficial in their action that the systems of the little sufferers are restored to healthfulness all the discomforts and dangers of worm infection are removed and satisfactory growth is assured.

ENTERPRISE WON IN SECOND RACE

Lipton's Shamrock Falls Far Behind Over Foggy Course

Newport, R.I., Sept. 16. — Harold Vanderbilt, defending the America's Cup for the United States, sailed the Enterprise to a decisive victory over Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock Monday. In a mild sou'wester, Vanderbilt outsailed Ted Heard, demonstrating that with a light air and a smooth sea the yacht designed by W. Starling Burgess is faster than Charles E. Nicholson's boat.

It was a bitter pill for Canadian observers to see Vanderbilt take the lead at the opening of the second, and increase it to about a mile and a half over the 30-mile course, but they swallowed it gracefully. It was obvious through no fault of British building or sea-skill that the good old Shamrock drew like a huge triangular ghost out of the mist astern as the horns and sirens of a city of boats roared for her rival's finish.

The wind was a bare seven knots as the racers made sail. As seven bells sounded they were jockeying, making short hitches, and today in this work the British skipper appeared a little the better. Both boats had foresail, sail, jib and jib topsails set for the 15-mile beat to windward. Vanderbilt headed up to the line a few seconds ahead, but this advantage appeared to be offset by the fact that the British was lengths to weather. They got away at 11.40.

CALLING ANTWHERE

"I want to talk to Finland." Sounds unreasonable, doesn't it? But it is only one of nineteen European countries now available by telephone, as well as most of the Americas. Universal telephony is nearer than many think.

Forstan Balm the creator and preserver of beautiful complexions. Tonic in effect and wonderfully stimulating. Safeguards and beautifies the most delicately-textured skins. Coals and relieves all skins flushed or irritated by weather conditions. Magical in its skills. A little gentle rubbing and a youthful freshness and daintiness is instantly created. Invaluable for softening the hands and making them flawlessly white. Truly the perfect toilet requisite for the woman who cares.

Nearly 300,000 motor boats are in use in Finland this year.

MAJORITY IS THIRTY-EIGHT

Final Approval of Commons For $20,000,000 Relief Bill

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—Emerging from the first division of the 17th Parliament with a majority of 38, the Bennett Government last night gained the final approval of the House of Commons for its $20,000,000 unemployment relief bill.

Brief but vigorous, the final stage of the debating on Premier Bennett's first step toward hoped-for economic stabilization was concluded when the Government, by 109 votes to 71, defeated an amendment to incorporate a fair wage proviso in the bill. It was a straight party division. Government supporters voting solidly against an equally solid fusion of the Liberals and all the independent groups.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where, thanks to King Government's eight years in power, a small Liberal majority exists. While there is no suggestion that the Senate would throw out the bill, there is always the possibility of amendments being made by Upper House Liberals.

OSHAWA IS WINNER IN FIRST OF SERIES

Peterboro C.G.E. Defeated, 2-5—Rose and Swanson Hit Homers

Oshawa, Sept. 16—The Oshawa Arabs took another step toward the intermediate baseball supremacy of this province when they won the first game of the Eastern Ontario finals from the Peterboro C.G.E. team, 3 to 2. The return game will be played in Peterboro on Wednesday, and if necessary a third game will be played on neutral ground, the winner of the series being Eastern Ontario champions and having the right to meet Ingersoll for the championship of Ontario. A fairly large crowd witnessed the game.

All the spectacular playing came in the first part of the game. The locals got the first two runs, and Peterboro, by evening the score in the fourth inning. The game appear interesting, but the Arabs again took the lead in the sixth.

Alleged Assault Case is Enlarged

An altercation respecting monies said to be due was the cause of an action in police court before Magistrate Mikel today. William Rankin, an employee of the canning company in this city, was charged with assaulting Eric Pepper. E. J. Butler, K.C., appeared for the complainant in the action and Charles A. Payne, K.C., acted for Mr. Rankin while B. C. Donnan acted as the prosecutor for the Crown. Mr. Pepper appeared in court with a bandage over the left eye, which appeared to be a bad condition and it was thought advisable to remand the case for a week in order to ensure that no complications set in. Mr. E. H. Fairfield appeared as bondsman for Mr. Rankin and personally guaranteed his appearance in court one week hence.

It is alleged by the complainant that he was an employee of the canning company and yesterday at noon, words said by the accused that he would have his glasses fixed that Mr. Rankin told him his service was no longer required and with this ultimatum Mr. Pepper demanded his wages. The monies due were not paid and later in the afternoon Pepper again came to the factory and demanded his money and that Mr. Rankin walked from behind the desk and struck him in the eye causing a grievous wound. Thereafter will be threshed out when the case comes to trial in a week.

PICTORIAL GOLF INSTRUCTION

By H. B. Martin

Correct Follow Through Essential for Good Golf

Everything is wrong in this picture. The finish is not one that would obtain good results for anyone. In the first place the weight is still on the right foot, instead of being transferred to the left. The head is still down, a rather serious handicap inasmuch as it holds in check the right part of the body. The right shoulder can be of no help to the swing as it has not been permitted to come through.

The most useful way of finishing a golf shot is with the weight on the left foot and the club around left of the back. This will prove that the clubhead has had ample space to follow through and has been helped by the right side of the body, that is, the right shoulder.

NAMED RECTOR AT BANNOCKBURN

Madoc, Sept. 16—(By Mail)—The Presbyterian W. M. S. again found its way into the country for the September meeting. It was at the home of Mrs. H. Lewis. The day was beautiful and some of the members took advantage of it by walking out, and others were taken by cars, 25 being present.

Mrs. George Wright, in the absence of the President, took charge of the meeting. After the singing of the first hymn, the roll call was answered by each member reciting a Bible text. The study book was completed at the July meeting. Mrs. McCaffrey gave a review, and asked questions on subjects which every member should know. Following the hymn Mrs. Bedford sang. Mrs. Wright then spoke of Mrs. Bedford's willingness to sing and emphasized how much the members enjoyed it.

The profitable hour was closed by a hymn and a prayer.

A bountiful lunch was served by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. McIntosh the hostesses.

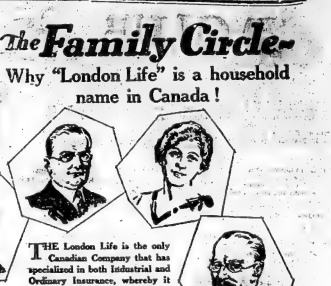
INDIAN FORT IS NATION'S NOW

Only Fort in Canada and One of Two in North America

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 16—Hundreds of people of this city and district, including servicemen, historians and archeologists of national renown attended the ceremonies Monday afternoon connected with the taking over by the Dominion Government as part of the national park system of five acres of land in which are situated the well-preserved remains of the only double Indian fort in the Dominion and one of the two on the North American continent. The imperfect outlines of the other fort are near Rochester, N. Y.

The ceremonies including the unveiling of a commemoration tablet on one of the stone gateposts erected at the highway entrance to the old fort, which is usually referred to by historians as the Southwold earthworks. The tablet was unveiled by Dr. James H. Coyne, historian, of this city, who for forty years had been trying to have this prehistoric relic acquired by the Dominion Government for preservation.



The inscription on the tablet, which is in both English and French, reads: "Southwold prehistoric earthworks. Unique example of a double-walled aboriginal fort. The Attawandaronks, or neutral nation, occupants of this region prior to expulsion about A.D. 1650 by the Iroquois, had been visited by French traders, but this earthworks shows no trace of European contact. Its antiquity and origin remain unknown."

BY LUCILLE

Dear Readers: The struggle between long and short hair seems to be some what settled, and a compromise has been affected. Those who found, on experiment that the longer style was more becoming have adopted it, and those who prefer the bob maintain it and are still fashionable. The idea is to wear your hair in the softure wavy bobbing, for last season's trendsted attempts to have long hair have been forgotten.

The styles whether long or short, accentuate softness, particularly when the boyish bob is worn. The severely brushed-back mannish bob has been discarded for softly waved hair that is in keeping with the feminine trend in dress.

The shorter bob is still worn, but there are many who prefer the should er length hair, caught at the sides and worn low on the neck. Loose, natural-looking waves make this style very appealing. With long hair, the accepted coiffures are low or simply. Parted on the side, and worn in a small coil low on the nape of the neck, the hair will in most cases gains distinction in the simple arrangement.

Hairdressers advise a change of coiffure occasionally. Surprising results are achieved by doing one's hair in a different way. It is almost like having a new face. Many have accustomed to wear her hair in a demure fashion can go in for sophistication by merely pushing her hair behind her ears and arranging the knob of hair in some newer fashion.

The hair is one of the most important points to consider in one's appearance. It should be given as much attention as one's clothes, for no matter how much one's clothes cost if the hair is not modishly arranged the whole effect will be ruined.

Care of the hair is another matter, and regular devotion to it will bring about gratifying results. Nightly brushing is one of the best things to procure healthy scalp and glowing hair. Next comes shampooing, and only purest soap should be used. People sometimes ask for rubbing warmed olive oil into the scalp occasionally.

With beautifully kept hair no wonder fashion, and you will be well rewarded for any time you spend looking after your tresses.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

ADMIRING THE ENGAGEMENT RING

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman
Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Will you kindly tell me the proper thing to say to a young lady when she shows you her engagement ring for the first time and also what is proper thing to say to her when she is married?

H.M.

There are two things to say when a young lady flashes her engagement ring.—one is felicitations about her engagement, and the other is admiration of the ring itself. For the engagement best wishes are appropriate, such as "I am so happy about the news of your engagement. May I offer you every good wish that you may have every happiness in the world."

In other words, the idea of "best wishes," "most wishes" and "every happiness," "every good wishes" is what should be emphasized. Then you say something about the ring—and, although I never do recommend anything insincere, I think that you will have to make pleasant comments on the ring, even if you don't think that it is so very beautiful.

Or perhaps, if you are ingenious, you can think of something to say about its significance. The spirit that shines forth from an engagement ring is so beautiful that you can think of lovely things to say about that, at all events. "Your ring is very lovely," or "what an extraordinarily beautiful ring!" or "I think that your ring is one of the most beautiful I have ever seen," or "I am so glad that you chose to have a sapphire instead of a diamond—they are so much lovelier, I think, and so much more unusual," or "I have never seen an engagement ring that was so becoming to a hand as yours is to your hands. It is most beautiful and has such an unusual setting," or "The ruby in your ring is an especially beautiful one—such a vibrant color. And the setting must

MRS. WILLIAM KNOX

Marmora, Sept. 16 By Mail)—Another old and highly respected resident of Marmora passed away on Wednesday afternoon in the person of Mrs. William Knox, at the age of 81 years.

The late Mrs. Knox was born in Rawdon Township. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Little. Throughout her life the deceased was of an industrious nature. For a number of years she was a diligent worker in the Ladies Aid of the Marmora Methodist Church. In her late tod, she has done much nursing and assumpitied at all times of the spirit of true neighborliness.

Great sympathy is extended the family on account of the delicate health of Mr. Knox who is approaching his 81st birthday and to whom his wife's death has been a distinct shock.

The deceased leaves besides her husband, ten of twelve children born of her marriage, to mourn her loss. They are William of Toronto, John of Portage la Prairie, David of Marmora, Leslie of Rochester, George of Newark, N.J., Mrs. W. Baker, Grand Rapids, Mich., Mrs. George Carruthers, Sodus, N.Y., Mrs. James Thomas, Erie, Penn., Mrs. Ngland Clark, Rochester, N.Y., and Effie at home. She is also survived by three brothers and three sisters, David Little of Blairton, Henry and James in the United States, Mrs. R. Fox, Mrs. James Hay and Mrs. Thomas Haig of Campbellford. The funeral takes place on Saturday afternoon with service at the United Church being followed by interment in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family by their many friends.

MRS. MARGARET HOGAN

MARMORA, Sept. 15—By Mail—On Sunday, August 31st, there passed to her eternal reward one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of all Bridge in the township of Tudor, in the person of Mrs. Margaret Hogan at the age of 86 years and 4 months.

The deceased whose maiden name was Margaret Breen, was born in County Kilkenney town of Templemore Ireland, and came to Canada with her parents, a brother and sister, about the year 1860. Two years later married the late Dennis Hogan, who predeceased her 7 years ago.

The first 23 years of their married life was spent about two miles from her late residence. By earnest and persistent efforts they succeeded in clearing a large tract of land in the wilderness. A comfortable home was built and farming operations and stock raising successfully carried on until the year 1883, when the Central Ontario Railway was built from Picton to Coe Hill.

They then moved to the hotel which they erected where the C.O.R. crossed the main travelled road on Mr. Hogan's property. Here Mrs. Hogan spent the remainder of her life. During her long and useful career she made many warm friends who will regret to hear of her death.

Many guests of the hotel will recall with pleasure the evenings spent there attentively listening to Mrs. Hogan narrating the thrills and events of her early pioneer life in North Hastings. Of late most of her hours were spent in reading. She was considered a wonderful conversationalist for her age.

Thirteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Hogan. Two died in infancy, while one son Edward died in 1914 and a daughter, Mrs. J. P. Kirby died in 1922.

She is survived by the following: Mrs. James Jackson, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. T. P. Hogan, Windsor; Mrs. James Burgoyne; Mrs. M. J. O'Connor, Marmora; James of Millbridge; Miss Annie, Leo and Breen at home. Also thirty grand-children and eleven great grandchildren.

The funeral left her late residence on Tuesday morning and proceeded to the Sacred Heart Church. Mass, where Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. J. V. Meagher. Rev. Dean O'Rourke and Rev. Father Sweeny were present in the Sanctuary and also assisted at the grave. The large attendance at the funeral left the number of spiritual offerings and floral tributes evidenced the high regard in which Mrs. Hogan was held.

Eleven grandchildren and great grandchildren walked in front of the casket carrying the flowers.

Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family by their many friends.

MRS. JOHN TAYLOR

At Melrose at 12.30 on Tuesday morning, the 9th of September the beloved wife of Mr. John Taylor passed away. She was afflicted with a cancerous disease which was accompanied with intensive pain in the last few months of life. She endured uncomplainingly and patiently.

She was the daughter of James and Mary Hammond of Thurlow township, and was born April 19th, 1854. On October 1st, 1902 she was married to John Taylor, of Melrose and lived in that community until her death.

Left to mourn her loss are a loving husband and one brother, W. A. Hammond, of Belleville, and a number of nieces and nephews and cousins.

Her pastor, Rev. Mr. Clarke, had charge of the funeral on Sept. 11th, and offered prayer at the home, her husband being unable to attend on account of illness.

A large number of relatives and friends left the home after the short service and marched to the United Church (of which the deceased was a member) where the pastor conducted a public service. After the opening chorus the choir sang "Lead Kindly Light" of the departed, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." The lesson read was the 14th chapter of St. John, the text as part of the 27th verse: "Peace I Leave With You; My Peace I Give Unto You." From this text the mourners received a comforting and helpful discourse.

The bearers were all neighbors and were Edward Johns, Harmony Mordon, Currie English, Samuel Anderson, Homer Demill and Mr. Weese.

MISS RUBY RUTANN

The remains of the late Miss Ruby Rutann who passed away in the Belleville General Hospital were taken to Napanee to the home of her mother, Mrs. Oakley, of Adolphustown. The deceased was only sixteen years of age and was one of the best known young ladies in the Adolphustown district. Her father was Harold Rutann, he having passed away some time ago.

Working Members Need of Orange Order and Church

Stanleidan Loyal Orange Lodge celebrated its 83rd anniversary on Sunday, September 14th, by attending Divine service in the Anglican church. The members and visiting brethren assembled in the Lodge Room at half past one, formed in procession and marched to the church headed by the Kilt e Band. There was a good turn out and the sacred edifice was filled with worshippers. The sermon was conducted by the rector, Rev. Brother Clarke. The Most Worshipful Grand Chaplain Rev. A. L. Geen of Belleville read the Scripture Lesson and was the special preacher for the day. After expressing his pleasure of joining with the brethren in their anniversary service and speaking favorably of such anniversaries and of keeping them by attending divine service and congratulating the lodge upon the favorable report which he had heard of it, he chose for his text, Matt. 7:21. Speaking first of members of the order not being nominal members only, but working or doing members not like some professing Christians, calling themselves Christians but not "working at it". The preacher then applied the text to members of the church whose life was not in keeping with their professions or their baptismal covenant with God.

The musical part of the service was very hearty, hymns with familiar tunes being chosen. After the service the members re-formed and marched back to the Lodge Room. Short addresses were given and a very hearty vote of thanks given to the Grand Chaplain for h s sermon and for coming to join with them, with the request that he would come again.

COOPERAGE BURNS

Bowmanville Sept. 16—A mid-day fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the cooperage plant of Roland Cale on the Mannvers Road in Bowmanville on Monday. The fire was noticed shortly after one o'clock and the local fire department responded but was hampered by the lack of water, there being no hydrants within 400 yards of the plant. It was an old barn which has been equipped for making apple barrels. Most of the local farmers received their supply of barrels from this source. Damage is estimated at close to $4,000.

YOUNG MAN STRUCK

James Marsale, a young resident of Tyrendenaga Reserve, sustained severe injuries Sunday night when he was struck by a car driven by Mr. P. Miller, of Deseronto, as he was walking in the Arlington Hotel at Deseronto, where he is resting easily.

The young man was walking north on the highway about eight o'clock, and a car came south, turning out from another car and hitting the young man. Marsale was dragged a number of feet, and sustained a broken shoulder and other injuries. He was brought to the office of Dr. Boyce, in Deseronto, where medical assistance was given.

The height standard for infantry soldiers is now five feet, two inches.

SONIA

by Vida Hurst

INSTALLMENT 1

As Mrs. Maine opened the door Sonia and Joe Carter sprang apart. But not quickly enough! She had seen him kissing Sonia.

It was, as Mrs. Maine said, disgusting. Seventeen years old and alone in the room where the girls had left their coats, with no light.

Sidney Maine was giving a farewell party to the senior class of the Muncie high school, which, Mrs. Maine, relating the episode, was careful to explain was the reason for Sonia's presence.

Every one knew that Sidney Maine liked Sonia. But everyone knew, too, that Sonia went too far for one whose social position was not secure. Her father was a grocery clerk, her mother a dressmaker. Even so, Sonia might have made the grade had she been more circumspect. But Muncie mothery distrusted her. And not without reason. It had been rumored that she not only smoked but she dangled cigarettes loosely from her lips without holding them.

"She's wild," the mothers had concluded.

And no one challenged the statement. Least of all, Sonia, who faced Sidney's mother now, head high, green eyes blazing in her white face.

"Do you think this is any way for young people to act?" Mrs. Maine gulped, fumbling for her poise and the electric switch at the same time. As a matter of fact, she was much more embarrassed than either of the others. Joe Carter was shamefaced but grinning.

"Aw Mrs. Maine, we didn't mean any harm. Did we Sonia?"

But the girl tossing her head a trifle higher, refused to answer. Without a word of apology or explanation, she seized her coat and left the house.

Sonia stalked through the summer street swiftly. Joe Carter, rather loudly gallant, had to run to catch her.

"My gosh, Sonia, this is no way to act. We hadn't done anything."

She faced him stormily.

"Do you think I'd stay in that awful house after that? Having her think things."

She flung away as he attempted to take her arm.

"Leave me alone, Don't."

"Well, but Sonia . . . my gosh . . . this is awful. It isn't my fault she opened the door."

"Your fault the light was off," she said darkly.

"You looked so tantalizing. And you hadn't forgotten your handkerchief, you know. I saw you stick it down your neck before you missed it. You wanted me to come after you. Didn't you?"

The girl said nothing but her pace slowed to his. His hand crept down her arm.

"You wanted me to kiss you, didn't you, Sonia? Are you sorry I did?"

"No," she answered.

Hand in hand they walked through the poignant sweetness of the night. The dim lanterns of the stars glowed above them. There was a young moon hanging, crescent-shaped, detached. Sonia caught her breath.

"Isn't it wonderful?"

"You are wonderful," the boy murmured awkwardly.

"No, I mean the night—life—everything! It's like what the minister said in the baccalaureate sermon! We are standing on the threshold of life. And what does it hold for us? I wish I knew."

"Better take it as it comes. And not worry over the future. It holds a devil of a lot of work for young truly. I'm going into the garage with Dad next week. Overall and grease for me. And I like it!"

"But wouldn't you like to know?" she persisted, dreamily. "Wouldn't you like to look in a glass and see the next few years unroll before you? I would! See, maybe, Sonia, dancing in a silver gown with an emerald ring on her hand. I like emeralds, Joe, better than diamonds. And my hands aren't bad."

She sent them, like frail messengers to his lips for a kiss.

"Sonia, when you talk like that you seem like somebody else. I'm half afraid of you. Why are you so different from other girls?"

"How could I be like them?" she asked frankly. "I've never had any of the things they're used to. Think how miserable I'd be if I tried to imitate them. I have had to be myself Joe, and live in my old world. While they go away to summer camps or to places up north where it's cool I have been at home washing dishes!"

"I know, and it's a darned shame."

"Oh, I wasn't asking for pity. I don't want that from anybody."

She drew herself proudly erect.

"I am seeing visions while I wash the dishes, you know. And I have my own ideas and plans for the future. No one need be sorry for me."

They had reached her door now. As if by common consent they drew closer together and lowered their voices.

"I'll bet your ideas are pretty grand aren't they?"

"It will take a whole lot of money to carry them out. I can tell you that." He said wistfully. "I suppose that lets me out. You don't see a little bungalow down across from the garage in that kind of a dream!"

She slid her hand into his.

"I'm afraid not, Joe. No bungalows in my dreams. But I like you an awful lot.

"You liked to kiss me?" he asked timidly, hopefully.

Sonia laughed.

"I think I might have, but in the grand manner that followed I was too stunned to notice whether I liked it or not."

He put both arms about her slender young body.

"Sonia, kiss me again."

But she drew away.

"A kiss," said Sonia, with infinite wisdom, "is like lobster. One must be in just the right condition to enjoy it."

"You mean you aren't?"

"You guessed it the first time."

"But you were tonight in the dark, in the moon and singing outside!"

"It was exciting waiting in the dark for you to find me. There was a kick to that."

"Sonia, you little devil....there's a kick to it now. Kiss me, Kiss me, Sonia. I'll guarantee the kick."

But she eluded him, ducking easily from his embrace. During the scuffle there was a sound of a window being raised.

"Yes, mother."

"Come on in, now."

"All right! Joe, you'll have to go."

"Sonia please!"

"No," she cried impatiently.

He said, with the bitterness of it. "I suppose you've kissed so many fellows there's nothing to it for you."

"You lie, Joe Carter."

"What do you mean lie?"

"I mean," Sonia flared, "that the kiss you gave me in Sidney's bedroom tonight was the first kiss I've had from a boy—ever. And I hate you!"

Leaving the boy astounded by both her violence and the information Sonia ran up the steps and slammed the door.

As she turned on the light she stared at the ugly untidiness confronting her. The sewing machine littered with silk scraps and of pincushion bursting with pins, symbol of her mother's profession. Sonia hated that pincushion. In those dreams of hers she cut it into shreds, burned it, thrown it into the river. Her mother, had a way of mumbling, with her mouth full of pins. "Sonia, hand me my pincushion!"

There was a battered leather couch which Sonia had adorned with turquoise silk pillows. The sailor gave her a thrill of exquisite joy, as did the Japanese print she had selected—flamingos red. But an ironing board stood beneath it with a cold iron. Mrs. Gillwater's new foulard dangled on a hanger from the bracket light.

"I hate it!—hate it!—hate it!" muttered Sonia, throwing her coat on a chair.

Her mother stood at the sink in the kitchen stacking dirty dishes.

"I didn't expect you home so soon," she said in her colorless voice. "It isn't 11 o'clock."

"You told me to come in," evaded Sonia.

"Yes. I didn't want you hanging on the front steps with that boy. But how did the party happen to be over?"

"Oh, mother! Why is a party ever over? Don't ask me! It's over, that's all."

Anna Marsh stood for a moment hands on her hips.

"What's the matter, Sonia? Didn't you have a good time?"

"Of course I did. Why?"

"I don't know. But evidently you didn't . I wish you'd talk to me more. There are a lot of things about you I don't understand."

"Now mother—"

"Why shouldn't you have a good time with girls and boys your own age it wasn't your dress. That's perfect. I'm willing to say there wasn't a girl there with a prettier dress than yours."

She eyed the lines of the shell pink chiffon admiringly.

"Right you are darling!" Sonia answered gratefully. "My clothes are always perfect. If I'm not a social success you certainly aren't to blame. Where's father?"

"Where is he always when you're having a date?"

Sonia went to the back porch and peered out. "Teddy?"

"Yes, honey?"

She opened the screen door and slipped out to the steps.

"You can come in now. Your wandering child is home."

He puffed at his pipe before he answered, gently. "Does it make you mad because I sit up and wait for you?"

"Oh, no! It makes me feel fine to know you're out here on the back steps worrying about me all the time I'm gone."

"I'm not worrying about you honey. You know your dad thinks you're the finest girl that ever lived."

Sonia smiled.

"Its just that I can't get used to the idea that you're old enough to go out alone with the boys at night."

"Well, I'm out of high school now. I guess that ought to be old enough, Dad. I want to go to work."

He rose, rather heavily for so short a man, and re-entered the kitchen. Sonia followed him.

"Daddy, did you hear what I said? I want to go away from here and get a job. I could be a bookkeeper. I was head of my class."

"I can't let you go away from home honey. You're too young." The face he turned to her was lined with the years of his futile struggle to get ahead. "But if you want to find something to do here in Muncie——"

"Never! I'll die first. I won't stay in this town another month."

White-faces they stared at each other.

"Sonia, what do you mean?"

"I mean I hate it. I hate the narrow-minded, suspicious people. I hate this house, the disorder, the dishwashing. I hate myself and the things I find myself doing."

"But Sonia, you're not going away. I won't let you. You can't."

"I will," she cried passionately. "I'm going to Chicago where I can live my own life. And I'll hate you if you try to stop me."

It was Sonia's mother who settled the argument.

"That's enough from you, Sonia. Run and change your dress, so you can help with these dishes."

"But mother, I want this settled right now."

Let IRON FIREMAN
cut your fuel costs
392 typical users report average annual savings of $493 each in coal bills

IRON FIREMAN hammers down fuel costs and builds up profits. Owners everywhere are cutting their coal bills 15 to 50 per cent. The savings effected are so large that Iron Fireman soon pays for itself.

Proof of the savings made by Iron Fireman is contained in heating cost records submitted by 392 typical users of industrial sizes, and by 105 users of the home size.

The 392 users in the industrial group averaged annual savings of $493 each in fuel costs. They cut their coal bills 31.62 per cent, or practically one-third. They reported average annual earnings of 39.44 per cent on their Iron Fireman investment.

The 105 users in the home group averaged annual savings of 590 each in fuel costs. They cut their fuel costs 45.61 per cent, or almost one-half.

The secret of these extraordinary savings in fuel costs centers in Iron Fireman non-agitated forced underfiring. Iron Fireman burns smaller sizes of coal, which cost less per ton. And it burns less coal. Air and coal are fed to the fire from below, and volatile gases that ordinarily escape as smoke are distilled off scientifically and consumed by the flames. Application of this scientific principle produces firebox temperatures 500 to 1000 degrees hotter than through hand firing, automatically maintains even heat or boiler pressure, saves labor, and abates the smoke nuisance.

Iron Fireman will earn for you, as it is earning for others, if you will just say the word. In industrial sizes, on the average, it writer itself off the books in 30 months in fuel savings alone.

Made in a range of sizes for homes, apartments, and large commercial heating and power plants . . . sold on convenient terms.

An Iron Fireman engineer will call and survey your plant, and render a report that fairly and accurately contrasts your present results and costs with results and costs you may expect from an Iron Fireman. Ask us for this service. It is free.

SEVERE STORMS

Reports that a storm caused such wholesale loss in the farming section as on Sunday morning when a large number of fires were started as a result of bolts. This years has been a year of moderate electric storms until Sunday morning when a brief but violent disturbance took place. Some years are almost free of these disasters.

One of the most severe storms took place several years ago when two men lost their lives as a result of the lightning but strangely no other damage of account occurred though the storm was in sound and fury practically unprecedented.

THE BEAR YET

Bear stories continue to sift through from the north country. The bear has an evident proclivity for man's neighborhood and as a result of it he naturally appears in print as an actor.

School children who read in their textbooks of bears, are naturally keen over the stories of Hastings County bears.

THE POET APPRECIATED

Twice within a short time Canadians have paid tribute to immortal poets. Canada has a body of poetry of which a young nation might be proud. The raising of cairns to the dead men who have sung of our fields and our native spirit proves that Canada has come into possession of a spirit of appreciation of poetry. There was a time when poetry was not looked upon seriously by the people as a whole and while some poetic following has not yet become large, more and more people are coming to realize the part that the seer who speaks in rhythm performs in the development of his country is that of prophet and priest. This man sees the spirit of Canada and the life of Canada and sees it whole, while other men see it but in part. He sees it in relation to eternal truths of life.

It is no wonder then that especially those who are in sympathy with the poet's aspirations should seek to honour Archibald Lampman, one of the first singers Canada has had. The dedication of the cairn on Saturday at Morpeth is worthy of more attention because Lampman has stood the acid test, for though dead, he yet speaks in a tongue that this Georgian age in the New World can understand.

Poets work for a small pittance, but they sing because they must, like the birds not for a living, but from their spirits seeking utterance. It then is an encouragement for those who are strumming the lyre to know that they are not unappreciated in this industrial age.

83 YEARS AFTER

Eighty-three years ago when the cold north closed on the Franklin expedition there were neither fliers nor planes and no one had a notion of radio development.

Yet these are the things which have revealed the traces of the long lost expedition of Franklin.

Eighty-three years from now will there be developments and invention which will reveal things hidden to us and which are as much a mystery to us as the disappearance of the Franklin party was to the people of the forties and fifties? Just as the people of those days could not imagine fliers and radio messages, so the people of today are in the dark about things which may be "light" eighty-three years hence.

Those who have lived in the last few decades know what developments have come and they expect more and greater ones. It is a day of modern miracles when the miracle ceases to be a wonder at all.

Whatever view people take of the construction of the upper bridge they realize that the intention of the council means traffic will not be detoured for long such as would happen were the bridge to be closed up and were delayed until next spring.

SIDELIGHTS

WHEN LOVE IS KIND
By Aline Michaelis

If men could only tell
The secrets they must keep,
The thoughts they guard so well,
Their wishes, dear and deep,
What would their words reveal,
What visions of delight,
These hidden things they feel,
These longings brought to light?

Ah, in how many a breast,
Would not the secret find
This fondest wish confessed:
Be true, my Love, be kind!

No man need fear defeat,
Nor bend his head to care,
If but love still is sweet
No man need know despair.
Unheeding all his foes,
Through life's strange ways that wind
A conqueror he goes,
So long as love is kind.

INTEREST in the international yacht races for the America Cup is keen all over the world and even here in Belleville, once a leader in yachting affairs, considerable interest is shown in Sir Thomas Lipton's renewed attempt to lift this cup with his Shamrock. No one takes a greater interest in this series between the Vanderbilt yacht, Enterprise, and the Lipton yacht Shamrock, than William (King) Rogers, of this city, a yachtsman of many years standing, in fact boy and men he has taken a delight in sailing, blow high or blow low, and has many interesting reminiscences to tell of the days when Belleville yachts were wont to come in one, two, three at sailing regattas. He remembers the building of the Atalanta here and the attempt to lift the America Cup by the Belleville boat. He also sailed on the Atlanta later and at Chicago raced for the Fisher Cup which was lost on the first attempt through the gear being carried away while leading the fleet within sight of the winning buoy Nothing daunted the Atlanta skipper and crew remained in Chicago and challenged the winner for the cup. After waiting ten days they were given a race and won handily. Mr. Rogers has never lost interest in yachting and is usually to be found somewhere in the offing where white sails are showing. He is a locomotive engineer on the Canadian National, and one of the veteran Grand Trunk engineers, one of the real Old Guard. Sturdy and strong he still makes his regular run between Belleville and Brockville although entitled to retirement any time he so signifies.

APROPOS of the fact that the Canadian Club is being revived here it may be interesting to note that lecture courses have always been popular in Belleville. In 1905 the Belleville Graduates Club, consisting of graduates of various universities, held the fifth of a series of lecture courses, among the speakers being Prof. Knight, Queen's University; Prof. A. H. Young, Trinity, Toronto University; Prof. Dyde, Queen's; Principal Maurice Hutton, Toronto University; Prof. Adam Short, Queen's; Prof. Ramsay Wright, Toronto. The lectures were delivered at St. Agnes School Hall, and the officers of the club for 1905 were William N. Ponton, M.A., President; W. S. Morden, M.A., Vice-President; T. Luton, M.A., Secretary Treasurer; Rev. W. B. Heeney, M.A., Representative of Committee.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Nina Builds

Ethel Willis Hewitt

Ronald Archer artist, was in appearance clean cut, stalwart, American. The type of man women always look at the second time, what ever this may mean. In Ronny's case it meant that his work was being neglected that he may not appear to his many feminine admirers, and that in order to complete his Portrait of a Lady for the fall exhibit, he was forced to fold his tent and steal quietly away.

He rented two rooms in the old Collett house for the months of August. The Colletts were friends of a friend of his. Their home was in Hampton, and the two rooms Ronny was to occupy commanded a splendid view of the bay. It was an ideal place for work in a quiet, remote part of the house. Nothing to distract one's attention from work, except the fact that the Collette had a young daughter, which would naturally, in time, prove an annoyance. He certainly would not have taken the rooms had he known it. He had tried it before.

True, Nina Collett, who, by the way was an architect, and Ronny hated women who went in deliberately for a man's job, was employed by Vane and Foster, and was, of course, away from home during the day. Ronny decided to try it for a while. He was having his meals out at first, might not even see the girl. But no such luck.

The very first evening, Ronny forgot to take his mail from the hall rack. He remembered it after he reached his room.

"Oh, nothing important, it can wait," he mumbled.

But half an hour later there was a light tread on the stairs, and a tap at his door. Ronny was in the act of stuffing his pipe with tobacco.

"Oh, darn," he snapped, under his breath.

"I might have known it."

He swung the door open with a jerk. The light from his room flooded the slim figure of a girl. Brown and eager, with copper hair and a yellow frock. Her gray-green eyes met Ronny's gaze with a level glance. There was a trace of annoyance in her manner.

Before Ronny could think of anything to say, she had turned and he heard the click of her sandal shod heels echoing down the hall.

"Well, of all the—" he slammed the door with a vengeance. He wasn't accustomed to women looking at him like that—not seeing aware of his existence. It hurt his vanity. He threw his mail on the table.

"An architect—holy mackerel, what will the infants be doing next?" He laughed aloud

Later, he acknowledged that Nina Collett was unusual. He met her several times in the lower hall, each time she had glinted up at him, or Ronny felt afterwards it had been through him, and had passed with a swift good morning. Her eyes astounded him. There seemed, trembling in their gray-green depths, something that would have made the whole world happy, could she have shared it.

Ronny discovered, suddenly, one morning that his Portrait of a Lady was taken on a great deal more gold and brown and copper tints than he had intended. He was a bit startled at first, then he stood off and studied the effect. It fascinated him with those tones. They made the Lady more warm and alive. If he could put into the Lady's eyes, that something he saw in Nina's, she would make him famous.

The idea took possession of him. He must see more of her, in a favorable light, where he could study her eyes. But he found this not so easy. She seemed always preoccupied, when he saw her. She would simply amble at high and hurry on. No woman of Ronny's acquaintance ever passed him without stopping for a word or two, not even the scrub woman in the Appleton apartments, where he lived. It angered him, her indifference. It was an entirely new experience.

In spite of this, however, the Lady grew into a perfect creation, under his deft fingers. There was a warm glow in his critical eyes, as he put on the finishing touches.

The following Saturday afternoon, he came upon Nina in the Garden. She seemed pensive, even to have lost some of her usual eagerness.

For the dozenth time Ronny asked her to join him on a trip down the bay. Of course she would have some excuse, she always did. But this time Ronny was surprised. She smiled up at him.

"I can't, really. I'm going over on Canterberry Heights to see a house the firm's putting up for sale Monday. Would you care to come along?" Her voice was thick and shaky.
